Council Proceedings.

At the last regular meeting of the city council the report of the street committee on the petition of property holders along the line of Squemoqua street asking the same to be widened to fifty feet, was read, and on motion, report was adopted. The reports of street superintendent and police judge were read and referred. An ordinance making an appropriation from the general and police dept. fund for the purpose of "paying interest on city bonds, board of city prisoners, and salary of chief engineer and officers of the city of Astoria for the year 1883, and unexpired portion of 1882," was read first and second times, and referred to committee on ways and means. An ordinance providing for the disposition by the auditor and clerk of the printed copies of charter and ordinances now in his possession was read and referred to committee on public property. THE AGE OF MIRACLES is past, and Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" will not raise the dead, will not cure you if your lungs are almost wasted by consumption. It is, however, unsurpassed both as a pectoral and alterative, and will cure obstinate and severe diseases of the throat and lungs, coughs, and bronchial affections. By virtue of its wonderful alterative properties it cleanses and enriches the blood, cures pimples, blotches, and eruptions, and causes great eating ulcers to heal.

An invaluable strengthening for the nerves, muscles, and digestive organs, producing strength and appetite, is Brown's Iron Bitters.

To-night the Wyman's play Yackie at Liberty Hall, and all those who wish to get a good seat should go to J. E. Thompson's Drug Store and secure them, as there will be a big house. Yackie being one of the best comedies ever played, it having a run of 42 nights in Chicago, 21 nights in St. Louis and 14 nights in San Francisco, (California Theatre), it is undoubtedly the best work of its kind ever written, and Wyman as a German Dialect Comedian has no equal. So let's give him a full house his opening night in Astoria.

The Printer and His Types

A rainy day yesterday and a dearth of items sent us to the case with a "take" of reprint, and looking at the stand of type there arranged, we thought what an epitome of all human endeavor lay in those one hundred and fifty-two little boxes of bourgeois before us. The morning newspaper as it flutters from the press into the homes of its readers is a daily marvel of ingenuity and enterprise, and represents a wonderful combination of industry unequalled in any department of human labor. The cast-off cotton and linen clothing of a nation is torn and shredded and dampened into pulp and woven into a fair, smooth paper that, yielding to the clinging embrace of the press, comes out a carpet for thought to walk on, and bearing a transcript of the history of the world for one day. Those little boxes, full of "a's" and "b's" and "d's," etc., if sentient, would grow cynical, as do their manipulators, in daily mirroring the hopes and frailties and follies of mankind, and even the most startling events of life would seem commonplace to those little bits of metal were they endowed with life, as in the daily round of existence they set forth the facts as they occur. The printer stands there with his stick in his hand and, like an old-time magician, calls out from the silence of those inky little boxes everything in life that is deemed worthy of chronicle or observation. Now he sets up a line advertising a stray puppy, and now a line announcing the death of an emperor; next is the notice of a marriage; how fair the bride looked and how lovely were the bridesmaids, and an hour after the same types, in different form, give utterance to the last sad memorials of respect for one who is laid in the grave. What sparkling wit, what lofty eloquence, what forcible invective, what glowing imagery of thought lie in the case before us! The stately flow of Macaulay's martial poetry fall into line with regular click, the stirring chronicle of Napoleon's victories is ticked off letter by letter, and the merry jest that shall make a thousand men laugh at to-morrow's breakfast table is picked up letter by letter, by the compositor who preserves the same expression of contentment whether setting up "Boat Lost," or "Found Drowned." It would seem the same in the case we briefly treat of as with the great world of animated nature. A few drops of water, and a ray of light, paints upon the radiant heavens the brilliant but evanescent rainbow that fades as we note its many-colored beauty; a few of the elements contained in the soil are, by the subtle alchemy of nature, transformed into the gigantic tree; the same elements, with a slight admixture of others constitute all we admire in the stately man, or the graceful woman; the waving field of wheat, or the tossing billows of the boundless sea. So with the types before us, which seem to be the very elements out of which all that lives in story or in song is transmitted and preserved, with this difference—and there is sadness in the thought—that that which to-day we set in type will live, as immortal and imperishable as the elements themselves, but the hand and brain that dictates and guides the utterance of the thought will be resolved into indistinguishable dust.

Railroad from Portland to Kalama.

Having secured the right of way through nearly all the lands on the surveyed route, the Northern Pacific Railroad company are now making preparations to build the line from Portland to Kalama. This will connect the entire system of railways of Oregon and Washington with Puget Sound. The line is 59 miles long. It will start at the site of the proposed Union depot in Couch's addition, run north on North Front street to Watson's addition, a short distance west of Weidler's sawmill; thence nearly midway through the Sherlock property; thence between Guild's lake and the Willamette river; through Springville; thence near the foothills west of Willamette slough. It will cut off one corner of the town-site of St. Helens; will run through Columbia City about 100 feet back from the Columbia river, and will terminate with an incline at the foot of Deer island, opposite the town of Kalama.

In the construction there will be 475,000 cubic yards of excavation, 45,000 yards of rock work, about three miles of trestle, one short trestle bridge over Mill creek, and 270 acres of clearing. Its cost will approximate $1,000,000.

So soon as the entire right of way has been secured—and this will probably be accomplished by the end of this month—the company will advertise for proposals to do the grading, and if bids are not satisfactory the company will do the work. Little progress can be made at the grade until the present shower is over—say April 15. Then the summer floods will interfere with the work, so that things cannot be pushed until early in August. It is expected that the link will be finished and ready for traffic about the middle of next November.

Inclines will be built at Kalama and at the terminus of the Portland branch on the opposite shore of the Columbia, and cars will be transferred by an iron ferryboat now in course of construction in New York under the supervision of Chief Engineer J. C. Henderson. It will be shipped in sections by rail or ocean, and put together here. Its capacity will be twenty cars.—Oregonian.
