THE CARPENTER

Who builds the houses where we dwell?
Who houses cheaply builds "to sell"?
Who is this man—you know him well?
The carpenter.

Who works for dollars, three a day?
Who out of this for tools must pay?
What has he left for victuals—say?
The carpenter.

Who hammers, planes and saws and rips?
Whose praise is on the needy's lips,
Who gather where he works their chips?
The carpenter.

Who chooses lumber with good taste,
And cuts it up in ready haste?
Who reckons on one-third for waste?
The carpenter.

Who never was known to slight his work?
Who never was known to loaf or shirk?
(Think sarsaparilla in this verse doth lurk?)
The carpenter.

Who never, like some silly fools,
Loafs idly round, against the rules,
But merely stops to grind his tools?
The carpenter.

Who talks of "cornishes" and "fists,"
Of "fints," of getting "falls" and
"fists"?
Who gets his fingers jammed and sliced?
The carpenter.

Who has full many an up and down?
Who, though the soberest man in town,
To get quite high is often known?
The carpenter.

A NEW ISSUE IN NEW JERSEY.

The recent charter election in Morrisburg, N. J., particularly deserves attention, especially at this time, when—as we have been told for the last fifteen years—the two great political parties are now on the eve of dissolution, and new issues are expected to arrive at almost any moment.

Prior to the election in question it was felt by persons of all parties in Morrisburg that there was a painful lack of issues. The Democrats seriously discussed the wisdom of having the tariff "come up" as we have good authority for knowing that it once came up in a Pennsylvania town—and making it a local issue, but they finally decided that it would be wiser to say nothing about it. The Republicans were somewhat divided on the question of civil service reform, and though it seemed at one time probable that they would unite in making southern outrages on negroes an issue, the experienced politicians saw that there was hardly time to prepare any really effective outrages before the election. Public interest could not be aroused in connection with Chinamen or Mormons, and, moreover, neither party was prepared to advocate either Chinese immigration or Mormon marriages. It is quite probable that election day would have arrived and found the two parties without a single issue had not an astute Democrat thought of an old town pump.

The pump in question was closed—if that is a proper term to apply to a pump—some months ago by the board of health. The members of the Board said that the water furnished by the pump was impure and unwholesome, and therefore they resolved that the public should not be permitted to use it. How the astute Democrat already mentioned came to think of anything so undemocratic as a pump will never be known. The fact is, however, that he did think of it, and by a series of powerful arguments convinced his Democratic friends that they could make a brilliant campaign by advocating the reopening of the pump.

After many consultations the Democrats decided that it would not do for them, as a party, to demand the reopening of the pump. As one of the local leaders justly remarked: "We can't get people to believe that the Democratic party wants water," and his associates agreed that the party must not put itself in a ridiculous light. The Democrats, therefore, organized themselves into a "Citizens' Party," retaining their old leaders, but making the pump their only issue. The novelty of the issue commended itself to the people of Morrisburg. They took sides for or against the reopening of the pump with great enthusiasm. The Republicans assert that their opponents were deliberately resolved to poison the town with bad water, knowing that the Democrats would be safe and that the victims of the pump would be found exclusively among water-using Republicans. The Republican physicians certified that they had found nearly everything, from cats up to colored men, in the water furnished by the pump, and that to drink it was little less than suicide, while the local Republican paper published powerful leading articles showing that eleven distinct epidemics of cholera, cerebro-spinal meningitis and whooping-cough had been caused by the fatal pump which the Democrats, in their mad hatred of education, religion and free institutions, were trying to let loose upon the defenseless public that it might poison them with its deadly fangs and sweep like a destroying flood over the doomed village. Eloquence like this could not be without its results, and the Republican heart was, so to speak, fired by the pump, and a stern determination was manifested by the Republican leaders to keep the pump closed or stay out of office for the ensuing year.

Peculiarities of Smallpox

It is one of the most communicable of all diseases, being both contagious and infectious—that is, it may be communicated by touching a person who has it, or by touching a garment that he has handled—or it may be carried in the air, and thus communicated to a person who never saw nor ever came very near any one afflicted with it. It may come from handling paper money; it may be brought by mail in a newspaper or letter, or in a package by express; it may be caught from a fellow-traveler on a railroad, or from a passer-by in the street, or from the casual visit of a friend. The germs of it will remain in bed-clothing, carpets and the like for months, and perhaps for years; it respects no season of the year or spot on the earth. It visits the tropics; it has slain its millions in Mexico; it nearly depopulated Greenland; it reaches the mountain tops, and breaks out in mid-ocean; it has no favored localities; the whole earth is its home. Its most frightful slaughter was in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. But in those days there were no railroads and no steam, and but little commerce, no express companies, and but little mail matter, and very little travel in any way. In these days of ceaseless intercourse and perpetual running to and fro, if the disease were unchecked as it was then, its ravages would probably soon depopulate the whole civilized world; and perhaps this proposition would remain true if the civilized world were left out, for it is a well-established fact that the dark-skinned races are more susceptible to it than the whites, and are also more likely to die from its effects.—Exchange.

Why Printers are Cynical

The other day I stood within the composing-room of a great daily newspaper. There was nothing to delight the eye—no pictures, statues, or sumptuous furniture. Serious-looking men were standing before their cases so fixedly that nothing less than the falling of the roof would have distracted their attention. Scarcely a sound was audible but the faint click of type falling into place. I never before realized so forcibly the cause why printers are, as it is said, naturally cynical. To-day they set up the type that tells the world of rejoicings and festivity, to-morrow the same type is made to proclaim disaster and mourning; the same type which carries to 10,000 homes the inaugural message of the ruler of 50,000,000 of people has not time to lose its sharpness by use before it is employed to report the funeral oration in the Capitol in memory of the same man. The momentary contraction of the forefinger of a despicable wretch levels exalted hopes and robs the whole civilized world in sable. If there be a spot on earth where the instability of human affairs is epitomized hourly, it is in the composing-room of a daily newspaper.—Detroit Free Press.

Various Causes

Advancing years, care, sickness, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition—all operate to turn the hair gray, and either of them inclines it to shed prematurely. A young man will restore faded or gray, light or red hair to a rich brown or deep black, if he is desired. It softens and cleanses the scalp, giving it a healthy action. It removes dandruff and cures humors. By its use falling hair is checked, and a new growth will be produced in all cases where the follicles are not destroyed. It is especially valuable for the feet, as they are so often chapped, weak, or sickly hair, on which a few applications will produce the gloss and freshness of youth. Harmless and sure in its operation, it is comparable to a dressing, and is especially valued for the soft luster and richness of tone it imparts. It contains neither oil nor dye, and will not soil or color white garments; yet it fastens on the hair, and keeps it fresh and vigorous.

Mothers! Mothers!! Mothers!!!

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with the excruciating pain of cutting teeth? If so, go at once and get a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup, it will relieve the little sufferer immediately. It is so simple, so safe, and so effective, that you will wonder there is no mistake about it. There is not a mother on earth who has ever used it, who will not tell you at once that it will relieve the little sufferer. It is the best remedy for teething, and it is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. Sold every where, 25 cents a bottle.

Peruvian Bitters

Onehoma Bates
The Count Onehoma was the Spanish Viceroy in Peru in 1638. The Countess, his wife, was prostrated by an intermittent fever, from which she was freed by the use of the native remedy, the Peruvian bark, or, as it was called in the language of the country, "Quinquina." Grateful for her recovery, on her return to Europe, she introduced the use of the remedy in Spain, where it was known under various names, until Linnaeus called it Onehoma, in honor of the lady who had brought them there, which was more proper than the word of the bark. To this day, after a lapse of two hundred and fifty years, science has given us nothing to take its place. It effectively cures a number of ailments, and is by no means inferior to the Peruvian Bitters, which are as effective against malarial fever to-day as they were in the days of the old Spanish Viceroy. We guarantee the ingredients of these bitters to be absolutely pure, and of the best known quality. A trial will satisfy you that this is the best bitter in the world. "The proof of the pudding is in the eating," and we willingly abide this test. For sale by all druggists, grocers and liquor dealers. Order it, Loeb & Co., agents for Astoria.

A New Homestead Bill

A bill now before Congress, and likely soon to become a law, opens to homestead settlers the odd sections of railroad land hitherto only to be had from the Government by purchase. The land allowed to each settler is 160 acres, and if any one under previous laws has not been able to acquire that amount he is authorized to claim whatever number of acres may be necessary to make it up, the residence and cultivation of land in his original entry, if he has made any, to be considered as making good his claim in his new entry, and it is to be deducted from the five years' residence required by law.

Wait! Wait! Wait!

Water front offered free to any person that will build a saw mill in the city of Williamsport. Lumber we must have to build this city. We have one store in running order at present. Quite a number have already located homes in this city, and are ready to be sold on time to suit purchasers. Located one mile south of Astoria, on the sunny side of the hill, on Young's bay.
