The Californian for February to hand is an extra good number. It is illustrated and has other special features of merit. The article on "Beliefs" is a well written one and worthy of any magazine.

A new religious sect in Minnesota are called the Dreamers, and they have a dream interpreter, and are governed in their conduct by their dreams. Cheese and mince pie distributed at night would break up the whole church.

Dr. Baker has handed on a curiosity in the shape of a play bill, the same being a programme of the Russian Theater at Sitka. The names of the performers are ornamental, and would adorn any programme. Kashewaroff, Shnakoff, Kostrometnoff are the stars.

Railroad contractors complain of the prospective scarcity of labor for the coming season. The Northern Pacific alone will need 12,000 men in order to do anything like what is expected, and the far Northwest calls for 20,000 more.

Masquerade Costumes for Rent. A fine selection of San Francisco mask suits for ladies and gents will be on exhibition and for rent one week before the mask ball, at M. D. Kant's merchant tailoring establishment. Any special suit will be ordered by telegraph at the lowest rates.

Howe's Minstrels.

Liberty Hall was crowded last evening to see the great combination of Howe's minstrels in their specialties and delightful character sketches. Long before eight o'clock there was but standing room, and when the curtain rose it was to the largest audience ever gathered there. The evening's entertainment was opened with an olio, Thompson, Gilbert, Dearn and Smith, and men, Joe Taylor in the middle, or "interlocutor," as the programme hath it. The "Ancient order of the full moon," a clever caricature, wound up the first part, and after a brief prelude of orchestral music Miss Lottie Allen, in her great song and dance, "The Marriage Bells," captured all hearts by the music of her voice and graceful movements in the dance. The favorite plantation sketch, "Old Black Joe," who hears the angels calling, and tells them he's "a coming," was well rendered by Mr. Thompson, and then came the great jockey clog, under the direction of Henri Stewart. The delighted encores of the audience evinced their pleasure at this part of the performance. The quartette was unique, as was Sam Dearn with his wonderful array of instruments, and the solos he contrived to execute upon these original affairs that he twanged and blew, was a new feature to many. "The Last Sensation," and "Walking for dat Cake," two intensely funny features, closed the entertainment. To-night there will be an entire change and some new and special features never before seen here will be presented.

Skipped Out.

Among the twenty passengers on the last steamer for San Francisco, was one J. R. Sheppard, a painter of Oregon City, and since his departure a dismal howl arises to heaven from the precincts of that quaint old city. The reports of his croakiness come in thick and fast, and though nothing new has developed yet, says the Standard, since his exit, his record is blotched with points that would outfit a Police Gazette drama, if they were brought to the sunlight. He left Astoria on the jump and went to the Dalles, where he was hailed as the husband of the woman he was living with. Then he escaped with his life from the heat and dust of that picturesque city, but was overhauled at Vancouver by the sheriff of Wasco county for debt, which he was forced to satisfy before he could proceed. He then descended like a dew drop into that much maligned village, Oregon City. He behaved himself pretty well for this country and age for some time, but his habit of wearing his hat over his left ear was a circumstance against his character. The closing scenes in his career in the valley are making his friends and acquaintances knit their brows. Numerous creditors look with longing eyes after his fleeting form and wish that he would not thus leave them in despair. Some days ago his paint shop burned, and in it was consumed, so he says, considerable money belonging to the A. O. U. W., and other funds, but a subscription was raised for him, and he turned it over to the lodge. Only two things can be said of him; one is, that he is a fraud, and other, he is gone.

Distressing Accident.

Warren Hayden, of Ilwaco, who accidentally shot himself last Saturday while loading his revolver, is still lying dangerously ill at the Parker house, but though the bullet has not yet been found, the doctors in charge say that they think his recovery probable. On Wednesday two pieces of the skull were removed, and yesterday it was thought that the patient was sufficiently rallied to attempt the extraction of the ball. What adds to the distressing nature of the affair is that Mr. Hayden was engaged to be married, and the ceremony was to take place on the evening of the day on which he met with the unfortunate accident.

Let those now laugh who never laughed before, and those who always laughed now laugh the more. You certainly will regret it if you don't go to the minstrels to-night and see those four end men.

He wouldn't play Kathleen Mavourneen.

Dearn's banjo is still in tune.

Joe; give Dearn something easier at the minstrels to-night.

Oh, did you see that man playing on his mother-in-law's teeth at the minstrels.

To make a good effect, the calcium lights should have been raised several feet higher and the stage darkened during the clog dance at Liberty hall last evening. It will no doubt be better arranged this evening.

Poco Tiempo.

The N. P. R. Co. have issued a book shaped circular which contains a considerable general information about the country through which their road is to pass. It also contains a map of the country between the Pacific ocean and Lake Michigan, showing the route of the road. According to this map, says the Standard, the road is to be built on the north side of the Columbia and over the Cascade mountains from "Ainsworth to Tacoma. The big cities—in the dim, distant future—of Wallula Junction and Ainsworth are properly located on the map. So are Kalama and Wilkeson, but Seattle and Walla Walla are blotted out, and Portland is off on a side track, like the last rose of summer, left blooming alone.

Council Proceedings.

An adjourned meeting of the City Council was held last Wednesday evening. Various reports of committees were read and referred. An ordinance was passed, and various claims allowed. Under the head of unfinished business the Mayor placed J. G. Hustler in nomination for City Treasurer, C. W. Laughrey for Chief of Police, and Chas. Rohr for Street Superintendent. The nominations were confirmed, and the Council adjourned.

Railroad Combination.

From the Standard we learn that the Union Pacific has concluded an arrangement whereby the Northern Pacific will have the right to lay and use a third rail from its line to Butte City, forty-five miles, and that the Union Pacific shall lay a third rail on the Northern Pacific from the junction to Helena. Both companies will then have equal rights to Helena and Butte City and will make the same through rates from these points.

Secretary Kirkwood in his letter accompanying papers received by the Senate on the 21st in regard to the Northern Pacific land grant, says: "I have the honor to transmit herewith the report of the commissioner general of the land office on the subject. From this report it will be seen that patents for lands in Olympia district, Washington Territory, were issued on the 8th of April, 1880, for 3,016 8-10 acres opposite a portion of the road constructed by said company previous to 1875. No patents for lands have been issued for 475 miles of said road constructed, examined and accepted in 1880 and 1881."

Seven plus Eight.

The story has doubtless been told before, but though on distant seas and years ago the moral is fresh and warns all men everywhere, against mixing drinks, medicine, or principles. A certain sea captain, as is the custom of his craft, had taken with him on a voyage, a chest of medicines, together with a manual of allopathic practice, by consulting which, the appropriate remedy for any set of symptoms could be selected. On one occasion a sailor complaining that he had "something on his stomach," applied to the skipper for relief. According to the hand-book a wine-glass of No. 15, was the specific for this particular malady. But there had been many other stomachs with something on them as they sailed, and the calls for a wine-glass of No. 15 had been so numerous that the supply was exhausted. Now, the captain was a man of resources, and he rose to meet the emergency. He would mix a half a wine-glass of No. 8, with an equal quantity of No. 7, and unless arithmetic was altogether a delusion and a snare, the result would be equivalent to a square dose of No. 15. So the compound was stirred up and the sailor took it in. The effect was sudden and alarming, and although there remained very little on the stomach of the patient, the captain averred that he had lost all faith in mathematics, medicine and compromise.
