The Quids Management to the Dead

The recent ordination by the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland, of Rev. J. M. White, to a ministry in the Free Church of Scotland, will be an event of great interest to thoughtful persons in this country. The new minister of the church is one of the most distinguished men of his generation, and his preaching and teaching will be highly regarded by all who know him. He is a man of great learning and of the highest integrity, and his influence will be felt in all parts of the church.

A political candidate promises the new minister a seat on the council, and the different friends, and after the election given to it, to be in a position to control the words to express the feelings of the people.

If a man is wise enough to keep to the right course through the waters, no man will ever know all the secrets of the sea. A prudent man finds himself within a hundred miles of the shore, when he is safe, and he knows that he is safe. He who is wise enough to take care of himself, and who is prudent enough to know when he is safe, will never be in danger.
