Those prizes at the auction attract considerable attention. Recent soundings show a depth of fifteen feet on the Coos bay bar.

Note the change in the Fleet-wood's ad. Putting the 1 before the 2, brings her down at 12, noon.

Jas. Steel, of Portland, has leased twenty-one warehouses on the narrow gauge roads for next season's storage and commission business.

A new tank is being built by Mr. J. Wm. Welch, at his place; it is of concrete, is of good capacity, and will be a valuable addition to the property.

Parties in from Clatsop Plains report everything prosperous in that section. Haying is about through with and the rest of the crop will shortly be gathered in.

We hear of considerable in the way of property sales, but as our informants usually supplement their information by saying "don't say anything about it at present," we thus lose an interesting item.

If our friends of the newspaper fraternity want to continue on our exchange list they must look a little closer after their mailing lists. On the 1st we intend to make out a list of papers carelessly in exchanging, and any paper not on our desk will be dropped.

According to the Oregonian, the summer meeting of the N. W. D. A. A. is not productive of satisfactory results, at least thus far. Poor time, and poorer management serve to give rise to hopes that the closing days of the races would be somewhat more in keeping with the former reputation of the association.

The Congregational church organized a Sabbath school last Sabbath. It will be held directly after the morning service (at noon), to commence next Sabbath. All children are cordially invited to attend. Special arrangements will be made to make the school attractive and beneficial for young people.

Next fall and winter the usual scarcity of silver and small gold can be obviated by now keeping it here as much as possible, and thus avoid considerable annoyance. Over $100,000 has been shipped here from San Francisco this season, and its disappearance from circulation would occasion difficulty in making change and disposing of small bills.

The editor of the Contra Costa Gazette is the boss fish narrative purveyor. He says a Sacramento river fisherman caught a salmon on the 10th inst., that weighed one hundred and eighty-seven pounds. Take off the one hundred, and you have the weight of the largest salmon ever caught in the Columbia. That Contra Costa man should go to Congress.

Some little difficulty was recently experienced by merchants here in collecting bills for supplies furnished on an English ship. As a matter of justice it may be mentioned that there was a change of masters on the vessel: the supposition was that the vessel would load here with salmon, and amid the general change in charter, freight, etc., the matter occurred as it did.

A gentleman down on the State of California yesterday morning said to us in the course of conversation: "Your town looks dull. I don't see many people on the street." That's the best proof at ten o'clock in the morning that people are busy. There are very few towns in the United States where there are more active workers in proportion to the population.

A Nice Present.

Among the freight on the Columbia yesterday was a 600 pound bell, from New York, and which is destined for the new Presbyterian church, now in process of erection in this city. The bell is the gift of Father Powers. Not content with contributing generously toward the building of the church, this zealous gentleman desires that there shall be a tongue to summon the faithful to the house of God when his is forever silent, and so presented the church with the bell. It will be placed in the belfry and when its tones ring out upon the air they will ever call to mind the good old man who placed it there, and who rejoices in the opportunity to testify his zeal for the cause.

Wanted a Boat.

About two o'clock yesterday morning the cries of a man under Hawes' store attracted the attention of passers-by. He was waist deep in water clinging to the piles, and shouting, "Bring a boat!" The watchman at the Occident was roused, a policeman's whistle blown, summoning two guardians of the night, and he was rescued.

The force engaged for the last few weeks in scraping on the bar, returned to the city last evening. Lieut. Buchanan goes to Portland to-day. The result is not wholly satisfactory. 'Tis probable little will be attempted for the remainder of the season.

Last Tuesday evening was the occasion of a very pleasant affair at the Good Templars lodge. A fine silver easter and fruit dish, a wedding present, appropriately inscribed, was presented by Mr. D. S. Caswell, on behalf of the lodge, to Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Montgomery.

Among our visitors yesterday, was Col. F. J. Parker, the editor of the Walla Walla Statesman. He is returning from a trip to California. The cares of life and a Kossuth hat sit easily upon him, and if Walla Walla has many rustlers like him it must be the liveliest place on the planet.

At 6 o'clock yesterday morning, Herman Latham, boat-puller of boat No. 2, of the Occident Packing company, while taking in his net at the dock, fell overboard; quite a crowd was at the spot, and every effort made to save him, but he sunk and drowned before assistance could be effective. The body was recovered and will be buried from the M. E. church at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

The amount of traffic between this city and upper town is greater this season than ever before. All day long there is a continuous stream of vehicles coming and going. It is to be regretted that the roadway is so narrow. One of those heavy trucks such as Jewett or Carruthers drive, come pretty near taking up the whole road, and should one of the teams ever go careering at full tilt it would be bad for a lighter vehicle that they would overtake or attempt to pass.

It seems to us that among the many enterprises that would pay well in Clatsop county, cranberry culture occupies a prominent place. We have the right kind of land and climate, and the market for them is unlimited. Down at Clatsop is some land that would be excellent for the purpose. Tide land that overflows is always considered the best for this purpose. Then the water is kept on the vines till all danger of late frosts is past and there is no fear of freezing. That there is money in it is evident.

Among the passengers on board the steamer Columbia when she left San Francisco last Tuesday, was a gentleman named A. W. Tullis. He enjoyed a hearty supper that evening, but at half-past eight he was found dead in his bed, it is supposed from heart disease. He was 73 years of age, was born in Troy, Ohio, and had been sheriff of St. Paul, Minnesota, for six years. He would have been buried at sea, but owing to the solicitations of his wife the body was conveyed to Portland. Col. F. J. Parker interested himself in the matter and in a few minutes collected a purse of $51.50 for the stricken lady.

Among the prisoners brought before Judge Winton yesterday was a low-browed ruffian named Charles Brown, who was accused of indecently exposing his person, and otherwise acting obscenely before two little girls. The evidence was conclusive and the judge very properly fined him $100, with the instructions that should he be confined in jail to work out the fine he should be put at some hard work, and if he prove refractory he be put on an allowance of bread and water. We are informed that there are several others of the same gang in town who indulge in the same practice. A coat of tar and feathers is the mildest form of punishment we have to suggest for such brutes.
