

The Daily Astorian.
 ASTORIA, OREGON.
 SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 11, 1882.
 J. F. HALLORAN, Editor.
 AS IT IS.

A CORRESPONDENT of the Bulletin who has been traveling in Oregon and Washington Territory, speaking of the increased facilities for communication, says: "Since the management of the Northern Pacific passed into the hands of the Villard combination the travel and traffic between Portland, Puget Sound and Victoria via rail has very materially increased. This is due largely to the increased accommodations offered travelers on the Sound and across to Victoria. The steamer makes three trips per week now between Tacoma and Victoria, while previously she made only one. Between all ports on the Sound, daily trips are made. You will recollect, no doubt, that Villard bought these steamers a year or two ago from Captain Starr. In fact there is very little in this part of the country in the way of transportation business that is not owned by the Villard interest. It is quite as omnipresent here as is the Stanford combination in California. But far more popular, or rather far less unpopular. This doubtless arises from the fact that they are continually making improvements, anticipating the wants of trade, developing the country in all directions, offering their land at extremely low prices to actual settlers, spending vast sums of money, hiring every laborer who is willing to work and paying him good wages for his services, purchasing largely from local traders and merchants—in a word, they are everybody's customer. Everybody is busy, is making money, is therefore happy, and consequently not disposed to growl. But when all these improvements are completed; when, instead of being a money spender, they become a money gatherer, instead of a customer a competitor, instead of bringing money from New York to Oregon they take it from Oregon to New York, then I imagine Mr. Villard and his associates will fully realize that the public is unreasonable, and grateful only for favors to be received, and that they will be no more popular in Oregon than Leland Stanford and his associates are in California."

The "Tidal Wave."
 A NEW YORK despatch says: The extent of the Democratic victory is not yet told. Cleveland's majority in the state will reach the enormous total of a hundred and ninety thousand, utterly unprecedented in the history of the country. Counties that never went Democratic since the Republican party was organized, now have gone heavily for Cleveland. But there is something behind this, for notwithstanding Cleveland's great majority he has not received so many polls as Hancock had in 1880, when the latter was beaten by 21,000. The fact is, Republicans either stayed at home or voted for Cleveland. The rebuke to the administration is everywhere considered complete and terrible.

In the 38th congress the Democrats will control the house of representatives by a majority of 71, the figures being, Republicans 227, Democrats 198. The state will be represented in the next congress by 21 Democrats and 13 Republicans, a Democratic gain of 8. The assembly will consist of 85 Democrats and 45 Republicans, thus giving the Democrats a majority of 42 in the lower house. The senate stands 17 Democrats to 17 Republicans.

The Liverpool Shipping Telegraph, referring to the supposed line of steamers between San Francisco and Liverpool, says: "A steamship line will shortly ply between San Francisco and this port, and it is fully expected that it will divert some of the traffic of the Southern Pacific. One iron steamer of 3800 tons, destined for this service, has already been launched at Middlesborough, and another is being built. The line is backed by an English syndicate representing a million sterling."

The London Saturday Review compresses a volume into a single line, where speaking of England, it says, "We owe our free trade to geography."

The Planter's company have been holding the annual meeting in Honolulu. They have made arrangements conjointly with the government to introduce a large number of immigrants. About 5,000 Japanese are expected in the next twelve months; also 2,000 Portuguese and 1,000 Germans. The government pays the passage of women and children. At the present rate of importation the custom receipts will be fully $500,000 a year. The exports from the kingdom during the twelve months ended Sept. 30 last, were a little over $17,000,000—or larger export in proportion to the population than that of any country in the world. The incoming sugar crop is now estimated at 150,000,000 pounds.
