The gulls are returning.
 Jack Powers was taken to the penitentiary last Monday.
 Sixty-three cents is paid for wheat at Walla Walla; eighty-six in Salem.
 The trip from Pendleton to Portland was made in thirteen hours last Sunday.
 The California State Republican convention meets next Wednesday at Sacramento.
 F. C. Young, of C. H. Cooper's establishment is about to open a large store in Seattle.
 About sixty-five miles of the O. & C. extension will be finished this year.—Oregonian.
 Jacob Halstead, a New Tacoma pioneer, died of heart disease at that place last Monday.
 Eleven million dollars worth of fish are annually caught on the shores of the Pacific coast.
 Gov. Thayer has offered $1,000 reward for the apprehension of the murderer of Mrs. Petch.
 The funeral of the late Thos. Jones took place under Masonic auspices yesterday afternoon.
 Whooping cough is what troubles the juvenile Astorians now-a-days. They will all get over it in time to get to school a week from next Monday.
 The ladies of Grace church will give a social and entertainment at Liberty Hall next Friday evening and confidently anticipate a very pleasant evening. Refreshments will be served.
 A movement is being made looking to the permanent establishment of an Episcopal minister at Grace church. It is a worthy enterprise and will doubtless be successfully accomplished.
 By an almost unanimous vote the members of the Baptist church at Portland have refused to accept the resignation of their pastor, J. A. Gray, and he accordingly goes on with his ministry.
 The Washington territory Republican convention meets on the 29th prox. It is pretty well settled that Brents, the present incumbent, will receive the nomination for congressional delegate.
 The usual skirmishing is going on between the English and Egyptian troops. There seems to be a good deal of fighting with the mouth, but no one hurt very badly since Alexandria was pillaged.
 The Puget Sound Argus, published at Port Townsend, is a bright looking paper and is always new; its editor has some funny notions about the Chinese, but he only says what a good many people think.
 The steamer Yaquina will leave here for Yaquina and Coos Bay next Thursday or Friday. For freight or passage apply to Captain Hustler. The Newport people haven't a pound of flour, and must wait till the Yaquina gets there.
 The Washington Territory Democratic convention will be held at Vancouver on the 11th of next October, to nominate a congressional candidate, Pacific, Wahiakum and Chehalis counties have each two delegates to the convention.
 The loud noise that startled Court and Jefferson street residents at an early hour yesterday morning was occasioned by the falling of some side staging by the Broenser hotel, on which was one hundred and fifty tons of sand and some lath. About $500 will repair all damage.

A New Road.

Messrs. Seeley and brother have gone out to cut a good passable trail from Roe's, on the Nehalem, through to the upper part of the north Nehalem. This trail will open up a vast amount of good country heretofore inaccessible, on the north fork of the Nehalem. We are reliably informed that hundreds of settlers will be able to find good homes in the country referred to. It is well adapted for stock raising and small farming, and is near the largest of the coal veins. The trail will go through the "Arndt pass," which is said to be only 650 feet above the tide water level. The people of Astoria have very generously subscribed the money necessary to cut this trail.

St. Helen's Bar.

This afternoon the steamer Walla Walla will go down to St. Helens to engage in the work of cutting a channel through the bar at that place. The steamer Emma Hayward and a barge will go down to-morrow with four anchors, and the cables of the ships Coluna and Alden Besse. These crafts will act as tenders to the Walla Walla, and will carry a force of 25 or 30 men to assist in moving the anchors, etc., when necessary. Work will be commenced at the upper end of the bar. The steamer will be anchored there, and cables will be extended from her bow on each side 600 feet astern, to each of which three anchors will be attached, which it is expected will hold the ship when her propeller is put in motion. These groups of anchors will be placed a considerable distance apart to allow of the stern of the steamer being swung to the right and left so as to cut a channel 100 feet in width. As part of the channel is cut she will be backed down by taking in the cables, and when necessary the anchors will be moved further down stream. The length of the channel to be cut is 1200 feet. The water is at present 18 feet in depth. It is expected that the work will be completed in three or four days.—Standard, 22.

"Just for Fun."

Some men have a peculiar idea of fun. Among them may be reckoned Engenbertsen, a sailor who recently arrived on the J. W. Marr; last Saturday he said he felt "sick," and wanted to go to the hospital; the necessary permit having been granted, he disappeared, and on Monday afternoon he walked into that institution and lay down in one of the wards. Upon examining him a bullet hole was found just below and to the left of the heart. It transpired that on Monday afternoon he bought a pistol and going out on Main street hill attempted to shoot himself, "just for fun." When he first went to the hospital nothing could be got out of him, and it was thought another tragedy had been enacted, but yesterday he grew more communicative and said that he had done the shooting himself. The strange part of it is his claim that it was "fun," and makes it manifest that the unfortunate man is deranged. The wound is a very dangerous one; the bullet is still in his body, and the result may be fatal.

—Classen & Oerkwitz have bought the branch Candy store next to Stevens & Co's book store, and will hereafter run both places. Fresh candy always on hand.

What is nicer on a warm day than a dish of that exquisitely flavored ice cream that Frank Fabre makes?

—For the genuine J. H. Cutter old Bourbon, and the best of wines, liquors and San Francisco beer, call at the Gem opposite the bell tower, and see Campbell.

About Thrones.

From the papers it seems that King Kalakaua has recently ordered of a Boston house a new throne for his sitting room. Thrones come high, but if a man is in the king business he has to have them. It seems to a man who don't know much about royalty that all this pride, pomp and circumstance must have its drawbacks. Suppose you are a king for instance, and after you have turned the cut out of the back-door of the palace, and removed your ermine robe, and laid it on a chair, and unbuttoned your royal suspenders, and hung your crown on the bed post, and blown out the gas, you happen to think that you haven't wound up the royal clock. You feel your way into the sitting room and put your eye out with a scepter somewhere, trying to find the mantle, and then fall head over appetite over a marble throne. It would make a man mad, even if it made the blood of a royal family flow through his nose. Kings are only mortal, and it occurs to us that when a kingly snowdrift who has descended from the royal galloos away back, busts his nose on a hump-backed throne and jams a bass-wood scepter into his eye, he is going to use some harsh terms. In this country all men are sovereigns. Some of the royal family of America sit on a pale-blue plush le-ta-tele, and others sit on the floor and permit their feet to dangle, but we are all princes or kings in our own right. We can call the President of the United States hard names if we feel like it, and we are far enough away, and we belong to the other party. Americans are free to tread their native heath and criticize anybody they want to, but very few of them wear thrones. A large fifteen-hundred pound throne would be a cumbersome thing to ship over the U. P. road whenever a free-born American citizen moved from Omaha to Green river. That's why so few of us use them. No American is going to make himself bald headed wearing a sheet iron crown, with two and a half's worth of jewels on it, unless there's money in it. He prefers to just wag along without attracting attention so far as possible, and accumulate as much coin as he can. Still, the day may come when no family will feel perfectly comfortable with out an eighty-six dollar throne in the house. A venerated throne in the sitting room, with cracker crumbs and bread and butter in the seat, would be of very little comfort to a man with democratic tastes. It would savor too much of an effete monarchy, and chill the warm glow of patriotic pride which every true American feels in the individual and universal freedom peculiar to our institutions. Besides, it would be, as we say, a very awkward thing to move about, and a poor thing to mortgage. It would hurt the family pride to mortgage the dear old throne, or to sell it to a second hand furniture dealer. That is why we say that free-born American sovereigns had better plug along with the old style of chair, and thus give royalty in this country a black eye.—Boomerang.

Peruvian Bitters.

Chinchona Rubra.
 The Count Cincelion was the Spanish Viceroy in Peru in 1620. The Countess, his wife, was prostrated by an intermittent fever, from which she was freed by the use of the native remedy, the Peruvian bark, or, as it was called in the language of the country, "Quinquina." Grateful for her recovery, on her return to Europe in 1622, she introduced the remedy in Spain, where it was known under various names, until Linnaeus called it Chinchona, in honor of the lady who had brought them that which was more precious than the gold of the Indies. To this day, after a lapse of two hundred and sixty years, science has given us nothing to take its place. It effectually cures a morbid appetite for stimulants, by restoring the natural tone of the stomach. It attacks excessive love of liquor as it does a fever, and destroys both alike. The powerful tonic virtue of the Chinchona is preserved in the Peruvian Bitters, which are as effective against malarial fever today as they were in the days of the old Spanish Viceroy. We guarantee the ingredients of these Bitters to be absolutely pure, and of the best known quality. A trial will satisfy you that this is the best bitter in the world. "The proof of the pudding is in the eating," and we willingly abide this test, for sale by all druggists, grocers, and liquor dealers. Order of R. Loeb & Co., agents for Astoria.
