

The Daily Astorian. ASTORIA, OREGON. FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 24, 1882. J. F. HALLORAN, Editor.

Mr. George's Views. WHILE Hon. M. C. George was in the city last Wednesday he conversed with us at considerable length regarding what intimately concerns the people of Astoria. In regard to the matter of "The Astoria Land Grant," Mr. George is of the opinion that though all principles of equity demand that if the corporation fail to comply with the conditions under which they got the grant it should revert back to the people whose domain it is, yet, it will be not likely to come up before the present congress. Our readers will remember an interview with Senator Slater an account of which we published some time ago, in which that gentleman stated his belief that owing to the extraordinary press of business that matter will not be reached. This view is corroborated by Mr. George. He states that the fact of so much business being left over from last session, the pressing demand of measures sure to be introduced at the immediate opening of congress and the special exigencies of the occasion coupled with the fact that the present session will be exceedingly short will probably allow of no opportunity to take up this matter, except in connection with the whole matter of lapsed land grants extensively discussed at the last congressional session.

This is no doubt the case, and will continue till a great many things now pushed upon congressional attention shall be given different jurisdiction. There are so many things foreign to the nature and purposes of public legislation that regularly come up for congressional adjudication that the wonder is the average congressman finds time to do as much as he does. Private claims, questions of privilege, pensions, etc., consume nine-tenths of a session. In regard to the improvement of the bar, Mr. George was not inclined to take an optimistic view. He expects considerable from the report of engineers regarding that. It will be remembered that it was due to the personal exertions of Mr. George and our Senators that the appropriation was made for a survey and competent men sent out. The one great and almost insuperable objection that will be made in the last session of the forty-seventh congress to appropriating money for improvements is that it won't do to pile up the appropriations; there has been a howl raised about the river and harbor appropriations of the last session, and—as party policy—neither party wants to have much to do with appropriating money this winter. Economy will be the shibboleth, and sails must be trimmed and courses taken for '84.

Mr. George regretted the defeat of his coadjutor in the commerce committee—Page of California—who had given material aid to Oregon in advocating her claims heretofore.

Mr. ANTHONY, of Rhode Island is chucking over less fortunate bosses while he points with pride to his copper-bottomed state constitution which fences out from the ballot box all foreign-born citizens who don't own real estate. The joke is in requiring a voter to own land in a state that is nearly all water and not very much of that.

THURLOW WEED died at his home in New York last Wednesday, aged eighty-five. For a quarter of a century before the civil war few men had more influence than he over American politics. Of late years senility and garrulous reminiscences showed that the candle burned low in the socket.

The regular daily railroad accident is reported: this time near Columbus, Ohio. There have been seventeen railroad accidents reported this month, with six days more to go on.
