WRECKED

Two ships sailed out past the harbor bar
One beautiful Autumn day;
More precious than all earth's Jewels
Was the freight they bore away.

There were fond farewells and anxious sighs,
And meeting of loving lips;
There were earnest prayers, as from longing eyes
Sailed the two love-freighted ships.

The sky was clear, and the sun shone bright,
When they left the harbor town;
But the storm-king rode on the deep at night,
And one of the ships went down!

Two human ships set sail, one day
On a calm and sunlit sea;
From the port of home they sailed away,
And one was lost. Ah! me.

There were hidden reefs of crime and sin,
Over which his life was tossed;
There were merciless eddies to draw him in,
And he to life was lost.

When ships go down in the trackless deep,
We weep, and the church-bells toll;
But heaven mourns, and the angels weep,
When is wrecked the human soul.

ANNOYANCES IN HEAVEN

I related something of a conversation between Mr. Longfellow and myself on spiritualism a few months before his death, or, rather, a conversation on the influence and nearness which many persons experience in regard to those who were dear to them and have gone into the mysteries of eternity. Mr. Whittier listened with interest, adding that he was aware that Mr. Longfellow had some remarkable ideas and sympathies of the kind, but had never talked with him on the subject, "and for myself," he added, "I have felt but very slightly that closeness and nearness of the unseen of which you speak." After a few moments, in the process of our talk, he remarked: "Life is a mystery, death is a mystery. I am like the Chinese philosopher Confucius, who, when he was asked, 'What is death?' answered, 'Life is such a mystery that I do not seek to penetrate beyond it.'" "May I ask if you believe in the progress of the soul after that?" "Why not? Surely we are not placed in niches to remain for ever. We shall doubtless there have what we lack here, harmony, and that is my idea of heaven." "No troubles, no vexations?" "Well, I do not think so. It seems to me we must there, as well as here, have some annoyances, to be quite content is contrast." This was a novel idea, and I laughed in appreciation of it, and said, "Then you do not fancy a supreme satisfaction and content?" "No, no, not I," laughing merrily. "But we meet people who are thoroughly delighted with themselves, and surroundings very frequently." "True, and these have seen clams at high tide; they remind me of such people. Ah! we shall have some trials in the life beyond [and here the poet's fine dark eyes lighted up with a rare intelligence], but our happiness will be all the sweeter, and everything will be harmonized."—From a letter in the Churchman.

Lemons.

Lemons are a most valuable fruit, not only for cooking, but also for medicinal purposes and the toilet. If the juice of a lemon is taken every morning before breakfast, for two or three weeks in the spring time, it will prevent the disagreeable feeling of weakness and want of energy peculiar to the season. Lemon juice, made thick with sugar, and a little salt, will relieve hoarseness and heal a hacking cough. A piece of lemon peel, with pulp attached, if bound upon a corn, will relieve it in a few days. It is also an excellent remedy for chills and fever, and, if a teaspoonful of sugar and a large pinch of salt is stirred up with the pulp and eaten with a spoon every morning, it will break malarial troubles. As a cosmetic, it is of great service in removing freckles and sun-burns. Apply the pulp and juice at night to the face and hands and wash off with water in the morning. It is also valuable for its power to detect any dangerous ingredient in cosmetics, powders or liquids. Place a teaspoonful of the cosmetic in a wine-glass, and squeeze some lemon juice upon it; if it effervesces, it is a sure proof that the cosmetic is dangerous and would utterly ruin the complexion. For small-pox lemon juice is also highly recommended, the patient being allowed to drink freely of lemonade, and to suck the clear juice if palatable. In all fevers the juice of lemons is of decided assistance.

A Vienna Crack

It is gratifying to know that all the expert "cranks" do not live in Washington or even in the United States. Some of them are evidently at large in Vienna, Austria. In that city recently, a man confessed the crime of murder, but subsequently became alarmed and concluded to escape, if possible by simulating insanity. He did not succeed very well except in convincing his keepers that he was simulating, and that he believed himself perfectly sane. The experts after examining him, however, came to the unanimous conclusion that he was insane, though he had "self-control and discernment enough to know the benefit of being considered insane and to feign insanity." Such a conclusion is none the less "cranky" in Austria than it would be in this country; but it was not followed by such serious results. The Austrian law sends a man to the insane asylum for life.

Chinese Printers

The Chinese compositor cannot sit at his case as our printer's do, but walks from one case to another constantly, as the characters needed cover such a large number that they cannot be put in anything like the space used in the English newspaper office. In setting up an ordinary piece of manuscript, the Chinese printer will waltz up and down the room for a few minutes and then go down stairs for a line of lower case. Then he takes the elevator and goes into the third story after some caps and out into the woodshed for a handful of astonishers. The successful Chinese compositor doesn't need to be so very intelligent, but he must be a good pedestrian. He may work and walk over the building a whole day and set up a stickful, and then half the people in the county couldn't read it after all.—Boomerang.

The largest amount of malt liquor manufactured by one establishment in the United States in 1881, was by a well known Milwaukee firm, which turned out over 350,000 barrels. In 1881-82 the heaviest production of beer was in New York State, the total being 5,535,594 barrels. Pennsylvania ranked second, with 1,686,714 barrels. There were manufactured in Ohio 1,566,451 barrels; in Wisconsin, 1,185,097 barrels; in Missouri, 1,017,446 barrels, and in Illinois, 1,004,789 barrels. New Jersey came next in order, with 783,931 barrels, and then California, with 424,486 barrels.

How Many Toes Has a Cat?

This was one of the questions asked a certain class in school No. 3, during examination week, and as simple as the question appears to be, none could answer it. In the emergency the principal, Mr. Brands, was applied to for a solution, and he also, with a good natured smile, gave it up, when one of the teacher determined not to be beaten by so simple a question lit upon the idea of sending out a delegation of boys to scour the neighborhood for a cat. Several boys went and having been successful, a returning board was appointed and the toes counted, when to the relief of all it was learned that a cat possesses eighteen toes, ten on the front feet and eight on the hind feet.—Peterson Press.

An Important Session

September coming the Oregon legislators will meet in regular session. A legislative body with more important duties to perform has never assembled in the state. From present appearances a new law will be framed, and the governor of the state will appoint a manager of the insane Asylum building, and the superintendent of the penitentiary as well, to be concurred in by the state senate. Such a law has been favorably spoken of by prominent parties, and we hope it will meet with the approval of Governor-elect Moody. Speculation as to the election of United States senators are numerous here at the capital. "Col. Sellers" is abroad, and asserts, in his usual confidential style: "There are millions in it." M. C. George is the last new candidate spoken of; but time will tell the tale.—Salem Statesman.

Book Agent Lemon, who was selling a work of antiquities, one day last week called on an old resident who was working in his garden, and after talking about an hour to the old man, who, meanwhile, was leaning upon his knee, suddenly noticed him grow pale and then stagger, when the agent stopped talking and caught the man, who fainted completely away and was carried into the house before he revived. This is not the first time a man has been talked almost to death by a book agent.

The most astonished man the clerk of the O'Brien county (Iowa) court ever saw was one who recently applied for a marriage license and nearly went crazy when he found that just twenty-four hours before another fellow had secured a license to marry the same girl.

Denver claims to be one of the largest brick making centers in the United States. It is estimated that 90,000,000 brick will be put in the walls this season there. Brick are sold at the yards for $5.60 to 86 per 1,000, and laid in the wall for $8.50 per 1,000.

An Indiana farmer went to law about two eggs. He paid his lawyer $50, lost thirteen days' time, paid 88 witness fees and expense, and then got beaten and had to foot $25 costs. That's one way of securing revenge.

The East Oregonian says: The railroad will soon enter Pendleton. The last bridge is now in course of erection, which is about a mile from town. The largest bridge, about twelve miles from here, is very nearly completed.

A Varied Performance

Many wonder how Parker's Ginger Tonic can perform such varied cures, thinking it essence of ginger, when in fact it is made from many valuable medicines which act beneficially on every diseased organ.

A LETTER FROM GERMANY.

Very esteemed sir:
The praise your Liver Pills have called forth here is wonderful. After taking one and a half boxes of your genuine DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS, I have entirely recovered from my four years suffering. All who know me wonder how I, who, for so many years, had no appetite and could not sleep for headaches, which in my side, and general stomach complaint, could have recovered.

BEWARE OF IMITATION.

The genuine is never sugar coated. Every box has a red wax seal on the lid, with the inscription: McLANE'S Liver Pills. The genuine McLANE'S LIVER PILLS bear the signature of Dr. C. McLane and Fleming Bros., on the wrapper. Imitate every having the genuine DR. C. McLane Bros., of Pittsburgh, Pa., the market being full of imitations of the name McLane, spelled differently, but of same pronunciation.

Mothers! Mothers!! Mothers!!!

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with the excruciating pain of cutting teeth? If so, at once get a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately—depend upon it! There is no mistake about it. There is not a mother on earth who has ever used it, who will not tell you at once that it will regulate the bowels, and give rest to the mother, and relief and health to the child, operating like magic. It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. Sold everywhere, 25 cents a bottle.

By Universal Accord.

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS are the best of all purgatives for family use. They are the product of long, laborious, and successful chemical investigation, and their extensive use by physicians in their practice, and by all civilized nations, proves them the best and most effective purgative that medical science can devise. In intrinsic value and curative powers no other Pills can be compared with them, and every person, knowing their virtues, will employ them when needed. They act gently on the digestive apparatus, derangements of which they prevent and cure, if timely taken. They are the best and safest physic for children and weakened constitutions, where a mild and effectual cathartic is required.

Peruvina Bitters

The Count Cinchon was the Spanish Viceroy in Peru in 1639. The Countess, his wife, was prostrated by an intermitting fever, from which she was freed by the use of the native remedy, the Peruvian bark, or, as it was called in the language of the country, "Quinquina." Grateful for her recovery, she returned to Europe in 1652, she introduced the remedy in Spain, where it was known under various names, until Linnaeus called it Cinchona, in honor of the lady who had brought them that which was more precious than the gold of the Indies. To this day, after a lapse of two hundred and fifty years, science has given nothing to take its place. It effectually cures a morbid appetite for stimulants, by restoring the natural tone of the stomach. It attacks excessive love of liquor as it does a fever, and destroys both alike. The powerful tonic virtue of the Cinchona is preserved in the Peruvian Bitters, which are as effective against malarial fever to-day as they were in the days of the Spanish Viceroy. We guarantee the ingredients of these bitters to be absolutely pure, and of the best known quality. A trial will satisfy you that this is the best biter in the world. The power of the bitters is in the eating, and we willingly abide this test. For sale by all druggists, grocers and liquor dealers. Order to: Leach & Co., agents for Astoria.

CELEBRATED

STOMACH BITTERS

Hostetter's Stomach Bitters extracts digestive with greater certainty and promptitude than any known remedy, and is a most genial invigorant, appetizer and aid to secretion. These are not empty assertions, as thousands of our countrymen and women who have experienced its effects are aware, but are backed up by irrefragable proofs. The Bitters also give a healthful stimulus to the urinary organs.
