Won't Have it.

We resent as wholly untrue and misleading the reckless assertion that "all the go-ahead people drink tea." It is, in general, the stand-still folks that go their pile on tea. The busy, eager, aggressive element of our population incline to coffee as a beverage. In staid and finished New England, where life is monotonous and sterile, like the granite meadows that compel agriculture to be a system of geological research, tea is able to hold its own; but when you come West, where the boom is on and the star of empire is getting in its work, you find that almost everyone drinks coffee. Our operators of railroads, our town-builders our makers of new states—the whole hurrying and pushing throng who are developing the country, and extending trade and commerce, and promoting the general prosperity and welfare—want their coffee three times a day, and want it strong. To be a tea drinker in such a country is to fall behind the procession. The habit is somehow not in harmony with the environment. It is idle, therefore, to talk about tea as a determining factor in the problem of the republic. Coffee is the stimulant on which free government depends, and to which civilization is indebted over all other beverages, and to coffee we must look for strength and hope as we gird up our loins and go forward to fulfill our destiny.

Annual Meeting Y. M. C. A.

The Astoria Young Men's Christian Association held their third annual meeting March 10th, for the election of officers for the ensuing years. E. C. Holden was unanimously re-elected President; Rev. J. McCormack, Vice-President; C. A. Hanson, Secretary and Treasurer; Managing Committee—Rev. J. Parsons, Rev. J. V. Milligan, Mrs. Elizabeth McGregor and Mrs. W. W. Parker. It was decided to hold the public anniversary meeting on the evening of Sunday, March 19th, in the new M. E. church, due notice of which, with programme, will be published. The purchase of a library at an early day, by the committee, with funds on hand, and with what may further be collected within two weeks, was recommended, together with instructions to the janitor to keep the reading-room lighted and warm every evening, to accommodate all who will avail themselves of it. This association is quietly doing a great deal of good in this community, and it is hoped the public will extend to it the help and sympathy it so well deserves.

Knights of Pythias.

The next session of the Grand Lodge of Knights of Pythias will meet in this city on June 6th next. From present indications at least two hundred uniformed Knights will participate in the grand parade, and three divisions of the uniformed rank of the Order have already signified their intention of joining in a grand tournament, when a prize will be awarded to the best-drilled division. The Order is increasing very rapidly since the organization of the Grand Lodge in November last, and under the present able management is fast becoming a power in the land for good. So mote it be.

—The Band of Hope will meet at the Methodist church this afternoon at 4 o'clock.

—Thirteen different religious services in Astoria to day; no excuse for not going to church.

—Regular meeting at the Y. M. C. A. hall this afternoon at a quarter to three o'clock. Song service from Moody and Sankey's Gospel Hymns. Cordial welcome to all; and a special invitation extended to good singers.

—We regret to chronicle the death of Warren Hayden, the young man who accidently shot himself, at Ilwaco a few weeks ago. Strong hopes were at one time entertained of his recovery, but he gradually sank and expired yesterday afternoon.

—Prominent packers here think that this season will see considerable increase in the area of our market for salmon. The East and South would take a vast amount if properly introduced. 'Tis probable that in June or July, a ship will load here direct for New York with a cargo of the finest salmon.

—A Walla Walla comedy, says the Vancouver Independent, had a tragedy in it, that was not down on the bills. The man who sustained the principal part was a soldier, and left guard duty without permission to take his part in the play. At an interesting point in the proceedings the audience was electrified by seeing a squad of armed soldiers march upon the stage and arrest the funny man, who was immediately retired to the guard-house.

On the Slide.

PORTLAND, March 10, 1882.

EDITOR ASTORIAN:

On leaving Astoria on the Fleetwood my first thought on sliding over the water at lightning speed, was what a contrast with the trip to Portland a few years ago, when it took two days to make the trip, or even with a few months ago when it took all day to reach Portland. There were quite a number of passengers for the Sound aboard, and we did not quite make the connection at Carrols landing with the railroad and consequently passengers are obliged to stop one whole day at Kalama.

This reminds me that the mails carried from Astoria to Puget Sound and vice versa are delayed at Kalama one day each way under existing managements. Who is it that makes up the schedule of time on the mails? Our Astoria people have been trying to get this matter straightened up for years, and failing, have, I think, entirely dropped it. They applied to the railroad companies to change time a little so as to make connection and without avail, also to the steamboat company without even getting an answer. Applications were also made to the postal authorities with a like result. In fact it would seem in these degenerate times that the U. S. mail is not carried to accommodate the people, but for the purpose of giving subsidies to transportation companies.

Arriving at Portland I find that the city is growing very fast. Real estate is and has been very high, but most people express themselves that it is now high enough. Work is progressing rapidly on the dry-dock just below the city. Like ourselves at Astoria the people at Portland now express themselves very much interested in the improvement of the bar at the mouth of the Columbia, and I think that hereafter we may count on their support in getting the bar improved.

There is quite an uneasy feeling here at Portland in relation to the bridge question. The general opinion being that it will be built at the terminus of the Northern Pacific somewhere near Weidler's saw-mill. The holders of frontage along through the city are afraid that the bridge will interfere with their business. However a bridge cannot be built anywhere but some will be displeased. It is expected work will soon be commenced on the Kalama-Portland railroad.

ORNITHORYNCHUS.

Col. Long's Lecture.

The Daily Statesman says of Col. Long: "The Colonel is certainly the best temperance lecturer that has ever visited our city. He has a wonderfully rich, deep, penetrating voice, that thrills one with its melody. His delivery is good, and his earnest manner and grand word-painting make him eloquent in the extreme. At times the audience were spellbound as the words of burning eloquence burst upon them. Such men as Col. Long are a grand help to any cause they champion." This noted speaker will address the people of Astoria in the M. E. church, on Monday evening next. Be early to secure seats.

—A. P. Francis is in town and will attend to piano tuning while in the city. Mr. Francis will be at the Occident.

—On the desk of the Occident is a curiosity in the shape of a young mouse deer, in alcohol, the property of Capt. Tayler, of the McNear. This species of deer is indigenous to Java, from which far off spicy isle the Captain brought this diminutive specimen. It is perfectly shaped, and is just like one of our deer except in size, it being considerably smaller than a rat. The specimen is a valuable one, one hundred dollars being easily procurable for it from a taxidermist, and is a curiosity seldom seen in any shape on this coast.

Another Version.

ASTORIA, OR., March 11, 1882.

EDITOR ASTORIAN:

Your correspondent at Knappa signed "Resident," whose communication appears in THE ASTORIAN of to-day, represents what took place there from a very one-sided standpoint. It was not a victory of law and order over wrong, but the very reverse. The chairman of the board of directors, instead of standing in partially between the factions and ruling justly and "fearlessly" on all questions presented to him, made himself a violent partisan of the party in whose favor he stood, and rule for them right or wrong, keeping men from voting who paid more taxes than any one of his party except, perhaps, the urbane gentleman lawyer, which rulings were made with the "lessly" left off, as every one who was there well knows. It would, in my opinion, be far more likely to keep the ballot pure "for men to pay their debts," wash bills to widows included, "than to pay taxes on such debts," the highest tax paid being fifty cents, "late on Saturday before election," and then on the strength of these receipts have one's creditors vote more like puppets than men.
