

The Daily Astorian.

ASTORIA, OREGON.

TUESDAY, JANUARY 23, 1913.

Publishers' Notice.

From this date THE DAILY ASTORIAN will be delivered to city subscribers by Scott Booth. All money is to be paid to him, including back dues on the daily. He alone is authorized to receive money or receipt therefor, in payment for THE DAILY ASTORIAN outside the office.

J. F. HALLORAN & Co.
Astoria, Jan. 22nd, 1913.

Council meeting to-night.

—Mr. Bieloh advertises a fine hotel business for sale.

—For a definition of the word "pipe," consult Webster. Life is too short.

—The Gen. Miles goes to Ilwaco and Fort Stevens at nine, this morning.

—The Alice took 1,000 boxes of tin plate to J. G. Megler's cannery at Brookfield, yesterday.

—H. W. Abrams shot and killed Dr. J. G. Brownlee last Saturday at Junction, near Eugene.

—The schooner California is ashore at Buene, on the southern California coast, and is a total loss.

—Jury scrip is "worth what it will fetch." Ninety-two and ninety-four cents is about the average.

—Thos. Dealey, secretary Columbia Canning company, gives notice concerning bids to be received.

—John Briscoe, of Pacific county, is building a fine house on his place, about six miles north of Ilwaco.

—The firm of Badollet & Co., will continue the business as heretofore, Mr. John Hobson retiring from the firm.

—The circuit court closed its labors for the January term yesterday—the longest term of court ever held in Clatsop county.

—Captain J. D. Merryman, collector of customs for this port, arrived home yesterday from a trip to the National capital.

—The noonday prayer meeting will be held at the M. E. church. The evening meetings during the week will be held at the same place.

—The time and place of meeting of Astoria Lodge No. 40, I. O. G. T., has been changed. Hereafter the lodge will meet on Tuesday evening at seven o'clock in the Pythian Hall.

—The soft weather has dispelled all fears of a freeze-up; ice ran in great masses all Sunday and yesterday; the Mountain Queen got to Portland all right Sunday morning and came down with sheathed bow last evening, on time.

—In the school report furnished for Sunday's issue, the name of D. H. Caswell was accidentally omitted. Mr. Caswell has a large and interesting roomful of bright and promising pupils, forty-nine in number, making the total in the district, 186.

—The Maritime Register correctly says there are many reasons for making the signal service a district corps like the ordinance corps of the army. There is not one good reason for transferring its work and men over to the interior department.

—The Mary Hogarth arrived in yesterday from Montevideo. She brings the cargo of the Helen Anjer, consisting of railroad iron and car wheels. That vessel put into Montevideo Nov. 7th, leaking, and transferred her cargo to the Mary Hogarth.

—Among the many rumors that we hear flying around is one to the effect that a Portland company is organizing to build a road from Kalama to Astoria; it is said A. P. Ankeny is one of the gentlemen interested in the matter. We give the report for what it is worth.

—Among the passengers on the good steamer Oregon, yesterday, from Astoria, and bound for the interior of the state, were Judge Bennett, District attorney McBride, ex-Mayor D. C. Ireland, Mr. B. C. Doniway and others who had been down here for some time.

—Some weeks ago Captain Marshall, of Westport, while seeing the sights of Astoria, fore and hind, dropped among a set of ducks in disguise who relieved him of a gold watch and $43.75 in money; yesterday Constable Oliver got one of the parties, Policeman Bessley another, and Policeman Hunter two more, on one of whom was the stolen watch, the party in temporary possession "giving the whole thing away." Marshall was telegraphed for, and will probably be down to-day.

Attempted Escape.

About half-past eleven last night a policeman Hunter was patrolling his beat his attention was attracted by an undue amount of hilarity apparently in the direction of the county jail. Hastening up, he saw a portion of the roof on the north side fly up and a man's head poked up through the hole. The officer fired two shots and procuring assistance entered the building where he found the prisoners under sentence all ready for a midnight dash for liberty. They had succeeded in getting possession of three knives and two fine saws, and while one of the number sang a merry roundelay, the others diligently worked for freedom. But a few minutes more and they would have been out. They had sawed through the ceiling and cut a hole in the roof large enough to admit the passage of a man's body. It was cleverly planned but fate and a watchful policeman were against them. The prisoners were relieved of their tools and were put into the "tank" for the remainder of the night. Bannister, Riley and McCarty go to Salem this morning.

Unjust and Uncalled For.

THE ASTORIAN made a day or two ago, that The News furnished a good deal of advice which was worth what it cost. The News lies—under a mistake. Here is the item, cut from our local column of the 18th:

The Northwest News has a choice assortment of advice on hand, and it is worth just what it cost.

Any one with two grains of sense who read that saw just the idea conveyed: that a good many papers had been giving the new paper plenty of advice, which cost the donors nothing and which was worth exactly "what it cost."

Sports of the Dawns.

Yesterday morning a delegation of the "boys" were proceeding to the Portland boat to shed a parting tear and give a farewell embrace to some of their acquaintances who were about to leave this city, and when passing down Chenamus street, allowed their feelings to so far overcome their sense of propriety as to give utterance to sundry noises which made up in force what was lacking in melody. They were tackled on the corner of Olney and Squemoqua by an officer, whereupon one of them, upon whom the example of Frank Horne seems to be thrown away, "went for his gun."

He, with three others, was arrested, but on their names being called in the police court yesterday afternoon, they failed to appear, forfeiting ten dollars each. It reminds us of slavery days in Missouri, when on one occasion, at Alexandria, a tipped-up boat flung a doting darkey into the Mississippi. He spluttered around and finally made the shore, when looking back, he shouted: "Look yeh; some one will lose a fifteen hundred dollar nigger yet, with dis yeh foolishness!"

Faulty English.

What a blundering specimen of English the postal cards afford! On a postal card it says: "Nothing but the address can be written on this side." This is a mistake; there is nothing to hinder one from writing an essay on the dangers of coasting in Astoria, on the side of one of those cards if he sees fit. What the government means is, "Nothing but the address may be placed, etc. But if the government will agree to do what we pay it to do, and carry THE ASTORIAN to our Mishawaka subscribers, we'll let up on it. Let us put the poor, old government on the back; it's a real nice government, so it is, even though it does make mistakes."

Cape Hancock Record.

CAPE HANCOCK, Jan. 21. —A. M. Wind light, S. E.; thick weather; nothing doing; clearer weather in the afternoon; a bark was sighted and the Brenham went out and put pilot Ounderson aboard. Bar moderate; thick weather from sunset until midnight, with rain from S. E.

22d.—A. M.—Wind east, fresh; Bar moderate; sail in sight, south, tug going for it; J. C. Cousins and tugs Columbia and Brenham passed out.

Art Needle Work.

Miss Clothier will be in Astoria to-day, prepared to give lessons in Art needle work, lace work, Kensington work and Etching.

Should you be a sufferer from dyspepsia, indigestion, malaria, or weakness, you can be cured by Brown's Iron Bitters.

—All the patent medicines advertised in this paper, together with the choicest perfumery, and toilet articles, etc., can be bought at the lowest prices, at J. W. Conn's drug store, opposite Occident Hotel, Astoria.

—Jeff's Variety Chop House takes the cake.

—Try him and you won't go anywhere else.

A Fine Country.

GRAY'S RIVER, W. T., Jan. 19, '83. ED. ASTORIAN:

A brief description of this locality may be of interest to intending immigrants:

Gray's river flows into the Columbia river 15 miles northeast from Astoria, the river is navigable about ten miles, the valley is from one quarter to one and a half miles wide and about 16 miles long. Fifteen years ago this country was a wilderness with abundance of game such as elk, deer, bear, etc., and the place was hardly known; to-day over 30 settlers have made their home here, and there are few places where the husbandman's industry is more liberally rewarded. I feel my inability to attempt to describe the many advantages and natural blessings we enjoy. The bottom land is rich and easy cleared, and can not be beat in raising grass or vegetables. Cattle make their own living nine months in the year. We have a mild and healthy climate, are close to a good market, and have two schoolhouses and post-office. Here are a few vacant good claims yet, but what is nearest to tide water is taken up. In another 15 years from now every piece of bottom land will be taken; such fertile soil as is found here is not long lying idle without an owner. The tide land is mostly level, easy cleared, covered with fine cedar, fir and spruce, but too much scattered for to make any good logging claims. All the land is surveyed. Dairying, stock raising, gardening, logging, wood chopping, shingle making and coal burning are the principal businesses carried on. By next summer we will have a steamboat of our own; then it will take only about two and one-half hours to bring us and our produce from the center of this settlement to Oregon's seaport, the prosperous city of Astoria.

A Desolate Death.

Intelligence of a very melancholy instance of suffering and death comes to us from the rugged uplands abutting the plains of Tillamook. Far up above the settlement on the Dougherty river an old man named Bush had taken a homestead and with his family was making a home. During the late unusual freshet in that country, the mountain stream became swollen out of its banks, and flooded the premises of the hapless family, to such an extent that they were compelled to flee for safety from the furious waters. They took to the mountains, and then turned their footsteps toward the settlement. Mr. Bush was over seventy years of age and very infirm from various injuries and diseases he had suffered during his life time—in fact was little better than an invalid when driven thus ruthlessly out to face the cruel rigors of winter and endure the hardships of such a trip. The deluge covered the scant trails alongside the river and kept the refugees upon the higher lands. Their way was pathless and exceedingly difficult; but slowly they pushed on as best they could, climbing over and crawling under fallen trees, and toiling as only one must who undertakes to traverse the canyons and jungles of the mountain wilds. Such a journey proved too severe for the old man. He was court-lacked the sustaining force to save, and he succumbed to the last, but courage now. He faltered, drooped and sank in death.

There in the desolate wilderness, in the midst of night and suffering and disconsolation and bereft of all means to comfort and ameliorate his dying throes. Without strength or aid to remove the dead the stricken wife was obliged to leave the body where it lay, and continue her journey for the settlement. She reached the nearest house at night, exhausted and prostrated from the days frightful experience. The next morning several men set out in search of the body of Mr. Bush. They traveled and hunted all day long, and succeeded in finding the remains not until nightfall, when they, too, had a hard task in making their way back through their spiritless burden. Kind friends saw the dead properly buried and ministered to the wants of the living. Mr. Bush recently came from California, and with all his infirmities was exceedingly energetic and a respected citizen of the section in which he lived.—Yamhill Reporter.

Time and Expense Saved.

Hard workers are subject to bilious attacks which may end in dangerous illness. Parker's Ginger Tonic keeps the kidneys and liver active, and by preventing the attack saves sickness, time and expense.—Detroit Press.

Convincing.

In offering to everyone throughout the land a trial bottle of Syrup of Figs (free of charge) the California Fig Syrup Company is fully aware that it were folly to do so if the new remedy did not possess greater merit than any other article ever offered as a cure for biliousness and constipation. But knowing that every dose will convince the one who takes it of its efficacy, and make another friend for the remedy which is destined to become universal, they are offering everyone to try it. W. E. Dement, druggist, is agent for Astoria.
