THE AMERICAN EAGLE.

The great American bird is under every condition a bird altogether, but it usually flocks alone on Wood river, because its mates are as scarce as lady partners at a programme ball. That eagles are birds of prey is established by various stories in school-readers, where they are shown to have carried off in mid-air children, lambs, and other food ten times their own weight, and disappeared with them into dim space towards the summits of the mountains, where they store their grub for winter feasts. The largest birds of the eagle species are found in the Wood river mountains, and yet no mules, nor cows, nor people have been carried away by them. The eagles of this country have often been known to omit devouring weakly rabbits and squirrels, and to have shown almost human kindness. An event which occurred ten days since at Foster's ranch, above Hailey, fully establishes this trait of the Wood river variety. One of the ranchers saw a huge eagle flutter over the barnyard, interested in a fat turkey, and immediately secured his rifle. The first shot broke the eagle's wing, and in its crippled condition it wobbled and flopped around uttering screams of pain. The man was watching the result before firing again, when he discovered another eagle coming from a distance. It was evidently a mate of the first one. Like an arrow it flew to the rescue, and examining the wound and seeing its mate could not escape, it took hold of it by its claws and beak and flew to the mountain side, where it lay down the victim of the sportive hunter.

During the past seven days the men on Foster's ranch have noticed, each day, that the mate carried food to the wounded bird regularly, and is yet feeding it upon squirrels, rabbits, birds and mice. Mr. Foster could kill the two birds any day, but has refrained on account of the affection displayed between them. A small American flag will be fastened about the wounded bird, and when it again flies it will carry the emblem of freedom with it to the highest mountain peaks.—Wood River Times.

Hank Barrett was a notorious bully and drunkard. Whenever he went into the village near his home, it was to fill himself with whisky and whip who ever opposed him. In the course of several years seven roughs of one gang were thrashed by him. The other night they combined for vengeance. Finding him in a store they surrounded and attacked him. He stood his ground and knocked three or four of them down. When they saw that he was getting the better of them they drew knives and stabbed him to death, afterward throwing his body out through a window into street. This reads like a western border occurrence, but the place where it happened was Bellows Falls, Vermont.

"In my family I have used St. Jacobs Oil for a year," writes E. W. Hopkins, Esq., of the B. & N. Steamship Co., Boston, and in cases of neuralgia, rheumatism, sprains, bruises and the like, I can find nothing to equal it. My wife was troubled with neuralgia in her shoulders and limbs for more than one year, and after two applications of the Oil found a sudden relief.

The only scientific Iron Medicine that does not produce headache, &c., but gives to the system all the benefits of iron without its bad effects, is Brown's Iron Bitters.

A Dismantled State.

What is to be done with the state of Nevada is becoming a question of some interest to the remnant of its population. It is admitted that the bottom has fallen out of the Comstock lode, and as the Comstock lode was, to all practical intents and purposes, Nevada, there is not much left of the latter but the empty shell, from which the kernel has been taken.

Nevada was the golden youth of the Union when it was admitted; the mines, which constituted almost its only wealth, were supposed to be inexhaustible, and the white and yellow bricks they yielded had an effect on the money markets that was felt throughout the world. The state was organized on a magnificent basis. The governor's salary was $6,000; the lieutenant-governor's, $3,600; with $1,500 as state librarian; the three judges of the supreme court received $7,000 each, and the other state officers and the members of the legislature were provided for with a similar munificence. These salaries were thought proper enough in the state's golden age.

But the $300,000,000 taken from the Comstock lode has exhausted that wonderful deposit of treasure and left Nevada a beggarly state. Its millionaires have fled to San Francisco and New York to spend their wealth. The wives of some of them have taken their share of it and gone to Paris, where they are living in an opulence peculiarly their own. The enterprising mining classes have gone to Arizona to pursue the quest of gold in that new and more promising territory. Virginia City, the capital, has lost its splendor and glory, like Tyre and Sidon, and the inhabitants of the state who are left are beginning to wonder how they are to maintain a government with such a brilliant outfit out of their scanty gulch scratchings and the little crops they raise in the valleys. There is talk of calling a constitutional convention to reduce official salaries to a more modest level, and it is even suggested that it may be necessary to allow the state government to lapse and let Nevada become a territory, or else divide it up among California, Utah and Arizona.

Josh Billing's Guide to Health.

Never run into debt if you can find anything else to run into. Be honest, if you can; if you can't be honest, pray for help.

Marry young, and if you make a hit keep cool and don't brag about it.

Be kind to your mother-in-law, and, if necessary, pay for her board at some good hotel.

Bathe thoroughly once a week in soft water, kasteel sope and avoid tight boots.

Exercise in open air, but don't saw wood until you are obliged to.

Laff every time you feel tickled, and laff once in, while enny how.

Eat hash washing days, and be thankful, if you have to shut your eyes to do it.

Hold the baby half the time, and allus start the fire in the mornings and put on the tea-kettle.

Don't jaw back—it proves that you are as big a pool as the other phello.

Never borrow what you are able to buy, and always have sum things you won't lend.

Never git in a hurry; you can walk a good deal further in a day than you can run.

Don't swear; it may convince you, but it is sure not to convince others.

If you have dauers, let your wife bring them up; if she has got common sense she can beat all yure theors.

Don't drink too much nu cider, and, however mean you may be, don't abuse a kow.

Lav and respekt yure wife enny how; it is a good deal cheaper than to be all the time wishing she was somehow different.

Don't fool with spiritualism; it iz like being a moderate drinker, sure to beat you at last.

Don't have enny rules for long life that yu won't break; be prepared to-day to die to-morrow, iz the best creed for long life I kno of.

Keep yure hed cool and yure feet dri, and breathe thro yure noze az much az yu kan.

Don't be a klown if yu kan help it; people don't respekt enny thing mutch that they kan only laff at.

If yu kant have a half loaf take a whole one; a whole loaf iz much better than no bread.

Don't miss enny phun, not if yu hav to go ten miles out of yure way to find it.

Don't keep but one dog; there is no man but a pauper able to keep three.

Certain kinds of wood of great durability, when used alone, have, when joined together, a very destructive influence upon each other. If cypress is joined to walnut, or if cedar is joined to cypress, decay is induced in both woods, which ceases, however, as soon as they are separated.

Mushroom towns are not wholly restricted to new states. Four months ago a dense Virginia forest covered the site of Pocahontas, which now has a population of 2,000. A coal mine was the cause.

The following explains the difference between "luck" and "chance." You take a girl out to the theatre and discover that you haven't a cent in your pocket. You are, of course, compelled to invite her to an oyster saloon after the performance. She refuses for some reason; that's "luck," but the "chance" is a million to one that she will accept.

In southern Minnesota trains are stopped by snow drifts, and shoveling is going forward actively. It is the worst storm for two years, and appears to extend 350 miles.

SYMPTOMS OF WORMS.

The countenance is pale and leaden-colored, with occasional flushes of a circumscribed spot on one or both cheeks; the eyes become dull; the pupils dilate; an aching somnolence runs along the lower eye-lid; the nose is irritated, swells, and sometimes bleeds; a swelling of the upper lip; occasional headache, with annoying or throbbing of the ears; an unusual secretion of saliva; slimy or furrowed tongue; breath very foul, particularly in the morning; appetite variable, sometimes voracious, with a gnawing sensation of the stomach; at others, entirely gone; hotting pains in the stomach; occasional nausea, and vomiting; violent pains throughout the abdomen; bowels irregular, at times constive, at others, very frequently tinged with blood; belly swollen and hard; urine turbid; respiration occasionally difficult and accompanied by hiccuping; such sometimes dry and convulsive sneezing and disturbed sleep, with grinding of the teeth; fever variable, but generally, biliousness. Whenever the above symptoms are found to exist,
