THE CITY.

THE DAILY ASTORIAN will be sent by mail at 25 cents a month, free of postage. Back numbers who contemplate absence from the city can have THE ASTORIAN follow them, DAILY or WEEKLY editions to any post-office without additional expense. Addresses may be changed as often as desired. Loose orders at the counting room.
 There are 21,093 cases salmon aboard the Wallace town.
 The circuit court will convene here on the fourth of August.
 The Edwin Reed will finish loading on Monday. She takes on 22,000 cases of salmon.
 Two men, Cameron and Coleman, were drowned in the Yakima on Friday by their boat swamping.
 There is a man in this city who is to us a most powerful argument against the theory of hereditary genius.
 Reports from all parts show that our Astoria tournament was "the boss" celebration of the northwest.
 Wm. Hume, of Eagle Cliff, offers a standing reward of $20 for any salmon caught in the Columbia river, weighing 75 pounds.
 A collision between the steamers Lomas and Scio, on the Ohio river near Mingo Junction on the 4th inst., resulted in the drowning of fifty persons.
 H. C. Holcomb, a cripple, has bought out the establishment of L. B. Royal, and will have a cigar and tobacco stand in addition to the barber shop.
 There is considerable of a contest in Portland among the detectives and police as to who shall get the $1,000 reward for the capture of the Brown murderers.
 The thieves who stole horses at Phoenix, southern Oregon, one night last week, were captured a few days afterwards. One was shot dead and the other will die.
 108 degrees in Walla Walla on the Fourth; one profane individual remarked that he knew very well where he was going after this life, but he wanted to go as a greenhorn, and not be broke in in this life.
 The regular monthly business meeting of the members of the Astoria Y. M. C. A. will be held at their hall at half-past seven o'clock sharp this evening. CARL HANSEN, Secretary.

The county court met at the court house, and after passing on certain bills submitted, and ordering certain work, adjourned to meet on the first Monday in September. Hereafter the proceedings of the court will appear in THE ASTORIAN. We publish the financial exhibit of the county in another column.
 Special attention is directed to the announcement of the Rive-King performance this evening. Mr. Holden has been to considerable pecuniary risk in the matter, and as it is the only opportunity Astorians will have to hear this world renowned artist, we have no doubt it will be improved. Owing to the fact that a delightful strain of melody is marred by any accompanying discord, it may also be mentioned that no babies will be admitted. We feel like congratulating the babies, for they always have the worst of it, but those that go may be sure of having an evening of undisturbed enjoyment.
Presentation.
 The parlors of the Pythian building were brilliantly lighted up last Wednesday evening, the occasion being the presentation of a watch to Alex. Campbell. When the members of the lodge had all assembled, Mr. J. E. Thomas stepped forward and in a neat little speech on behalf of his fellow Knights, handed the gift to Mr. Campbell. It is a fine time-piece, costing, we understand, $200 with chain attached. On the inner case is engraved "Presented to Past Chancellor Alex. Campbell, by his many friends of Astor Lodge No. 6, K. of P., Astoria, Oregon, July 5th, 1882."

Julie Rive King.
 Our music-loving citizens will be pleased to learn that the famous pianist, Julie Rive King will appear at Liberty Hall in this city this evening. To those who have heard this world-renowned artist the simple announcement is sufficient. She has but one superior in the world, the great Rubinstein; he is in Vienna this summer; she will be here this afternoon, and play at Liberty Hall to-night. 'Tis to the enterprise of Mr. E. C. Holden that we are indebted for the privilege of an opportunity to hear this eminent performer. She will be assisted by the celebrated cantatrice Miss Iry Wandersforde, whose fame as a soprano is established in the memory of all who have had the pleasure of hearing her. Below we give a few of the criticisms from the leading papers of the country.
 The press in every city of the Union has borne testimony to her transcendent talent. "No pianist since Rubinstein has made a more brilliant debut in New York," says the New York Tribune. "Her debut was a grand triumph," remarks the Herald.
 Mme. Rive-King stands at the head of American pianists, and is more than the musical and artistic peeress of Miss Kollogg, Cary, Albani, etc., etc.—Karl Marx.
 The piano under her touch becomes a living instrument.—Cincinnati Gazette.
 It is impossible to conceive a more complete mastery of the piano than she exhibits. Unquestionably she is a very great artist.—Cincinnati Enquirer.
 Her interpretation of Beethoven's noble work was, in every sense, worthy of the author—profound, dignified, poetical and brilliant; she plays entirely from memory, with perfect repose and great aplomb. Her success was quite marked and emphatic.—Boston Herald.
 Played from memory, with delicacy, masculine power, facility and universal brilliancy. She acquitted herself to a marvel, and her success was complete.—N. Y. Spirit of the Times.
 In her Chopin numbers her playing was almost a revelation. We certainly never have heard more artistic playing. It was powerful, chaste, refined, tender delicate, sympathetic and graceful. The "Etudes Symphoniques" of Schumann, with possibly one exception (Rubinstein), we never heard played better.—Philadelphia Press.
 As every seat in the hall has been sold, we need not urge people to attend. The sale of over 2,000 seats in a single day is not only very gratifying to Mme. Rive-King, but is, we believe, the largest day's sale ever known in this country.—Chicago Tribune.
 Her success was overwhelming. Never has there been such a furor over anything in an Apollo Concert as over her playing.—Chicago Times.
 The gross receipts of Mme. Rive-King's concert last night was $3,184, which we believe is the largest sum ever taken at a single performance by any pianist.—Chicago Later Occur.

A Hugo Sell.
 The celebration at Vancouver, which was to have eclipsed everything north of San Francisco, was a most distressing failure. The event was heralded by flaming posters and fulsome notices, and the people were on tip toe of expectation. A sham battle by the soldiers of the garrison, was to have been the leading feature, and the people wanted to see that more than all the rest of the exercises, consequently there was a rush for the boats at nine o'clock, four times as many as the boats and barges could carry. When the first installment had arrived at Vancouver the battle was in progress and nearly over.
 The steamers Vancouver and Lurline and two barges, under the management of the G. A. R., did not arrive till 12 o'clock, and were crowded in a most hoggish manner. Someone was bent on making money at the expense of life and limb, and it is singular enough that many people were not killed. Cattle in box cars are seldom treated worse. As it was, women and children were jostled about, knocked down and trampled upon. One lady had to fall over her baby to save its life, and the surging crowd was beaten back by a gentleman to save the mother and her child. This is only one instance of a hundred similar to it. The officers of the boats and the managers of the G. A. R. refused to allow persons to get on top of the barges, though often requested, in order that people might have a little more room below. The foundation for the celebration was broad enough for a gigantic affair, and would have been a success in the hands of competent managers. The visitors were in no mood to listen to the usual oration and other day exercises, and felt very much disappointed and aggravated because the principal portion of the affair, for which they had suffered almost death to see, was performed before they got there. The sham battle was a very weak representation any way, and was made the butt of ridicule by those who witnessed it. There was but a handful of men to take part in it, and it having been so long since the soldiers were in war that it seemed as if they had forgotten the business, unless they were carrying out the orders of their officers strictly to the letter. The soldiers worked to a slight disadvantage in being marshaled against the wind. There would have been a little more sense apparent had they charged the Columbian and shot a few salmon. No wonder the United States army gets massacred every time it has a skirmish with the Indians, if the alleged sham battle was a sample of their warfare. A lot of grandmothers with becomatices might have done better. The balance of the day was spent by the visitors in wandering around and sighing for a boat to take them home or away from the place. Other boats arrived at all hours in the afternoon, disgusted and fretful. Visitors on one boat did not go ashore at all. When the time came to return, another paralyzing scene occurred. There were about 3,000 people from Portland who wanted to get home on the first boat, and they flocked en masse to the dock. While waiting, a timber in the wharf cracked, and some one shouted that the wharf was breaking down, which created a stampede, and in the rush people were knocked down again. After a great deal of time and much forced patience the visitors got back home. The traveler was the last to leave, and had two barges which she floated down the Columbia at the mouth of the Willamette. But she was unable to make the turn, and was struggling with the current when the Lurline reached her, and took one of the barges. A regular knock-down and drag-out fight ensued among parties who wanted to crowd from one boat to the other, but they all managed to get here about half past eleven. Thus ended the sham battle and sham celebration at Vancouver.—Portland Standard.

The Firemen's Association of Oregon.
 A large assembly met at the rooms of No. 2, last Wednesday evening to organize a state firemen's association. There were present a full delegation from this place, which had been regularly elected by the three Astoria companies, and also delegates from Portland and Salem, and proxies from Corvallis, Albany and The Dalles. Following is the result of the meeting: "It was concluded that this organization shall be known as 'The Firemen's Association of Oregon,' the object being to work for the general good, to render the several fire companies of the state more efficient, to promote harmony of purpose and develop a spirit of progress and improvement, and to secure such action as shall tend to the advancement of the best interests of the citizens and property committed to our charge."
 Officers: F. J. Taylor, of Astoria, president; Thos. G. Buford, of Corvallis, vice-president; Frank E. Hodgkins, of Salem, secretary; Ben Norden, of Portland, treasurer. Delegates: J. W. Minto, A. Stinson, of Tigers of Salem; Frank E. Hodgkins, Chas. B. Moore, W. H. Boise, of Capitals of Salem; A. Mayer, representing three delegates of No. 2's, of Portland; B. F. Stevens, F. A. Fisher, Joe G. Charters, of Astoria No. 1; A. A. Cleveland, B. S. Worsley, C. H. Stockton, Resno No. 2, of Astoria; J. O. Bozorth, C. Brown, F. J. Taylor, Albert H. & L. No. 1, of Astoria. Delegates at large, E. A. Strang, chief engineer Salem fire department; C. J. Trenchard, chief engineer Astoria fire department; F. P. Hicks, first assistant A. F. D.; J. O. Bozorth, second assistant A. F. D. The directors are C. J. Trenchard, of Astoria; F. G. Abell, of Portland; J. G. Minto, of Salem; Jos. Worsley, of The Dalles; Jos. Webber, Sr., of Albany; F. J. Taylor, of Astoria; F. E. Hodgkins, of Salem.
 The board of directors have power and are authorized to prepare and adopt rules and regulations for the government of the association for the ensuing twelve months. The next annual convention and tournament will be held in Salem; time to be determined by the board of directors, and at least three months notice given to all fire departments in the state.

A Disgraceful Affair.
 The bill pending in Congress to pay the expenses of President Garfield's illness has given rise to considerable unpleasant debate. Last Wednesday, in the senate, Vest, of Missouri, said it was well known that the late president, if not hit by the bullet, was unquestionably a victim of mispractice in his last illness. For twenty days he was physicked, leached, probed and lanced, while the bullet that was eating away his life never for a moment came under the attention of the physicians from a medical or scientific point of view alone. The fees were grossly enormous, and would not be allowed by a court in any ordinary case. Vest then referred to a newspaper charge during the president's illness, that while public bulletins were giving favorable reports, the president's physicians were telegraphing in cipher to Wall street brokers information exactly the reverse of that which was being published. He thought it due to the country that investigation into that charge should even yet be made. He regarded the charge of Dr. Bliss of $80,000 for ten days' attendance as exorbitant, and had read at the clerk's desk a statement by Dr. Boynton to the effect that on or about August 8, 1881, he was informed by the late president that Dr. Bliss was a volunteer in the case. In this connection the testimony given by Dr. Bliss that he was sent for by the secretary of war was read.
 Hale said he was unable to appreciate the force of Vest's criticism upon the medical treatment of the late president as a failure. The fact was universally admitted that the president's wound was necessarily fatal. After further remarks the amendment offered by Corkhill reducing the appropriation from $75,000 to $52,500, and provisos were adopted requiring claimants to file a release under seal of all claims against representatives of the late president growing out of his illness and burial. The section provided as amended, and the bill passed.

Some Points.
 There are some queer things about newspapers, in spite of their generally superior and edifying character, and one is their way of speaking about unpleasant occurrences. One can hardly pick up a paper at this time of the year without seeing in it an account of "a sad drowning accident," as if there were distinctions in such matters, ranging from "grave to gay, from lively to severe," and it was the intention to show that this particular incident, however it might be with others, had nothing hilarious about it. So with homicides, it is quite the way to describe them as "shocking murders," when, if one reflects on the subject, it will appear that such affairs commonly are so. Of course, there will be a difference of opinion about the taking of one's book agents and lightning-rod men, but the general principle still holds good that, broadly speaking, no murder is soothing to the mind.
