

The Daily Astorian

ASTORIA, OREGON: SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 17, 1882

Mr. C. Leinenweber is in the city.

The Umattilla arrived in from San Francisco yesterday.

Regular service at Grace Church to-day, Rev. M. D. Wilson officiating.

C. H. Cooper goes below on tomorrow's steamer to lay in a stock of fall goods.

Rev. W. T. Chapman will conduct the Y. M. C. A. services this afternoon.

The military road is slashed half way from the bridge on the Wallis to Cam's farm.

The Washington territory Republican convention meets at Vancouver next Wednesday.

E. P. Hoff is busy turning out first-class boats. He made forty-two boats last season.

The Astoria Packing Co.'s cannery near the sea side will be ready for fish this week.

Levi Knott bought 80 acres near Albina last year, for $4,800, and sold it last week for $24,000.

The Afton arrived down yesterday morning and took on 1,060 sacks wheat. She is ready for sea.

A. T. Brakke goes to Salem tomorrow morning, intending to be on hand at the opening of the fair.

Presbyterian church—Preaching by the pastor at 11 A. M. No evening service. Sunday school at noon.

Preaching in the M. E. church at 11 A. M., and 7:30 P. M., Sunday school at 12. Rev. W. T. Chapman officiating.

In the late international shooting match at Creedmoor, the English won the prize, the score standing, British 1975, Americans 1805.

The British bark Alumina, Jones master, which sailed from Antwerp, March 10th, and from San Diego August 19th, arrived yesterday.

The steamer Queen of the Pacific is due to-morrow morning from San Francisco. She will doubtless be an object of interest when she arrives.

Congregational church—Preaching at 11 A. M., and lecture to young people at 7:30 P. M., by the pastor, T. W. Walters. Sunday school at noon.

Portland exporters say that $1.50 per cental is the highest price they can afford to pay for wheat this fall. Willamette mills are the heaviest buyers so far.

The cannery at Hobsonville on Tillamook bay is in operation; about twenty-five boats are fishing in the bay and fish are also transported by the beach road from the Nehalem. The fish are large and of good quality.

Those who were present at the late Presbyterian entertainment and heard Miss Katie Flavel's singing, say that her voice, which is naturally beautiful and has been wonderfully cultivated under the direction of able artists, shows a brilliancy and power that is phenomenal.

The Gen. Mil. leaves next Saturday for Gray's harbor. This vessel is proving herself a fine sea-going craft. On her last trip from Tillamook she crossed the bar at its roughest and came into the Columbia when the crossing was anything but smooth.

We acknowledge a pleasant call from Rev. W. T. Chapman, the pastor of the M. E. church. Mr. Chapman expresses himself as greatly pleased with his new field of missionary labor. He is a gentleman who will be a welcome acquisition to our community. His family arrived last week.

The R. R. surveyors are at Columbia City. It is thought that the R. R. route will go down from Lemont's prairie through Hezekiah's pond, and run the whole front of Columbia City. It is believed by many that the crossing of the Columbia will be at Columbia City over to Maxwell's point, Columbia.

The board of visiting engineers were in session at the rooms yesterday. They heard the statements of pilots and others whom they requested to relate their experience and knowledge concerning the bar. The gentlemen composing the board evince a desire to make a thorough investigation and come into possession of actual facts concerning the present state of affairs and the bar that is such a hindrance to our commercial prosperity.

To Patrons of the Public Schools.

Your attention is called to the following rules to which pupils must conform:

Rule 1. Pupils shall be present at the opening of each session. Any pupil who shall be absent four half-days, or tardy four times in any four consecutive weeks, except in case of actual sickness in the family, may be suspended from school by the principal.

Rule 2. Pupils must bring written excuses from their parents or guardians, in all cases of absence or tardiness, stating the reasons for the same. They shall not leave their respective schools during school hours, without first presenting a written request from their parents or guardians.

Nothing more seriously interferes with the successful working of a school than the irregular attendance of pupils. No pupil who is not punctual can be expected to make satisfactory advancement, nor has any pupil a right to thus retard the progress of his or her class. "The school should be used—not abused."

The above, or similar rules are employed by the best schools in every state, and patrons cannot more effectively promote the welfare of the schools than by extending their hearty co-operation.

Very respectfully, T. R. COON, Principal. School District, No. 1, Astoria September 16, 1882.

Class Enrollment.

The second week in district No. 1, closed with 202 pupils enrolled, distributed as follows:

Card of Thanks.

The ladies of the Presbyterian church take this method of acknowledging most hearty co-operation on the part of the public generally in the success of their late entertainment. Thanks are tendered to all who helped with money or personal exertions in many cases with both.

A. F. & A. M. Funeral Notice.

Members of Temple Lodge No. 7, and sojourning brethren in good standing are requested to assemble at Masonic Hall, at 1:30 P. M. to-day, 17th inst., for the purpose of attending the funeral of our deceased brother Andrew Johnson. By order W. M. E. C. Holden, secretary.

Notice.

"Why, bless my stars," said Mr. Wm. G. Dennison of South Tenth street, Philadelphia, Pa., "After bathing my limbs thoroughly with St. Jacob's Oil, I was relieved of the pain in my rheumatic joint and was soon well. It cured me every time."

A sure means of becoming useful and popular, in this section at least, is to keep St. Jacob's Oil on hand. Then, when people are seized with rheumatism or neuralgia, they use your remedy, get well, praise you and buy some for future use.

A Missouri Maiden's Mysterious Message to Her Oregon Orlando.

How an Investment of One Dollar Netted a Cool Million to a lucky Portlander.

BOTTLED BLISS.

Acertain young gentleman residing on Seventh street, and who is well-known in business and society circles of Portland, is to-day the happiest man in the State of Oregon. Yes, he is, probably, the happiest man in the United States; and the proverbial felicity of the mammoth sandowner is nowhere, so to speak, when compared with the joy of our fortunate young friend. The fact of the matter is, the gentleman in question has "struck it rich," as they say down in the mines. He has realized a cool million and boundless happiness by the investment of a single dollar.

The story of his brilliant good fortune, which is, as yet, unknown, save to a few immediate friends, is briefly told as follows: [We will not at this time mention names of the parties concerned. All will shortly be known.] During the latter part of last fall the young Portlander above referred to paid a visit to some friends in St. Louis, Mo. During his sojourn he met one night at a grand ball at the Lindell hotel, one of the reigning belles of the sunny South, whom he met to love. The young lady was charming, accomplished and beautiful—the only daughter of millionaire parents. The Oregonian's heart went "pit-a-pat," and his brain went "whirligig." It was a genuine case of love at first sight and the young man's affections were reciprocated.

He was invited to the lady's beautiful home near the park. The father was dead. The mother, also, opposed the union of the two fond hearts that beat like one. Tears, idle tears! The serious opposition of the mother was based upon the fact that her daughter's health had been enfeebled by frequent attacks of chronic rheumatism, which latter resisted the treatment of the most skilled physicians of the South and North. The young man begged, implored, besought, but all in vain. At last the stern parent so far relented as to promise her consent to the marriage as soon as her daughter should be entirely cured of her continually occurring painful trouble. Her case had been pronounced hopeless by the doctors, and was so regarded by friends; still the lover hoped, he procured at the drug emporium of Messrs. Meyer Brothers & Co., St. Louis, two bottles of the Great German Remedy, about which so much is now being said and written. These he left with his sweetheart before departing for home where he went to spend the holidays. This was about two weeks ago. "If I should be cured, George," remarked the unhappy girl on bidding her lover farewell. "I'll send you a kiss and then I'll be yours forever." As may be imagined "George" returned to the city with a heart as heavy as the Columbia river's salmon shipments. However sanguine may have been his hopes, the reader will readily understand that the young man was not happy. In fact he, like his far-away sweetheart was very unhappy. When therefor a telegraph messenger called at the Seventh street residence early last Sunday morning (New Year's day) with a despatch from St. Louis, the feelings of our friend and fellow citizen can be much better imagined than described.

But alas! for the mystery. Of unwritten history.

The telegram was from the rheumatic young lady, to be sure, but its meaning was a dark mystery. The message consisted of but three letters, namely: C. Y. K. In vain "George" tried to decipher their meaning. In vain did he tax his memory. As a last resort he visited the telegraph office, but there, too, no one seemed able to solve the mystery. The operator in charge suggested that a key to the cipher be requested of the sender of the dispatch. This was promptly done. At half-past six Sunday night, just as the first day of the new year was beginning to draw to a close, the answer came. It read as follows: LINDLELL HOTEL, ST. LOUIS, MO., January 1, 1882.

To GEORGE—No. —SEVENTH ST., PORTLAND, OREGON.—Here C. Y. K. means "Consider Yourself Kissed." Thanks to your thoughtful gift of St. Jacob's Oil, I am entirely cured. Mamma says: "Take George and be happy." Come and we will set the day and drink to the health of St. Jacob. JULIA.

To say that this message made "George" the happiest man in Oregon, is, as above stated, drawing it mild. As he dropped in at the Esmond late last night with a few personal friends, he certainly looked and felt as though he would not exchange his recently won prize or even that mysterious cypher dispatch for the entire North West. All appeared to feel "extra-dry" and although "Mum" was the word. The reporter was enabled to "catch on," as it were, to that C. Y. K. telegram, which, by the way, probably conveyed the most valuable kiss that was ever transmitted over the wires of this or any other country.

"It is an honest fact."

The purity and elegant perfume of Parker's Hair Balm explain the popularity of this reliable restorative.

Peruvian Bitters.

Cinchona Bitters. The Count Cinchona was the Spanish Viceroy in Peru in 1620. The Countess, his wife, was prostrated by an intermittent fever, from which she was freed by the use of the native remedy, the Peruvian bark, or, as it was called in the language of the country, "Quinquina." Grateful for her recovery, on her return to Europe in 1622, she introduced the remedy in Spain, where it was known under various names, until Linnaeus called it Cinchona, in honor of the lady who had brought them that which was more precious than the gold of the Incas.

To this day, after a lapse of two hundred and fifty years, science has given us nothing to take its place. It effectually cures a morbid appetite for stimulants, by restoring the natural tone of the stomach. It attacks excessive love of liquor as it does a fever, and destroys both alike. The powerful tonic virtue of the Cinchona is preserved in the Peruvian Bitters, which are as effective against malarial fever today as they were in the days of the old Spanish Viceroys. We guarantee the ingredients of these bitters to be absolutely pure, and of the best known quality. A trial will satisfy you that this is the best bitter in the world. "The proof of the pudding is in the eating," and we will gladly abide this test. For sale by all druggists, grocers and liquor dealers. Order of: Loeb & Co., agents for Astoria.
