The Dredge Business.

There was some talk yesterday that threats had been made to blow up the city dredger, as it was an obstruction WEDNESDAY FEBRUARY 21, 1883 in the river. This report may have originated from the fact that the ship Young America was forced on the sands at Postoffice bar Friday by reason of one of the drodgers being in the channel, and the officer making some remark about the "blasted thing." The city dredge, now having cost about $50,000, is a matter of much concern and inquiry as to what is being done with it. A gentleman from below said that it is ashore on the east bank of the river, having been beached by the wind in spite of a tug that was trying to keep it in deep

The water at Swan Island is so shall low that the Young America could not get over the bar, and is now anare doing nothing but blocking up the channels, it cannot be expected that strange ships coming into port will regard them as ornaments, but on the contrary will consider them obstructions and resort to blasting. There is that shows how a person not informed up the main span of the West Wisconsin railroad bridge, which was set in the channel of Lake St. Croix, thinking it was an obstruction, and had removed about 2,000 piles before he discovered his mistake, and then the matter got into the courts, where it was decided that no one had a right to obstruct a channel commonly used -If the party signing himself by vessels.
