J. F. MALLOAN, Editor

Our Northern Neighbors.

A writer in the "Resources of Oregon and Washington Territory," who has lately been down the Columbia and up the coast, gives some graphic descriptions of that magnificent stretch of country that lies to the north of this place.

"It is charmingly situated on the north shore of Baker's bay, with a fine southern exposure, almost perfectly sheltered from all harsh and disagreeable winds by thick forests of spruce, with an excellent reputation for healthfulness, and remarkable evenness of temperature.

This body of water, most appropriately named, embraces at high tide a surface area estimated at eighty square miles, about one half of which is laid bare at low tide. The entrance is five and a half miles wide from Leadbetter point on the south, to Lewis or Toke point on the north.

Further on is Long Beach, about five miles from the cape, and the beginning of the Shoalwater bay peninsula, a narrow strip of beach, upland meadow and tide land, varying in width from one to two miles in width, with an average elevation of about twelve feet above high water, and extending twenty miles north to the entrance of the bay.

THE male inhabitants of New South Wales are in a condition which calls for the sympathies of their civilized brethren on this side of the equator. They complain that they cannot get married on account of an impossibility to procure wives.
