"YOUR PEARLS."
Treat not the secret of thy soul with those Who hold their treasures with a restless hand. Nor to each ready ear thy thoughts disclose. Nor to each staring face thy heart extend. Pearls from ocean's depths too precious are To be strewn heedless at the common feet. Show not to curious eyes the hidden store. Nor to the vulgar the rare pearls they wear. Else, under tramping boots thy gold shall lie. The holy soil of thy interior soil. Crushed the rare pearls by every passer-by. Or given from hand to hand as vulgar pebbles. It is the lesson taught each separate heart To shield its gems from universal gaze. To slumber in quiet glory and apart. Revealed none on coronation days. Give freely to the world its just demand Of sympathy, of kindness, and of trust. But keep reserved for thy colored hand The pearls too pure to be trodden in dust. All lives may know thy gentleness and grace. All hearts thy loving power may evince. But on sea hands or one alone thy place. The costly ring of needless ostentation.

Encouraging to Incipient Journalism.
Four hundred dollars per annum is the average salary paid to the editors and printers of the United States engaged on newspaper work. Who says there isn't money in the newspaper business? Look at these figures, 70,000 editors and printers, and $28,000,000 per annum made by them. Just $400 a piece. No wonder, with such a rich harvest to reap, that the best youth of the land are rushing into journalism. We advise fathers by all means to spend $5,000 in sending their sons to college, giving them a liberal education, and then turning them loose to grow rich, and mould the thought and opinions of this glorious country. When the old man dies the sons rise up and call him blessed, providing he has left them some money to pay off their chattel mortgages and get their presses out of the sheriff's hands. Should some young men be so fortunate as to grow up in a printing office, and early learn the great principles of success in the newspaper business, to-wit: plenty of cheek, plenty of home advertisements, and a paid-up subscription list, they may be able to live comfortably and accumulate enough to bury themselves decently, if they don't die young from overwork.

A Pleasant Experiment With Salt.
Do you want to grow salt and at the same time have an interesting, handsome ornament? The process is a novel, chemical experiment that may be tried by anyone, says the Troy Times. Put in a goblet one tablespoonful of bluing; fill the goblet two-thirds full of water and set it in a position where it will have plenty of warmth and sunshine. In a little while sparkling crystals will commence forming on the outside of the glass, and it is a novel and interesting sight to watch it gradually growing day by day, until the outside of the goblet will be entirely covered with beautiful white crystals. Another variation of this beautiful experiment would be to take a goblet with the base broken off, and fasten it in the center of a thin piece of board, which may be round, square or oblong. After the crystals have formed on the glass, set it on a tiny wall bracket and place a bright holiday or birthday card in front of it; this will hide the base on which no crystals will form. After this is done, fill the goblet with flowers or dried grasses, and you will have a vase which will cost comparatively little, and in reality adds to the bric-a-brac of a room.

Some of the revised figures and opinions concerning the sun, as the result of most recent observations, aided by improved methods and appliances, are of peculiar interest. Thus, the former calculations which placed the sun at 95,000,000 miles from the earth, and which remained unquestioned for so many years, are now changed on the highest authority, so as to present a mean distance of 92,100,000 miles.

The Successful Consul.
Arithmetic is terribly puzzling sometimes, and when one's interest is involved in the matter it is almost impossible to add up a column of figures correctly. A gentleman who lives by his wits, and it must be confessed gets a very fair living, when in the country last summer wanted to borrow some money from a plain, good-natured farmer. "I want to borrow $6," he said. The farmer only had $3, and so the man of wit said, "Well, I wish you would owe me the other $3 and we'll settle up in a few days." When the day of settlement came the farmer was befogged, bewildered and somewhat disgruntled by this conversation. The farmer said, "You owe me $3, don't you?" "Certainly I do," was the reply. "Well, will you pay me?" "Well, my dear fellow, I think our account is about square. I wanted to borrow $6, you remember. You let me have $3 and said you'd owe me the other $3. Now, then, you haven't paid that $3 and consequently still owe it to me. I owe you $3 and if you will give me the $3 you owe me I will instantly pay you the $3 I owe you. Nothing could be fairer than that, I think."

The Mother of Criminals.
Margaret was a pauper child left adrift in one of the villages on the upper Hudson, about ninety years ago. There was no almshouse in the place, and she was made a subject of out-door relief, receiving occasionally clothes and food from the town officials, but was never educated or sheltered in a proper home. She became the mother of a long race of criminals and paupers, which has cursed Ulster county ever since. The county records show 200 of her descendants who have been criminals. In one generation of her unhappy line there were twenty children, of whom seventeen lived to maturity. Nine served terms aggregating fifty years in the state prison for high crimes, and all the others were frequent inmates of jails and almshouses. It is said that out of the 623 descendants of this outcast girl, 200 committed crimes which brought them upon the court records, and most of the others were idiots, drunkards, lunatics, paupers or prostitutes. The cost to the county of this race of criminals and paupers is estimated as at least $100,000, taking no account of the damage they inflicted upon property and the suffering and degradation they caused in others. Who can say that all this might not have been spared the community if the poor pauper girl Margaret had been provided with a good moral home-life while she was growing up to womanhood?—Century for July.

A Fish with Four Feet.
Jones & Michael have a curiosity on exhibition in their drug store. It is a Mexican axolotl, and was found in an irrigating ditch near Golden. The creature is about six inches in length, has a tail like an eel and a head like a catfish, has four legs similar to those of an alligator, and fins on either side like a fish. The axolotl is said to be a native of Mexico, and there is much surprise to know how it came to Colorado. The bite of this fish is said to be very poisonous, and it subsists on worms and flies. It is eaten by Mexicans, being taken in large numbers from a lake near the city of Mexico.—Denver Tribune.

My stomach is dreadfully weak and my digestive organs still weaker. Strengthen them by using Wm. Fowler's Oregon Blood Purifier. Your druggist keeps it for you.

Samuel Rogers as a Story-Teller.
Charles Dickens used to delight in describing the way in which Samuel Rogers, the poet, used to tell table stories when grown old and feeble. A man servant stood behind Mr. Rogers' chair and at appropriate intervals would thus admonish his master: "Tell Mr. Dickens, sir, the story of the Hon. Charles Townsend and the beautiful Miss Curzon." The old poet would start in a slow, almost Gregorian tone, and in curious, old-fashioned phrase: "The Hon. Charles Townsend (his name will serve as well as another) became enamored of Miss Curzon. She was bee-yewtiful. He beribed the maid to conceal him in her chamber, and when she arrived to dress for a ball, emerged from his hiding-place. She looked at him fixedly, and said: 'Way don't you begin?'" She took him for the hairdresser.

Walla Walla Crops.
In the Walla Walla valley the crops will hardly be up to the general average. The dry weather has prevented grain from growing; still wheat is heading out fairly, but the harvest will not nearly come up to expectations formed one month since. This is caused as much by poor farming as by drought. In many instances volunteer wheat has been allowed to grow three seasons in succession on the same ground. Fall season wheat is up to usual average, and so is the spring wheat where any care has been taken to put in properly. Fully one-half the country this year is in summer fallow.

Guiteau's Will.
Apropos of Guiteau's will, the Detroit Post and Tribune makes the following pertinent query: "A curious fact, little thought of, has arisen about Guiteau's will. The wills of insane persons are not generally considered as valid; still the fact remains that this will was drawn up by Mr. Reed, who has all along been a most earnest advocate of Guiteau's insanity. So has been Dr. Hick's who was present when the will was made."

The Laplander's sledge has no runners, but like himself, is covered with reindeer skin, and is in shape something like a canoe. Harnessed to this sledge, the reindeer starts off with almost the rapidity of a steam engine, going fifteen or twenty miles an hour. The reindeer is not only the Laplander's horse, but his cow, and during the time that it gives milk, he is freezing large quantities of it, to be used when no more is to be obtained. Then he breaks off a piece, warms it out, and has again a good article of milk. The deer is also his food, large herds of them being kept in some parts of the country. From its skin the Laplander makes the roof and floor of his house, his bed, his shoes and stockings, his clothes, and cords and strings for his bow. Without this animal, the Laplander would be in a deplorable condition.

About a year and half ago, Sam T. Fisk, a Cleveland ticket scalper purchased a block of Lake Erie and Western unlimited tickets at 60 per cent. discount, paying for them $104,000. These tickets he subsequently laid away and awaited his time. With the restoration of rates his investment is now worth $275,000, and he can control the passenger business of the road if he so desires. The development of this matter is looked forward to with interest.

For that Headache! Try the Oregon BLOOD PURIFIER, the vegetable remedy, it's the cure.

SYMPTOMS OF A DISEASED LIVER.
Pain in the right side, under the ribs of the liver, increasing on pressure; sometimes the pain is on the left side; the patient is rarely able to lie on the left side; sometimes the pain is felt under the shoulder, and is taken for Rheumatism in the arm. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness; the bowels are irregular in their action, sometimes alternating with laxity; the head is troubled with pain, accompanied with a dull, heavy sensation in the lower part. There is usually a considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. A slight, dry cough is sometimes attendant. The patient complains of weakness and debility; he is easily startled; his feet are cold or burning, and he complains of a strictly sensation of the skin; his spirits are low, and although he is rational and even cheerful, he is not able to get on nearly so much as usual. If you have any of the above symptoms, you can certainly be cured by the use of the genuine Dr. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS. When you buy McLANE'S PILLS, insist on having Dr. C. McLANE'S CERTIFIED LIVER PILLS, made by Fleming Bros.

In the Whole History of Medicine
No preparation has ever performed such marvelous cures, or maintained so wide a reputation, as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, which is recognized as the world's remedy for all diseases of the throat and lungs. Its long-continued series of wonderful cures in all climates has made it universally known as a safe and reliable agent to employ. Against ordinary coughs, which are the forerunners of more serious disorders, it acts speedily and surely, always relieving suffering, and often saving life. The protection it affords, by its timely use in throat and chest disorders, makes it an invaluable remedy to be kept always on hand in every home. No person can afford to be without it, and those who have more reason than will. From their knowledge of its composition and effects, physicians use the CHERRY PECTORAL extensively in their practice, and vigorously recommend it. It is absolutely certain in its remedial effects, and will always cure where cures are possible.

Potuvian Bitters
Cinchona Bala.

The Count Cinchon was the Spanish Viceroys in Peru in 1632. The Countess, his wife, was afflicted by an insidious and fatal fever, from which she was freed by the use of the native remedy, the Peruvian bark, or, as it was called in the language of the country, "Quinquina." Grateful for her recovery, she returned to Europe in 1632, she introduced the remedy in Spain, where it was known under various names, until Linnaeus called it Cinchon in honor of the lady who had brought them that which was more precious than the gold of the Indies. To this day, after a lapse of two hundred and fifty years, science has given no nobler title to her plant. It effectively cures a morbid appetite for stimulants, by restoring the natural tone of the stomach. It attacks excessive love of liquor as it does a fever, and destroys both alike. The powerful tonic virtue of the Cinchona is preserved in the Peruvian Bitters, which are as effective against malarial fever to-day as they were in the days of the old Spanish Viceroys. We guarantee the ingredients of these bitters to be absolutely pure, and of the best known quality. A trial will satisfy you that this is the best of all the world. "The proof of the pudding is in the eating," and we willingly abide this test. For sale by all druggists, grocers and liquor dealers. Order of L. Lach & Co., agents for Astoria.
