The late storm damaged property to the value of one million dollars in this state.

The East Oregonian wants the Pendletonites to organize a vigilance committee and Seattle about a dozen.

After New Years the Knappton mills will be in charge of C. W. Stone, and will be known and designated as the "Columbia Mills."

Astor Lodge No. 6, K. of P., will have a public installation and a grand ball at their castle next Wednesday evening, the 3d prox.

The Oregon State Normal school has been fully organized at Monmouth, under the law by which it was created at the last legislature.

Portland's new paper, the Northwest News, starts off with a good corps of newspaper men. They are all rustlers—and have good need to be.

To-night the newly elected officers of Temple Lodge No. 7, will be installed at Pythian castle, after which dancing will be given at the skating rink.

The Rescue Jubilee Troupe Mask Ball, on New Years evening, promises to be a grand success. More suits have been engaged up to this time than have ever before been engaged for a similar occasion in Astoria.

Ocean Encampment No. 13, I. O. O. F. of Astoria, elected the following officers for the ensuing year, on Monday evening, 25th inst.: W. H. Barker, C. P.; Wm. Bock, H. P.; John Hahn, S. W.; Jay Tuttle, Scribe; I. W. Case, Treas.; Charles Holt, J. W.; E. C. Holden, Past C. P.

The Gartenlaube, a German paper which is read by a million people, has, in the last issue received, a most minute account of Astoria and the salmon fisheries. We regret that the article should never have been allowed to leave us leisure to translate the article for the benefit of our readers.

There was Divine service at Grace church yesterday morning at ten o'clock, being St. Stephen's day. Today is the Feast of St. John the Evangelist, and there will be services in Grace church at ten o'clock this morning. To-morrow is the Feast of the Holy Innocents; there will be Divine service in Grace church at the same hour.

Three of the telegraph poles between Scarborough Head and the cape are blown down. Were the line finished it would be just the same as when you want some news from Portland—"Lines down." We never yet knew the line to be working all right between Astoria and Portland when there was any important dispatch to receive.

On Christmas night a boat with two men started for the Melusine, and on reaching the vessel got foul of the chains and capsized; one of the men clung to the chain, and the other drifted down and caught hold of the rudder; the night was dark and the wind high, but both were finally rescued by the crew. The boat went adrift. See adv.

A sailor by the name of Trainor, belonging to the Queen of the Pacific, is to sue the O. R. & N. Co. for $20,000, for injuries alleged to have been received at the hands of the first mate. Trainor claims that the officer, in a violent fit of anger, to which he is subject, seized him and threw him into the machinery, causing him to be crushed so that he has since been confined to the hospital.—Standard.

Cape Hancock Record.
 CAPE HANCOCK, Dec. 26—11 A. M.
 Cloudy; wind light, fresh; schooner Trustees sailed in at 10 A. M.; bar very rough. The Jennie Landles, El Capitan and James Livesey are in sight. In port—barkentine Portland, schooners Kate & Anna, Ona & Alpha and J. C. Cousins, tugs Columbia and Pioneer.

Takes a Rest.
 On January 1st, M. P. Callender who has so long and successfully conducted the affairs of the Knappton mills, will resign for the purpose of taking a holiday. Eleven years of continuous and unremitting work entitles any man to a vacation, and Mr. Callender well merits a season of relaxation. He will visit southern California this winter, going east in the spring, and will probably resume active business in this vicinity next season.

A Pleasant Affair.
 Had the seating capacity of the Presbyterian church been double what it is, every seat would have been occupied on Christmas evening to witness the distribution of presents to the Sunday school children, from the overloaded and tastefully ornamented Christmas tree. As it was, chairs were brought into requisition along the aisles and in front, and everybody made as comfortable as possible, though many only had standing room while others failed to gain admittance at all.

The gifts were numerous, and many of them were costly. The generous donors must have been repaid for their liberality, and the superintendent and teachers of the Sunday school abundantly rewarded for their "labor of love," as they gazed upon the bright eyes of the children raised in expectation as each present was taken from the tree and the lucky owner's name announced, and then witness the eager, happy and joyous countenance, beaming with delight, of the little one whose hand was raised, signifying that he or she was the fortunate possessor of the name called. A box of extra toys, dolls, etc., had been generously donated, so that no child should be overlooked or go away without a present. Owing to the overcrowded state of the room Santa Claus was unwilling to force his portly form through such limited space, so the nuts and candies he had provided were distributed by his subordinates. When it was thought all the presents had been distributed from the tree Mr. E. C. Holden produced from a remote branch a prettily polished mussel shell purse, with a card attached, on which was written "A Christmas gift to Rev. J. V. Milligan, in token of our appreciation of his earnest, faithful efforts, as pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Astoria." Signed, "Many Members." The purse contained $52.75 and was collected during the day by two lady members. Mr. Milligan was taken by surprise, and in a few words expressed his full appreciation of the unexpected gift and the kind words and motives of the donors. Owing to the unexpectedly densely crowded state of the building, no recitations or Christmas songs were given, as originally intended.

An Old Favorite.
 Upon our desk lies a magazine which brings to our mind a flood of memories. It is the "Overland Monthly," the same light brown cover, the same bear on the railroad track, and the same flavor of the coast that the last one had which we laid down with regret just seven years ago. That magazine should never have been allowed to cease publication, and we are glad to see that the enterprising editor of the Californian has changed the name and make up of his magazine and given us a readable publication with the old time prestige of the "Overland" about it.

The present editor and proprietor of the magazine is an energetic young fellow with plenty of talent and "go" to him to make his magazine a success. His publication is a help to the coast and should get coast patronage, and on the score of literary excellence it will compare favorably with eastern monthlies. To us it seems like the return of an old friend.

Another Orphan's Home.
 At the last session of the grand lodge of Good Templars, of this state, it was ordered that necessary steps be taken to found an orphan's home, and a board of managers were appointed to take the matter in charge and go ahead and effect arrangements. The board was authorized to solicit subscriptions and to locate the home at the city or village which would contribute the most money before or by the first day of September last. The Dalles having donated the largest sum of money, $1450, it was ordered that the home be located in or near that city. A purchasing committee was appointed to select a desirable tract of land, which they did, about one-half mile from The Dalles, at a cost of $1,900, paying all of the amount down, except $140. It is now the purpose of the board of managers to make a grand effort to secure money enough to erect and furnish the building and have it ready for occupancy by the first of May next.—Standard
