Coast Fisheries.

At a recent meeting of the San Francisco Academy of Sciences, Dr. W. F. Dall, of the U. S. Coast Survey expedition, related some of his experiences and discoveries in the Arctic regions, and stated that he, in company with Mr. Bean, had left the city one month later than usual last spring, but owing to favorable winds they had been able to sail over a larger extent of surface than they had ever before done, their journey being nearly 12,000 miles in length. They had sailed over the North Pacific into the southern part of the Arctic ocean. They had found the fishing to be similar on both the American and Asiatic side. A large number of California fish had been found north of Sitka, and the codfish and halibut were numerous, in fact, they formed a large part of the food they had in those regions. Among the important things which they investigated was the determination as to whether there were different species of salmon, or whether all salmon were of the same species in different grades of development. They found the Columbia river salmon throughout all sections of Alaska, and at first came to the conclusion that all the salmon belonged to the same species, but they finally found salmon which had to be classed as a different species; for instance the king salmon, which frequently weigh 100 pounds, and the hump-back salmon. A large number of trout were found on both sides. The common Pacific brook-trout was found on the Asiatic side and have been caught in salt water. After examination in the merits of the cod and halibut, Dr. Bean became convinced that the Pacific cod was the same as the Atlantic, and there was no reason why the Pacific cod fisheries might not become as important as the Atlantic.

The legislature that assembled in the capitol building yesterday have a good deal of work to do. First in order, of course, will be the election of U. S. senator. Then begins the real business of the session. The school law is to be amended, the system of raising revenue will be changed, and important changes will be made in the assessment law. This is generally conceded to be a necessity. The proper representation of Clatsop county is a matter that might with great propriety be attended to. A registry law to prevent trickery at elections is also one of the necessities. Prohibition and woman suffrage are two of the things to which the attention of the legislature will be called.

The jury in the star route trial has disagreed, and been remanded to the jury room for argument. It is positively stated that four of the twelve are bribed to "hang," and so have the case go over.

AUCTION SALE.

Friday, September 15, 11 A. M.
On the Premises.

700 Acres! Dairy or Stock Farm.

and Valuable Timber Land.

50 Dairy Cows, 2 Three-quarter Jersey Bulls, 2 Horses,
1 Yoke Work Oxen, 2 Milk Wagons, Farm and Dairy Implements and Furniture, 50 tons Hay.

Instructed by Mr. J. F. Barrows, I will sell as above, in sections or as a whole, the above Valuable Property.

It is situated on Lewis and Clark's River, 7 miles south of Astoria, and 25 miles from Clatsop beach. There is a good steamboat landing which is accessible to any of the U. S. & C. O's river steamboats. About half of the 700 acres is tide land, well bridged, on which cattle keep fat the year round. The other half, level timber land, and about 200 acres in tame grass. Thousands of cords of hemlock, fir and spruce can be cut, worth two dollars and a half at the landing to which there is a good wagon road from all points. Every cord cut finds a ready market. In addition, there is any quantity of mill lumber and good piles. Good dwelling house, barn, and necessary outbuildings, with an orchard of 10 or 12 acres, containing almost all kinds of fruit bearing trees, etc., etc. This desirable property has a frontage of two miles on the river bank, and is admirably adapted for settlement by a company desiring to colonize, as it is large enough to divide into several farms and homesteads. The contemplated bridge between Astoria and Clatsop plains connects on this property.

All the Live Stock and personal property will be sold separately to the highest bidder, for cash. Terms of payment for the land will be announced at sale.

A Steamer will be ready of morning at sale to convey intending buyers to and from the Sale, free of charge.

E. C. HOLDEN, Auctioneer, Astoria.
