Gen. James S. Brisbin, a distinguished engineer who has been in charge of the Yellowstone and Montana division of the Northern Pacific railroad, writes to the New York Herald that the road after leaving Helena, Montana, "passes over the Rocky mountain divide through the Deer Lodge pass, and enters the Deer Lodge valley. A tunnel will have to be constructed through the divide, but it will be short and easily made. The tunnel will be made this winter. From Deer Lodge valley the road will run along Hell Gate river into the Missouri valley and up this valley to Lo Lo pass, where it presses over into Washington territory and Oregon."

There is a crowd of young hoodlums in a quarter of this city, that need a set back. None of them are over fourteen years of age, and a little effort on the part of those having them in charge would be but a kindness to the boys themselves, who evidently act in ignorance rather than malice.

From Mr. Bell, supply agent for the road now in process of construction from Corvallis, and who is on board the Yaquina, we learn that it is the intention of the company to make the new town of Yaquina headquarters for all the operations of the company. The Chicago Times discusses, or rather dissects, the commerce committee of the house in a long article, and heaps abuse upon the head of Speaker Keifer. The prominence given the Pacific coast states is the particular cause of irritation. It is unnecessary, says the Oregonian, to reply to a criticism which soberly speaks of Congressman George, from "Walla Walla, W. T.," and assigns Mr. Page to Sacramento, when he does not live there at all. Besides, Chicago has no right to complain on a comparison of commercial greatness. The value of direct foreign exports from Chicago during the year just closed, foots up a trifle above five millions. The direct foreign exports from Portland and the Columbia river foot up a trifle under eight millions. These figures do not lie.

Attention! Attention!

All those indebted to the Central Market will please call and pay their accounts before the 13th of January, 1882. By so doing they will oblige and save much. Those that do not comply with this request, their accounts will be closed. J. ROGERS.

Probable.

Negotiations are pending between the Oregon and Chinese Mercantile company, which was organized last fall, and the Oregon Improvement company, for the charter of the new collier Walla Walla to take a cargo of lumber and flour to Hongkong and return with rice, other merchandise and one thousand Chinamen for the Northern Pacific railroad. The Improvement company have need for the steamer in the coal trade between Seattle and San Francisco, and could use her thus more profitably than in a trip to China; but, in order to assist the Northern Pacific, which has, within the last two years not been successful in securing half a force, to obtain a sufficient number of laborers, the manager, Mr. C. H. Prescott, consented to the proposed arrangement. It is understood that the charter will be signed to-day. The steamer will probably sail before February 10th.—Oregonian 5th.
