It seemed certain to Mr. Thielsen that there was a movement of a tremendous mountain spur opposite this piece of road. The correspondent goes on to say: "It is a fact well known to all river men that above the Cascades where the river is tranquil the waters cover a submerged forest, whose trunks still stand with their projecting limbs to attest some wonderful phenomenon. It has been a query in the minds of all as to what convulsion of nature or process of time caused this overflow of waters. Over thirty years ago I saw the dead trunks standing beneath the waves, and the interest in this connection was increased by learning from the Indians that among their traditions was one that ages since the mountains rose precipitously at the river's side, and a great arch of stone spanned the river from shore to shore, and that their canoes passed under it. Tradition further says that in course of time a great earthquake threw down the arch and blocked the river, causing the cascades as we see them now. It is not often that Indian tradition is so specific in detail. As the records of the aborigines of this region are very transient, it is possible that this story rests on some fact of natural history of not very remote occurence. Joining tradition and speculations with the discoveries and deductions of science. we must conclude that some convulsion of nature has thrown great masses of rock into the stream sufficient to deaden its flow for eight miles above and to submerge the forests just above the rapids. Mr. Brazee, who has been engineer of the navigation company that owned the portage road around the falls, informs me that he has watched the movements of the mountain for twenty years, and that it is no myth."--Scientific American.

says that the terms "foreign fleet," applied to steamers plying between American and European ports, is to a certain extent a misnomer, American capital being embarked in British tonnage more largely than is generally known, adding: "Americans, especially New Yorkers, often have a vote in the management and share in the dividends, for they have a way of dodging the disabilities to which our national bunting subjects them at home and in foreign parts." There is much at is in the divisional for the parts."

The next season promises to be a good one for lumber interests. Advancing years, care, sickness, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition—all operate to turn the hair gray, and either of them inclines it to shed prenaturely. Ayres HARR Visors will restore faded or gray, light or red hair to a rich brown or deep black, as may be desired. It softens and cleanses the scalp, giving it a healthy action. It removes and cures dandruff and humors. By its use falling hair is checked, and a new growth will be produced in all cases where the follicles are not destroyed or the glands decayed. Its effects are beautifully shown on brashy, weak or sickly hair, on which a few applications will produce the gloss and freshness of youth. Harmless and sure in its operation, it is incomparable as a diressing, and is especially valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts. It contains neither oil nor dye, and will not soil or color white cambric; yet it lasts long on the hair, and keeps it firesh and vigorous.

this market, and are quoted at $1.65 in the New York market, with an upward tendency in price. A Chinese laborer walked iuto a commission store the other day and drew about seven thousand dollars in a lump. The proceeds on his hop crop on a few acres this year. An American farmer in one of the interior valleys sold his hop crop the other day for $40,000; he had that number of pounds. The hop men have "struck it rich" this parts of Oregon, Indians are eming hops, and game most of it away. They are cheap laborers, however, and quite as satisfactory hops for themselves rather than another, on the hop crop, it would be one of the most lucrative proin favor of hops.

The lumbermen have been coining money on this coast. This from Monterey Bay to Puget Sound. It has been true with some qualifications for about three years. The present year has been a remarkably prosperous one for the lumbermen. The prevailing rates have been from three to four dollars per thousand feet above the price which prevailed during the late depression. Besides the advance in price there has been the great advantage of quick sales. No waiting for purchasers. Cargoes have been sold to arrive, and others as soon as they came into port. No hunting for purchasers. There is a great deal of money in the country, and a great deal of building is going on in the interior. The export demand has also been greatly quickened. It looks as though the demand would not The American Ship, a journal fall off for some time to come. devoted to the shipping interests, The next season promises to be a

Marriage in Genoa-

Marriage brokers are quite important business men in Genoa. They have pocket-books filled with the names of the marriageable years ago in making the stars and girls of the different classes, with notes of their figures, personal attraction, fortunes, etc. These brokers go about endeavoring to arrange connections; and when they succeed, they get a commission of 2 or 3 per cent upon the portion. Marriage at Genoa is quite a matter of calculation, generally settled by the parents or relatives, who often draw up the contracts before the parties have seen one another, and it is only when everything is arranged, and Abou Jay Habbell-may his tribe de a few days previously to the marriage ceremony, that the future husband is introduced to his in- And in his room, as if it were a spook tended partner for life.
