

Introducing You to Oleomargarine.

Now, no person with a keen sense of taste can be deceived about oleomargarine. Butter is pure oil. Put a little in a warm place, and see how quickly it liquefies. If the temperature comes close to boiling, the butter is "oiled," and unfit for food. Try the same experiment with oleomargarine. It will not harm it, and you will find it difficult to melt it if you drop it in boiling water. It will dissolve like tallow or like butter. It also cuts like tallow, with a sort of metallic glint. Oleomargarine, if "flavored" with true butter and made into "prints," always keeps the print in the original clear lines. You can handle it without crushing it. It seems as if it had just come off ice.

The first time I ever found it on a table I thought it the handsomest butter I had ever seen. It was at the United States Hotel in Saratoga, where board was $5 a day. I tasted it, could not swallow it. In two hours my mouth was sore, poisoned by pyemic germs in this pretty butter! I did not connect the two things, and continued every morning to touch the butter to my tongue, in the vain hope of finding something eatable. After five or six days a well-known member of the Boston Board of Trade passed beside my table and said, "Mrs. Dall, I hope you are not trying to eat that poison?" And then I discovered what the substance was. The sore mouth continued for four months! I ought to add that oleomargarine is gritty, though the grit is very fine, and it will not cream smooth with sugar or without, like true butter.—Boston Transcript.

The Norfolk Virginian lately mentioned among other cases, that of a prominent druggist of Warrenton, N. C., who on a business trip to Norfolk, severely injured himself by falling on the ice. By advice he used St. Jacobs Oil with such happy result, that he went on his way cured and rejoicing.

TRUE Temperance

Is not signing a pledge or taking a solemn oath that cannot be kept, because of the non-removal of the cause—liquor. The way to make a man temperate is to kill the desire for those dreadful, artificial stimulants that carry so many bright intellects to premature graves, and desolation, strife and unhappiness into so many families.

Isaiah! Brown's Iron Bitters, a true non-alcoholic tonic, made in Baltimore, Md., by the Brown Chemical Company, who are old druggists and in every particular reliable, will, by removing the craving appetite of the drunkard, and by curing the nervousness, weakness and general ill health resulting from intemperance, do more to promote temperance, in the strictest sense than any other means now known.

It is a well authenticated fact that many medicines, especially "bitters," are nothing but cheap whiskey vilely concocted for use in local option countries. Such is not the case with BROWN'S IRON BITTERS. It is a medicine, a cure for weakness and decay in the nervous, muscular, and digestive organs of the body, producing good, rich blood, health and strength. Try one bottle. Price $1.00.
