ASTORIA, OREGON:

TUESDAY MARCH 6, 1883 Indiana's Remarkable Divorce Laws

As illustrating some of the remarkable laws of Indiana on the subject of divorce, the Indianapolis Sentinel says the Hon. Thaddeus P. Rollins relates a story of a divorce which he procured in Cass county some years since before Judge Chase. The allegations in the complaint were drankenness and general worthlessness of the defendant. When the case came on a witness called to prove the character and habits of defendant. Mr. Rollins asked him the question: "Do you know Mr. ---, the defendant in this case, Mr. Baird?" The answer was in the affirmative. At this point Judge Chase looked up and said: "Mr. Baird, tell me if that is the same Mr. - who was in company K of the --- Indiana regiment during the war?" "The same man, judge," was the answer. "You need go no further, Mr. Rollins," said the judge, "the divorce is granted," and judgment was entered accordingly for plaintiff. After court adjourned the judge was joked about the hasty entry of the judgment, referring to the fact that no evidence had been introduced in the case "Why, gentlemen," said his honor, "I know that fellow. He was in my company during the war, and I never will let a woman live with him if she asks me for a divorce.

I know him better than any witness that can be brought here."

Mr. John Colohan and his wife, 301 E. Forty-first street, New York, were both cured, he of a severe sprain and his wife of theuhairing by one bottle of St. Jacobs Oil.
