

The Daily Astorian

ASTORIA, OREGON: FRIDAY, JANUARY 26, 1923

Publishers' Notice

From this date THE DAILY ASTORIAN will be delivered to city subscribers by Scott Booth.

J. F. HALLORAN & Co. Astoria, Jan. 22nd, 1923.

Astoria Social Club to-night. Extraordinary high and low tides are features of the week.

The Queen of the Pacific is due from San Francisco this afternoon.

The committee on criticism (self-appointed) are delayed in their report.

E. C. Holden advertises a sale of furniture and sundries to-morrow morning.

The little piles of gas pipe along the streets add an air of stability to the enterprise.

The new hose, comprising 1,000 feet from Akron, Ohio, is expected on to-day's steamer.

The barometer stood at 29.04 in this city yesterday morning at four o'clock—the lowest for several years.

Dr. H. Carpenter, of Portland, has received the appointment of superintendent of the state insane asylum.

Yesterday morning's squall made havoc among the woods and waters. Trees and fences around town were badly shaken, though the resultant damage was happily light.

Suprenant & Ferguson are building a house on the roadway for Post & Cottle, who intend running a soda factory the coming season.

But little actual damage was done by yesterday morning's gale, the nearest approach to injury being at the new roadway opposite Trullinger's mill where the heavy tide sent some logs in against the piles, and necessitating repair.

Considerable activity was manifested yesterday in salmon sales. Some 35,000 cases were sold at $1.22 1/2 on the river. Of this number Wm. T. Coleman & Co., represent 25,000.

As an illustration of the force of the wind yesterday morning it may be mentioned that a water tank at Booth's cannery, which was standing on a platform about fifteen feet high, was lifted bodily and carried up on the roof.

Before Justice Fox, yesterday, appeared Wm. Grape, Jos. Leobo, John Laurenstein and Wm. Barker, charged with larceny from the person, the case being that reported some time ago, where a gold watch and a small amount of money were stolen from Capt. Marshall while the latter was at Hill's saloon.

Cape Hancock Record

Jan. 25, 10 A. M. Blowing the heaviest gale of the season all last night; wind south; bar very rough.

The Variety Chop House, is the Restaurant man that Astoria has wanted so long.

Astoria Social Club will have a party Friday evening, Jan. 26.

Frank Fabre's Oyster and Chop House

Those wishing a nice plate of Eastern or Shoalwater bay oysters cooked in any style, or an early breakfast before going aboard the boat, should call and see him.

Selling at Cost. Mrs. A. Malcom is closing out her stock of winter millinery and women goods at cost.

Oysters! Oysters!! At Frank Fabre's; in every style Fresh from the beds every day.

Work Alongshore

Only by personal observation can one realize the amount of capital invested in a Columbia river cannery establishment. Strolling through one of the largest canneries on the river yesterday, in company with the proprietor, and noticing the piles of material on every hand, twine, tin, cordage, boats and other gear, he said "what you see represents $70,000 in cash; this capital lies idle several months every year, but the supply must be kept up, to insure promptness in all departments of the business when the pressure of the busy season comes.

An Astoria cannery is a huge workshop. Even in this comparatively dull season there are large numbers of men employed in the most diverse occupations. Driving piles; planking piling already driven; putting up new buildings and out-houses; roofing and finishing; building boats; making nets; repairing engines and machinery; making cans, and boxes for shipment; and a dozen other different occupations take up every minute of the time the various craftsmen devote to their special handiwork.

On the roadway all its activity. The Columbia Cannery company are finishing up their new cannery and will begin putting in the machinery next week; the I. X. L., another new co-operative company, are finishing a large building 80x120, and are at present turning out boats.

Further this way, at the cannery of John A. Derlin & Co., there are between forty and fifty men employed in various capacities, the greater part of them being Chinese who make tin cans. It is interesting to watch these fellows who are dextrous at the business. One sits in front of a large shears worked by a treadle and snips off the rough edges of a sheet of tin plate, 10x14, handed him by a man who opens the boxes; another takes the trimmed sheet and cuts it into three pieces each 4 1/2 inches by 9 1/2 inches long; a fourth gathers up a half-dozen of these tin cards and passes them through a roller; they now begin to look like something, and are carried to the seamers, a pensive looking Mongolian gang of twelve or fourteen who sit in front of little charcoal furnaces and join the sides of the can so as to form a perfect cylinder.

We notice that there is here no acid used in the formation of the seam, solder, composed of equal parts of block tin and lead being solely employed. From the sad-eyed Celestials who seam so, the cans are passed to the trimmers who briskly go over them, and send them to the "bottomers," whose business it is to place a little flat disk of tin in such shape on the embryo can, that when it is now passed on to the crimpers, those nimble-fingered youths can briskly revolve the glittering cylinders and transfer them in shining heaps to the men who solder the bottom on. This is an important part of the work and is done with all due precision by other grave visaged beings who pass the cans through a molten bath of solder and down an inclined plane to the hands of an expert who examines them, and causing them to be packed in huge tiers they are sent aloft, there to be stacked away, till needed.

Mr. Derlin is, we believe, the only canneryman on the river who is now making cans; the brief description we have given of the process applies in general to all. He is now turning out 18,000 cans a day. It is calculated that a can when ready to be filled with salmon has cost 2 cents. There will be about 450 cans to a box of tin, which costs $6.50, the remainder of the $9 representing the labor and extra material.

Among the net-makers times are lively. A good net represents a considerable sum of money; it means from 216 to 230 pounds of fine flax twine, worth from $1.05 to $1.15 a pound, which, with the labor of knitting, the accompanying cordage, corks, sinkers, etc., makes the net cost of each net run from $420 to $470. There are now knitting about fifteen hundred nets for the next season's work—that one item alone representing a considerable outlay. A net isn't considered worth much after one season's work. A man fishing "on his own hook" may use one that by careful management is still valuable, but as a general thing fishermen haven't much use for a net after it has been in use for an entire season.

How They "Nishiate" Him

"Say are you a Mason, or a nod-fellow, or anything?" asked the bad boy of the grocery man.

"Why, yes, of course I am."

"Well, do the goats but when you nishiate a fresh candidate?"

"No, of course not. The goats are cheap ones, that have no life, and we muzzle them, and put pillows over their heads, so they can't hurt anybody," said the grocery man, as he winked at a brother nodfellow who was seated on a sugar barrel, looking mysterious. "But why do you ask?"

"O, nuthin, only I wish me and my chum had muzzled our goat with a pillow. Pa would have enjoyed his becoming a member of our lodge better. You see, pa had been telling us how much good the Masons and Odd Fellows did, and he said we ought to try and grow up good so we could jine the lodges when we got big, and I asked pa if it would do any hurt for us to have a play lodge in my room, and pured to nishiate, and pa said it wouldn't do any hurt. He said it would improve our minds, and learn us to be men. So my chum and me buried a goat that lives in the livery stable."

"You see my chum and me had to carry the goat up to my room when pa and ma was out riding, and he blated so we had to tie a handkerchief around his nose, and his feet made such a noise on the floor that we put some baby's socks on his feet. Gosh, how frowy a goat smells, don't it? I should think you Masons must have strong stummix."

"Well, sir, my chum and me practiced with that goat until he could beat a picture of a goat every time. We buried a buck beer sign from a saloon man, and hung it on the back of a chair, and the goat would hit it every time. That night pa wanted to know what we were doing up in my room, and I told him we were playing lodge, an improving our minds, and pa said that was right, there was nothing that did boys of our age half so much good as to imitate men, and store by useful nollidge. Then my chum asked pa if he didn't want to come up and take the grand bumper degree, and pa luffed and said he didn't care if he did just to encourage the boys in innocent pastime, that was so improving our intellect. We had shut the goat up in a closet in my room, and he had got over blating, so we took off the handkerchief, and he was eating some of my paper collars and skate straps. We went up stairs and told pa to come up soon and give two distinct raps, and when we asked him who was there he must say, 'a piglaric who wants to join your ancient order and ride the goat.' Ma wanted to come up too, but we told her if she come in it would break up the lodge, cause a woman couldn't keep a secret, and we didn't have any sidesaddle for the goat. Say, if you never tried it, the next time you nishiate a man in your Mason's lodge, you sprinkle a little kyan pepper on the goats beard just afore you turn him loose. You can get three times as much fun to the square inch of a goat. You wouldn't think it was the same goat. Well, we got all fixed, and pa rapped and we let him in and told him he must be blind-folded, and he got on his knees, luffed, and I tied a towel around his eyes, and then I turned him around and made him get down on his hands and knees and then his back was right towards the closet door, and I put the buck beer sign right against pa's clothes. He was luffing all the time, and said we boys were full of fun as they made 'em, and we told him it was a solemn occasion, and we wouldn't permit no levity, and if he didn't stop luffing we couldn't give him the grand bumper degree. Then everything was ready, and chum had his hand on the closet door, and some kyan pepper in his other hand, and I asked pa in low bass tones if he felt as if he wanted to turn back, or if he had nerve enough to go ahead and take the degree. I warned him that it was full of dangers, as the goat was loaded for beer, and told him he yet had time to retrace his steps if he wanted to. He said he wanted the whole business, and we could go ahead with the menagerie. Then I said to pa that if he had decided to go ahead, and not blame us for consequences, to repeat after me the following: "Bring forth the royal bumper and let him bump!" Pa repeated the words, and my chum sprinkled the kyan pepper on the goat's mustache, and he sneezed once and looked sassy, and then he sees the lager beer goat raring up, and he starts for it, just like a cow catcher, and blated. Pa is real fat, but he knew he got hit and grunted, and said, "Hell's-fire, what are you boys doin'!" and then the goat gave him another degree, and pa pulled off the towel and got up and started for the stairs, and so did the goat, and ma was at the bottom of the stairs listening, and when I looked over the banisters pa and ma and the goat were all in a heap, and pa was yelling murder, and ma was screaming fire, and the goat blating and sneezing and bunting, and the hired girl came into the hall and the goat took after her and struck her and she went down stairs the way we boys slide down hills, with both hands on herself, and the goat rared up and blated, and pa and ma went into their room and shut the door, and then my chum and me opened the front door and drove the goat out.—Mitticus Sins.

Convincing

In offering to everyone throughout the land a trial bottle of Syrup of Figs free of charge the California Fig Syrup Company is fully aware that it were folly to do so if the new remedy did not possess greater merit than any other article ever offered as a cure for biliousness and constipation. But knowing that every dose will convince the one who takes it of its efficacy, and make another friend for the remedy which is destined to become universal, they wish everyone to try it. W. E. Dement, druggist, is agent for Astoria.
