The Seattle Post-Intelligencer reports that Geo. Myers, who left here a few days ago, brought with him forty cannery hands from the Columbia river, and will commence operations across the bay at once. A large force of Italians and Indians will do the catching, while the canning is principally done by Chinamen, under the supervision of white men.

Astoria's Commerce.

On the 24th the American ship Elwell cleared from this port for Liverpool with a cargo worth $300,000, nearly all of which was a product of Astoria. Yesterday two more vesels cleared from this port; the British bark Glengarry, carrying a cargo worth $128,995.30, of which $126,137.80 was loaded here, and the Wallaceton, which has been lying in the stream for some time, and portati which is now ready for sea. This vessel carries out the most valuable cargo that ever left a Pacific coast por: in a sailing vessel. It is worth in the Columbia river $390,112, -- $378,000 of this amount represents Asioria's quota. The three vessels take out sudmon flour and wheat to the value lands, still retains the negatives taken at Astoria last year, and will furnish duplicates from them on short notice. Cut this out and show it to the individual that poohpools at the idea that the Columbia bar should be improved.
