

The Daily Astorian. ASTORIA, OREGON: WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 29, 1882. J. F. HALLORAN, Editor.

EARL DERBY recently made a speech at Manchester, in which he said the expenditure of several million pounds in promoting emigration from Ireland would be money well spent. He has little faith in the improvement of the condition of small tenants by recent legislation, and sees no remedy for Irish distress but shipping the poor classes out of the fated island. The Astorian thinks this is a humiliating confession for a statesman to have to make about any part of his country—that the government is incapable of promoting the happiness of its subjects save by getting rid of them, and that every Irishman injures his fellow-countrymen by being born. Lord Derby's remedy for Irish distress has been in operation long and vigorously. It has reduced the population of Ireland by 3,000,000 since 1841, or from a little over 8,000,000 to 5,000,000. In sixty years, more than 3,000,000 of the Irish subjects of the English crown have emigrated to our country alone—the United States—which now contains more persons of Irish birth and descent than Ireland itself.

It is believed the senate, after the 4th of March, will have a decided Republican majority. The terms of office of twenty-six senators expire on the 4th of next March, and a majority of these senators will be their own successors. Nearly all the senators will be succeeded by members of their own party. The exceptions are Senators David Davis, Kellogg, Greene and Johnson. Senator Davis will, in all probability, be succeeded by a Republican. Randall Gibson, a Democrat, has already been elected to succeed Kellogg. The Democrats lose two votes in the successors to Grover and Johnson. The majority is a close one, however, and leaves Riddlberger and Mahone with the balance of power. This outlook is not as pleasant as it might be for the Republican senators, as it involves the election of Gorman to the office of secretary of the senate, and the revival of the old scandal of combination with the readjusters in the Virginia fight.

The Rev. James Beecher, a half brother to the Plymouth pastor, has been sent to the New York State Homeopathic asylum for the insane. Only eight years ago he was the popular and well paid pastor of the Poughkeepsie Congregational church, but threw up the position for a hermit's life in the backwoods of Ulster county, where his eccentricities have since grown upon him in such a manner that it was thought best to put him under restraint.

Twenty million dollars is the handsome profit said to have been made by the Standard Oil company in the recent "deal" in petroleum. The poor quality of oil sent to Astoria has, of course, nothing to do with such pretty profit.
