INGERSOLL'S LATEST.

At the funeral of a little child Bob Ingersoll recently made the following remarks:

"My FRIENDS:—I know how vain it is to gild a grief with words, and yet I wish to take from every grave its fear. Here in this world, where life and death are equal kings, all should be brave enough to meet what all the dead have met. The future has been filled with fear, stained and polluted by the heartless past. From the wondrous tree of life the buds and blossoms fall with ripened fruit, and in the common bed of earth the patriarchs and babes sleep side by side.

"Why should we fear that which will come to all that is? We cannot tell, we do not know, which is the greater blessing—life or death. We cannot say that death is not a good. We do not know whether the grave is the end of this life, or the door of another, or whether the night here is not somewhere else a dawn. Neither can we tell which is the more fortunate—the child dying in its mother's arms before its lips have learned to form a word, or he who journeys all the length of life's uneven road, painfully taking the last slow steps with staff and crutch.

"Every cradle asks us 'Whence?' and every coffin 'Whither?' The poor barbarian, weeping above his dead, can answer these questions as intelligently and satisfactorily as the robed priest of the most authentic creed. The fearful ignorance of the one is just as consoling as the learned and unmeaning words of the other. No man, standing where the horizon of life has touched a grave, has any right to prophesy a future filled with pain and tears. It may be that death gives all there is of worth to life.

"If those we press and strain against our hearts could never die, perhaps that love would wither from the earth. Maybe this common fate treads from out the paths between our hearts the weeds of selfishness and hate, and I had rather live and love where death is king than have eternal life where love is not. Another life is naught unless we know and love again the ones who love us here.

"They who stand with breaking hearts around the little grave need have no fear. The larger and the nobler faith is all that is and is to be, tell us that death, even at its worst, is only perfect rest. We know that through the common walks of life—the needs and duties of each hour—their grief will lessen day by day, until at last this grave will be to them a place of rest and peace—almost of joy. There is for them this consolation: The dead do not suffer. If they live again their lives will surely be as good as ours. We have no fear. We are all children of the same mother, and the same fate awaits us all. We, too, have our religion, and it is this: Help for the living—Hope for the dead."

The necessity for the suppression of the traffic in bogus butter is pointed by the statement of a Cincinnati physician that the germs of small pox are frequently conveyed in the refuse animal matter used in the manufacture of the stuff. This would seem to be entirely possible and even highly probable. Germs thus taken into the system would develop small pox in a person who had never been outwardly exposed to the disease; and probably hundreds of cases where the disease has unexpectedly appeared might be explained in this way.

Table Etiquette.

It is with a view of elevating the popular taste and etherealizing, so to speak, the manners and customs of our readers, that we give below a few hints upon table etiquette:

Macaroni should be eaten in small pieces, and eaten with an even, graceful motion—not absorbed by the yard.

Oranges are held on a fork while being peeled, and the facetious style of squirting the juice into the eye of your host is au revoir.

Stones in cherries and other fruit should not be placed on the tablecloth, but slid quietly and unostentatiously into the pocket of your neighbor, or noiselessly tossed under the table.

If by mistake you drink out of your finger-bowl, laugh heartily and make some facetious remark, which will change the course of conversation and renew the friendly feeling among the members of the party.

In drinking wine, when you get to the bottom of your glass do not throw your head back and draw your breath like the exhaust of a bath-tub in order to get the last drop, as it endangers a feeling of the most depressing melancholy among the guests.

If you cannot accept an invitation to supper, do not write your regrets on the back of a pool check with a blue lead pencil. This is not regarded as ricochet. A simple note to your host informing him that your washerwoman refuses to relent is sufficient.

On seating yourself at the table draw off your gloves and put them in your lap under your napkin. Do not put them in the gravy, as it would spoil the gloves and cast a gloom over the party. If you have just cleaned your gloves with benzine, you must leave them out in the front yard.

Doesn't Like It.

Last week the bark C. O. Whitmore was piloted from Royal Roads to this place by pilot Christensen, of the Victoria pilots. We learn the modest (?) charge of $120 was made, and that said sum was paid for the service. It is thought that the vessel would have been exacted in part payment for pilotage if the pilot had got hold of her at Cape Flattery. Under the law which our late menagerie repealed, this vessel would have been brought up by one of our own pilots for $70. The English pilot who brought her in boasted of the charge he had enforced, and told one of our pilots that they had a "dead sure thing" on a rich harvest for the next two years and they intend to make hay during such favorable sunshine "for all they were worth." Between the Victoria pilots and the Victoria tug boats, an interesting amount of coin will be diverted from Puget Sound to British Columbia before the work of our legislative blunders can be undone. We have learned of four different vessels being towed up the Straits already by English tug boats, where the Puget Mill Co's steamer Golia would in each case have done the towing had the pilot law been in force. We call public attention to these facts that people may know that the Argus was not making mere wild assertions in its predictions heretofore. The result is turning out exactly as we said it would, and, although it makes no direct pecuniary difference to us, we propose to demonstrate to the hardy voters on the Sound who it is that is forcing money away from their midst to the pockets of our B. C. neighbors.—Puget Sound Argus.

Try.

Try popcorn for nausea.
Try cranberries for malaria.
Try a sun-bath for rheumatism.
Try ginger ale for stomach cramps.

Try clam broth for a weak stomach.

Try cranberry poultice for erysipelas.

Try a wet towel to the back of the neck when sleepless.

Try buttermilk for removal of freckles, tan and butternut stains.

Try a hot flannel over the seat of neuralgia pain and renew frequently.

Try taking your codliver oil in tomato catsup if you want to make it palatable.

Try taking a nap in the afternoon if you are going to be out late in the evening.

Try a cloth wrung out from cold water put about the neck at night for sore throat.

Try snuffing powdered borax up the nostrils for catarrhal "cold in the head."

Try walking with your hands behind you if you find yourself becoming bent forward.

Try planting sunflowers in your garden if compelled to live in a malarial neighborhood.

Try a newspaper over the chest, beneath your coat, as a chest protector in extremely cold weather.

Two Bombastic Kentuckians.

Two bombastic asses, "General" S. C. Burbridge and "Colonel" J. C. S. Blackburn by name—it is needless to say they are from Kentucky—have been loading the newspapers lately with letters relating to some childish differences between them which their vanity and self-importance magnify into questions of public significance. They have "Sir" ed each other with ink and charged and counter-charged, and called each other names, and made provisional threats, and blustered, and strutted, and frowned, and (always with a reserve) dragged their coatsails on the ground until the decent public is on the point of vomiting. If they have friends, let the friends bring them together with shot-guns at short-range and have no more fuss about it. If they could kill each other it would not be a bad thing, and it would be such a nice thing for newspaper readers.

Yes, Indeed.

On the new Northern Pacific map, says THE ASTORIAN, there is no such place as Astoria. It is about time a great company like the Northern Pacific got over such pettishness as this slight to Astoria, and similar slights to Seattle and Walla Walla indicate. They serve the company no good end, and in fact render it contemptible in the eyes of the masses.—Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

An honest man is the noblest pursuit of women.

Man wants but little here below, and he gets it.

"Misery loves company," says the proverb, and yet misery is more apt to shun than to court society.

"You seem to walk more erect than usual, my friend." "Yes, I have been straightened by circumstances."

Shakespeare asks, "What's in a name?" Well, it is a good thing sometimes. Not necessarily for publication, but merely as a guarantee for good faith.

Physical heat is only motion. Mental heat is only motion. The two combined make commotion.

Peruvian Bitters.

Cinchona Balm.
The Count Clinch was the Spanish Viceroy in Peru in 1620. The Countess, his wife, was prostrated by an intermittent fever, which she was cured by the use of the native remedy, the Peruvian bark, or, as it was called in the language of the country, "Quinquina." Grateful for her recovery, on her return to Europe in 1622, she introduced the remedy in Spain, where it was known under various names, until Linnaeus called it Cinchona, in honor of the lady who had brought them that which was more precious than the gold of the Incas. To this day, after a lapse of two hundred and fifty years, science has given us nothing to take its place. It effectively cures a morbid appetite for stimulants by restoring the natural tone of the stomach. It attacks excessive love of liquor as it does a fever, and destroys both alike. The powerful tonic virtue of the Cinchona is preserved in the Peruvian Bitters, which are as effective against malarial fever to-day as they were in the days of the old Spanish Viceroys. We guarantee the ingredients of these bitters to be absolutely pure, and of the best known quality. A trial will satisfy you that this is the best bitter in the world. "The proof of the pudding is in the eating," and we willingly abide this test. For sale by druggists, grocers and liquor dealers. Order it.

—M. D. Kant's San Francisco mask suits will be on this steamer. There will be a great demand for them, for they will be a great lot over board for Astoria. Call at once and secure yours.

—I have just received the finest assortment of fancy goods in my line ever brought to Astoria, consisting of perfumery cases, toilet sets, toilet case linens, fancy soaps, comb brushes, hand glasses, and toilet articles of all kinds, splendid presents for the holidays. Call and examine goods and prices before purchasing elsewhere, at J. W. Conn's drug store, opposite Occident Hotel, Astoria, Oregon.

A cough, cold or sore throat should be stopped. Neglect frequently results in an incurable lung disease or consumption. Brown's Bronchitis Troches do not disorder the stomach like cough syrups and balsams, but act directly on the inflamed parts, allaying irritation, give relief in asthma, bronchitis, coughs, catarrh, and the throat troubles which sing and public speakers are subject to. For thirty years Brown's bronchitis troches have been recommended by physicians, and always give perfect satisfaction. Having been tested by wide and constant use for nearly an entire generation, they have attained well-merited rank among the few staple remedies of the age. Sold at 25 cents a box everywhere.

King of the Blood

Is not a "cure all." It is a blood-purifier and tonic. Impurity of the blood poisons the system, deranges the circulation, and thus induces many disorders, known by different names to distinguish them according to effects, but being really branches or phases of that great general disorder, Impurity of Blood. Such are Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Liver Complaint, Constipation, Nervous Disorders, Headache, Backache, General Weakness, Heart Disease, Dropsy, Kidney Disease, Piles, Rheumatism, Catarrh, Scrofula, Skin Diseases, Pimples, Ulcers, Swellings, &c. King of the Blood prevents and cures these by attacking the cause, impurity of the blood. Chamberlain's physicians agree in calling it "the most genuine and efficient preparation for the purpose." Sold by Druggists, $1 per bottle. Free testimonials, directions, &c., in pamphlet. "Treatise on Diseases of the Blood," wrapped around each bottle. D. RANKIN, SON & CO., Proprietors, Buffalo, N. Y.

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS are the best of all purgatives for family use. They are the product of long, laborious, and successful chemical investigation, and their extensive use by physicians in their practice, and by all civilized nations, proves them the best and most effective purgative pills that medical science can devise. In intrinsic value and curative powers no other pills can be compared with them, and every person, knowing their virtues, will employ them, when needed. They keep the system in perfect order, and maintain in healthy action the whole machinery of life. Mild, searching and effective, they are especially adapted to the needs of the digestive apparatus, derangements of which they prevent and cure, if timely taken. They are the best and safest physic to employ for children and weak constitutions, where a mild and effectual cathartic is required.
