Services in all the city churches to-day at the usual hour.

Carl Adler returned yesterday from a business visit to the metropolis.

Rev. J. McCormac will hold divine service on board the ship Nebo, at 4 P. M.

F. C. Reed went out on the Queen yesterday for a sixty days' visit to his home "way down in Maine."

N. Haas, of Salem, killed himself, last Friday evening, preferring death to yielding to the temptation to drink.

J. H. Mitchell, smiling and debonaire, was among the outward bound passengers on the Queen of the Pacific yesterday.

J. M. Spencer, an employe of the O. R. & N. Co., fell from a gangway on the Queen of the Pacific, last Friday, and was fatally injured.

Those rookeries at the southeast corner of Main and Chenamus street are to be torn down, and handsome brick buildings erected by Capt. Flavel.

The great tides of the last forty-eight hours have brought down at the obb an unusual quantity of drift wood which floats in immense masses in the channel.

From Rand, McNally and Co., Chicago, Ills., we are in receipt of an indexed county and township map of Oregon, which is in convenient shape, and well gotten up.

The Astoria arrived up from the forts yesterday on time. The Canby will receive a thorough overhauling, and until such time as she is completed the Astoria will take her place.

The rain came down yesterday in a perpendicular and business-like manner, and any danger of combustion, spontaneous or otherwise was reduced to the lowest maximum of probability.

Dr. Jno. A. Child, of Portland, is at the Occident. He is making official visits to the several lodges of A. O. U. W., of which he is G. M., for this northwest coast. He will, in his official capacity, visit the lodges at this place during the week.

A pleasant social gathering at Pythian Hall last Friday evening inaugurated a series of entertainments that will be a desirable feature of Astoria society this winter. It is a step in the right direction, and will doubtless be successfully kept up.

In the list of tax payers in yesterday's issue, "M. Wright," should read Megler & Wright; Wetherbee & Thome's assessment should be $7,600, instead of $43,817; West Packing Co., $11,300, instead of $7,600, and John West, $43,817, instead of $11,300.

Our Cape Hancock correspondent writes: "Game is coming in plentifully from Shoalwater bay; one man brought in 250 pounds of geese and ducks to-day to Ilwaco. The sloop Mary H was driven ashore on the Ilwaco beach yesterday during a blow and was considerably damaged. There is a heavy surf on Chinook and a break across Sand Island."

The land department of the O. & C. Railroad company, which corporation has claimed the imaginary title to "The Astoria Land Grant," has notified its agent at this place that having concluded to discontinue the execution of contracts for the sale of the unearned lands, no more such contracts will be made. This means that they will either build the railroad or do something else.

An honest boy wanted; who is not afraid of work. Apply at Carl Adler's.

It is worth seeing. What? Those goods at Carl Adler's.

If you want something really fine go to Carl Adler's.

Cape Hancock Record.

Oct. 18.—10 A. M.—Raining hard; foggy; wind S. E., blowing hard; bar moderating. Three vessels outside last evening. In port: Brenham, Pioneer and bark Portland.

The Debating Society.

ED. ASTORIAN: The Astoria Literary Society met at Y. M. C. A. Hall on Friday evening October 27th, many of the best citizens of Astoria enrolling themselves as members. A constitution and by-laws were adopted and the following officers elected: President, F. D. Winton; vice-presidents—Mrs. I. E. Parker, C. A. Hansen, G. F. Parker; secretary, T. R. Coon; treasurer, Mrs. E. McGreggor; councilors—J. McCormac, E. Goodall, Miss Carrie Field; doorkeeper, S. M. Cole.

Miss Emma Holden read a selection which was evidently appreciated.

The following resolution was chosen for debate at the next meeting. Resolved, "That labor unions tend to anarchy." J. McCormac assisted by Mrs. I. E. Parker, will affirm, and C. A. Hansen assisted by N. E. Goodall, will argue on the negative.

Miss Carrie Field and Mr. G. F. Parker were appointed to furnish selections for the next evening's entertainment.

The society is already a success, and the next meeting will be held at the same place next Friday evening at 8 o'clock.

A Good Number.

The North American Review for November presents an unusually diversified table of contents. "English views of Free Trade," by the Hon. John Welsh, of Philadelphia, is a clear and forcible exposition of the difference between the economic situation of England and that of the United States, and of the considerations which make free trade imperative for the former country, if she would retain her present position as the world's workshop.

Joseph Neilson, chief judge of the Brooklyn city court, writes of "Disorder in Court Rooms," a subject of profound interest to good citizens at all times, and more especially now in view of certain recent occurrences. The obiter dicta of the learned author touching the Guiteau trial and the Lawson-Gray incident at Dublin, are characterized by the best judicial temper.

Dr. Wm. A. Hammond, ex-surgeon-general of the United States Army, offers "A Problem for Sociologists," the problem being to determine the degree of responsibility before the criminal law, of persons affected by certain forms of insanity. "The Industrial Value of Woman," by Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, is a very able reply to an article recently published on "Woman's Work and Woman's Wages."

"Advantages of the Jury System," by Dwight Foster, formerly a Justice of the Massachusetts supreme court, will command the attention of every thoughtful citizen, being a grave and learned defense of an institution that it is becoming the fashion to belittle and decry. The remaining articles are, "Safety in Theaters," by Steele Mackaye, the distinguished actor and theatrical manager; "The Pretensions of Journalism," by Rev. Geo. T. Rider; and a symposium on "Suppression of Vice," by Anthony Comstock, O. B. Frothingham and Rev. J. M. Buckley.

On the 27th inst., a young man named James Kelley, who was logging near John Day's river, while crossing that stream in a skiff, lost his balance and fell out of the boat, being almost instantly drowned. An inquest was held at the coroner's rooms last evening, from where the funeral will take place at two o'clock, to-day.

Senator Canfield, who has been in public life in Illinois for nearly a quarter of a century, and who dropped in yesterday on his way home from a protracted visit in this section of the union, says we may look for a large immigration in the spring; that "folks back there don't realize what a country this is till they come and see it." There's plenty room here for half a million from the Mississippi valley.

Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" has become so thoroughly established in public favor that were it not for the forgetfulness of people it would not be necessary to call attention to its power to cure consumption, which is scrofula of the lungs, and other blood diseases, as eruptions, blotches, pimples, ulcers, and "liver complaint."

Wiley B. Allen, the popular music dealer of Portland, is in the city. Mr. Allen has by far the largest stock of sheet music on the northwest coast, and has built up a fine trade in the metropolis. All orders by mail filled promptly.

Carl Adler arrived from San Francisco yesterday with the largest and finest stock of goods ever brought to Astoria. Will begin opening to-morrow.

Old Times.

On yesterday's steamer there was a large party of Catholic clergymen and sisters of charity, who have come to Oregon to establish schools and churches. C. E. Pickett, in a book soon to be published, gives some reminiscences of the arrival of Catholic missionaries in Oregon in early days. He says:

"In July, 1844, I was stopping with two old friends at Astoria—Colonel McClure, who had taken up a 640-acre pre-emption claim (the Oregon pioneer allotment), on which the lower and main portion of that town is built, and J. M. Shively, pre-emptor of the adjoining claim fronting the river above, including the site of Astor's trading post, called by the Hudson Bay company, Fort George, after the war of 1812 had caused its surrender to the British. Shively still lives there, and retains, unlike nearly all the defrauded and impoverished native and pioneer Californians, a remnant of his poverty."

Late in the afternoon of the first day of that month, Shively and I left McClure's house in the light to go to his cabin, in the forest on the upper portion of his claim. As we went out in the stream where the mouth of the river could be seen, we observed a vessel coming over the bar. Since neither of the semi-annual arriving Hudson Bay company's vessels, nor the annual one belonging to Cushing & Co. of Boston (traders to Oregon) was then due, and it being a rare event for any other ship to put into the then solitude of that river, we concluded it to be a whaler. Knowing the dangerous nature of the entrance, we watched the vessel's course with much solicitude. The outlet over the bar was then so narrow that it now is, which, after being crossed, the channel ran at right angles north toward Cape Disappointment and into Baker's bay. But the vessel did not thus alter its course, appearing to have come to anchor, or else steering straight toward us. Arriving at our landing, Shively set up the canoe paddle in a line to sight whether there was any divergence, but having watched till nightfall without perceiving the least, we concluded she must be aground, and as the sails were still set, supposed that these were being used to wear her off the sand spit. We slept little that night, thinking that the craft was inevitably wrecked. Rolling out of our blankets early next morning and hastily preparing and eating our breakfast of salmon, bread, potatoes and yarb tea, we started afoot over the hills to get the Indians at the village to go with their large canoes to the rescue of the supposed wrecked mariners. On reaching the summit, behold! there was the ship just coming to anchor in front of Fort George. Hastening down, I got a canoe and was the first person to go aboard. On reaching the deck I was met by the captain, who introduced me to the famous Catholic missionary, Father de Smet, who has been titled by some the "Las Casas of North America," and his reinforcement of fathers and sisters whom he had gone to Europe to fetch out. These were the first Catholic sisters to arrive on the Pacific coast. Informing the party of our solicitude regarding their unusual entrance of the river, and inquiring as to the way they got in, the captain informed that having neither chart nor pilot, after crossing the bar he steered straight on, sending a boat ahead to heave the lead, and had found deep water all the way up, having anchored for the night near Point Adams. Thus was discovered the south channel of the river, which was used as the preferable one for a number of years."

In the case of the two Chinese who recently arrived on the Patrician, and who were arrested in Portland, Judge Deady has decided that a person on board of a vessel of the United States or any one of them is in contemplation of law within the territory and jurisdiction of the United States and therefore a Chinese laborer who shipped on an American vessel, at London, prior to the passage of the act aforesaid and continued on her until her arrival in the United States although after the expiration of the 90 days next following the passage of said act, is entitled to reside therein.
