J. F. HALLORAN.....Editor

The Land Grant.

ED. ASTORIAN:

THE Texas and Pacific railroad land grant has been reported as forfeited by the judiciary committee of the house of representatives. We begin to have hope that all of congress does not belong to the railroads. In Oregon we have a railroad grant exactly in the same position as the Texas and Pacific before its forfeiture. I allude to that portion of the Northern Pacific land grant which is situated between Wallula and Portland. It should be declared forfeited on the same grounds as the Texas and Pacific. The railroad between the points named has not been built by the North Pacific railroad company, but has been built by another corporation, the Oregon Railway & Navigation company. This latter corporation built most of the road in question without any hope of government aid, and before even friendly relations were established between it and the Northern Pacific.

This grant of land, that is, between Wallula and Portland, has now become very valuable. It is probably worth two millions of dollars. It is worth nearly as much—though not as much—as the unearned Astoria land grant. It embraces the alternate sections of land for a breadth of 80 miles by 200 miles in length. It has not been earned by the Northern Pacific nor by the Oregon Railway and Navigation company, and it should not be given to either. The time has expired on which the road should be built and it should now be thrown open to public settlement. CUMTUX.

LATE reports from the 2nd an Territory say that the war between the Creek Indians is ended for the present, and both the Sands and the Chicotah parties have been disarmed and disbanded. One of the Chicotah's cavalry police was killed, and the party visited a church where Chief Chicotah was and intended killing him, but were prevented by the congregation. When 450 of Chicotah's men had turned out to capture the assassins and had reached the vicinity where they were, the latter fled to the mountains, sending word to the Chicotahs to catch them if they could. This is almost impossible, as they are in the wildest and most remote part of the nation. Indian Agent Tufts is ready to use government troops to preserve the peace. It is feared that another outbreak may result if the Sands party come out of their place of concealment.
