

The Daily Astorian. ASTORIA OREGON. WEDNESDAY FEB. 22, 1882. J. F. HALLORAN, Editor.

The Day We Celebrate.

ONE hundred and fifty years ago to-day, was born the immortal Washington: and while liberty is loved and courage honored, the event will be celebrated wherever the sentiments that he championed and led to victory, all find an affirmative echo.

Good for Fixley.

THE irrepressible editor of the Argonaut, writing to his paper, says: There are but two topics of general interest in Washington at the present time.

this to Chile, or England. The true American does not fear the Huascar, nor does he fear the power of England's navy when he is in the right. And his desire is to assert the American doctrine. This was the attitude of the United States so long as the pen of our diplomacy was in the hands of one truly great. In accordance with this policy, circular letters had been issued to seventeen republics in this hemisphere, asking them to send delegates to a peace congress to convene at Washington in November of this year, for the purpose, not of adjusting present difficulties, but of considering matters looking to the future of the American republics. This circular was sent out by President Arthur and now the President, through Mr. Frelinghuysen, has reversed this programme. He has annulled this invitation, and has climbed down and out of the place where he himself had determined to stand. If it is not to thwart Blaine and defeat him for the Presidential nomination, then it is in deference to foreign nations, and in fear of England. But whatever the motive, it is a cowardly abandonment of a position that the United States government should have been proud to hold and stout to maintain. The friends of the administration are apologizing for this mistake. It has given Blaine a weapon that he will not be slow to use; for whatever relation any one may hold toward him, all agree that he is a man of brains and courage. He is brave in defense and bold in attack.

ONE hundred years ago, to day, Henry Grattan succeeded in passing the bill through Parliament that made Ireland a free nation, and though the sunburst had but a momentary gleam before it again was shrouded in blackness, yet the memory of the great orator, the pure patriot and devoted lover of his country should be remembered and revered by all who reflect with pride upon the victories of freedom whatever the field upon which it was fought.
