

The Daily Astorian

ASTORIA, OREGON: SUNDAY, MARCH 11, 1923

The John O'Gaunt has arrived out.

The Eureka crossed out at 9:30 yesterday morning.

Regular meeting of Ocean Encampment to-morrow evening at 7:30 o'clock.

Gospel service in Y. M. C. A. room at 2:45 as usual. Song service from Gospel Hymns.

Loryea Bros' advertisement appears this morning. They are prepared to do all manner of plumbing, gas and steam fitting, etc.

There will be services in the German language at the Baptist church at two o'clock this afternoon; Rev. E. Wald, officiating.

A merry party of juveniles assembled at P. J. Goodman's yesterday afternoon, the occasion being a surprise party to his daughter Winnie.

Rev. J. C. Baker not being able to fill his appointment, there will be no preaching at the Baptist church on Sunday. Sunday School at 2 o'clock p. m.

The Henry Villard has cleared with $126,000 worth of breadstuffs for Liverpool. She is anchored at Sand Island. The Oregon will go to sea this morning.

The Standard thinks that the Portland school directors pay too much in giving their school janitor $100 a month for a few hours work each day sweeping out the school rooms.

Some one writing to the Oregonian about Clatsop spit and the Columbia bar, speaks of "Cape Disappointment." What can he refer to? Probably he means Cape Hancock.

H. Sloop, county superintendent of schools, asks us to make announcement that his office is west of the Catholic church, and his office days Friday and Saturday of each week.

The Seattle Herald says: Twenty-one head of Chinese merchandise with their packs landed here last night off the Elder from San Francisco, Victoria or some other port town. Wet nurses probably.

The tide gauge of Mr. Louis Wilson yesterday afternoon indicated oscillations of an unusual nature. It was the opinion of that gentleman that there was a violent storm raging many hundred miles westward.

The old "Union House" is being moved to the west; the earth taken away from its proposed site is being dumped on Benton street. That thoroughfare is to be planked over from Chenamus street south, this season.

A match game of base ball for a bat and ball, played yesterday afternoon, between the boys of school district No. 1, and school district No. 18, resulted in a victory for the former, who bore away the trophies in triumph.

Yesterday morning while Carrother's milk wagon was being repaired at Stinson's blacksmith shop, the horses which were attached to it, took fright and fled fast and far down Cass street. When they got to the corner of Chenamus the wagon turned a somersault to the north and the horses who saw a shower of milk cans in the sky wheeled to the west and made the best time on record out that boulevard. There was very little damage to either wagon or team.

To-day is the appointed time for that fearful storm to strike us. Wiggin's prophecy has struck terror to the hearts of his Canadian countrymen, many of whom according to the telegraph are wasting away for very fear of the things that shall come to pass. Talking to one of our pioneers yesterday concerning the probable termination of our long spell of fine weather, he said that thirty-one years ago on the first of this month he saw two-and-one-half feet of snow in Astoria. Were any such cataclysm of nature to occur in this year of grace what a surprised lot of folks we would be.

The annual meeting of the Y. M. C. A. of Astoria, will be held in the Congregational church this evening at 7 p. m. Address by Rev. A. L. Lindsey, D. D. The annual reports of treasury and secretary will be read. This anniversary meeting will be one of peculiar interest, and will be worthy of attendance. There will be no evening services in the Congregational, M. E., and Presbyterian churches.

The reliable H. B. Litt will be here some time this week to open a branch.

More Brick Buildings.

Among the many improvements that the present season will witness in Astoria the improved style of building will be manifest. The era of building brick structures may now be considered as fairly inaugurated. The Odd Fellows' building, now approaching completion is a good specimen of what the future will produce. Great difficulty, however, is sustained in getting labor and material. Contractors, architects, masons, carpenters, and bricklayers are alike busy, and unless agreements are made away in advance 'tis hard to count on getting anything done. Capt. Flavel contemplated building last season, but found it well-nigh impossible to get material, and when the Yaquina was burned with all the lime aboard, the idea was abandoned for the season. He intends putting up at least one brick building this season on the property on the southwest corner Main and Chenamus streets. It will be a three-story building, 50x100, fronting on Main street, and running back 100 feet on Chenamus street, and when finished will doubtless be in as good demand for stores and offices as is the present structure across the street from our office. In addition he intends to build this summer two structures, each 50x75 on the site adjacent to the bell tower.

School Meeting.

There will be an adjourned school meeting in the Main street school house to-morrow evening. It would be a good idea for every one interested (which includes every parent and taxpayer in the community) to be present. In the matter of a new school house it has been suggested by several that the foundations of a building be laid that will eventually fill all future demands, enclosed under one roof, present provision being made for present wants and the structure finished without any extraordinary demands upon taxpayers for the coming year. On the other hand is the idea of putting up a building that while not ready for immediate occupancy will, when finished, be of a nature to meet all possible demands for some time to come. The several views will doubtless be advanced and advocated to-morrow evening and some definite conclusion arrived at.

The Whitman Monument.

The design for the Whitman monument prepared by Rev. Dr. Hopkins has been adopted, and the contract for its building awarded to Harkins & Patterson of Portland. The monument will be built of light gray granite, quarried on Snake river and will be thirty-three feet in height. The site selected is eight miles from Walla Walla. Mr. Wm. H. Gray, of this county has devoted his life to the work of erecting a memorial to his friend and comrade, and his efforts are now in a fair way to be crowned with success. Contributions are necessary to aid in the work, and will be gladly received by that gentleman.

On Wednesday last three persons made an attempt to escape from the Seato, W. T., penitentiary, which ended with disastrous results. Jake Freeman was shot dead, Abe Reeves was dangerously wounded and Riley Field recaptured. It appears that there had been a preconcerted plan among a certain number of prisoners to escape. At the opportune moment they broke from the guard, but a shot brought down one. Freeman was afterwards overhauled and killed, while the third was taken without a shot at him. Freeman was serving two and a half years for burglary, since Dec. 1, 1882, and was a negro.—Standard.

'Tis wrong to beat your grocer Out of his honest dues, 'Tis worse to beat the cobler Out of his boots and shoes. There is a chance of pardon For him who steals your coal, But he who cheats the printer Will surely lose his soul. —Tennyson.

Weak lungs, spitting of blood, consumption, and kindred affections, cured without a physician. Address for treatise, with two stamps, WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Buffalo, N. Y.

Wood Choppers Wanted. Men who want to contract for cutting timber into cord-wood can get a chance for a contract by calling on JAS. BELL, Upper Astoria.

Astoria Musical Society. Those contemplating membership in this society should meet with the organization to-morrow evening, at the M. E. church. Prof. Cooke will have all necessary books and material, and the regular course will begin at that time.

Alert No. 1. There will be a meeting of Alert Hook & Ladder Co. at half-past seven, to-morrow evening. A full attendance is requested. By order of the President, C. Brown, Secretary.

In General.

There are a good many questions in this fleeting show that come up every little while. Some are persistently held above the general surface; among them are woman suffrage, tariff legislation, social privileges, prohibition, education and Sunday laws. At present the questions of this kind that occupy the greatest attention are woman suffrage and temperance. As to the first, we believe women should be given the right to vote if they want it. Probably if they had it they wouldn't value it any more than the men do, but it would dispose of one vexed problem anyhow, and make room for some other form of kindred discussion.

The matter of temperance embraces a wide area, and is often discussed in an intemperate way. Advocates of prohibition, high license, and so on often injure the cause they uphold by ignoring the difference between facts and opinions, and assuming that they have the absolute truth. It is natural for the average human to "kick." If he sees his fellow-man having what he considers too much personal liberty he "kicks." If that fellow-man is cinched by the men who are in the majority at the time, he "kicks." In Portland and Astoria at the present time the question is up for discussion. It is neither our province nor our purpose to usurp judicial, legislative or legal functions, but simply to state the case as it appears to us.

Our definition of liberty is, that we have a perfect right to do just what we feel like doing,—provided that we do not interfere with any one else's right to do the same. This it will be seen, affords considerable latitude to the individual, but yet makes him subservient to circumstances. Society is only an aggregation of individuals, and what would be admissible in the desert becomes a punishable offense in the city. The question is one that has been discussed ever since Noah went on a high old time after his alleged adventure in the ark. Some men want to drink, others don't want to drink, and don't want their fellow-creatures to have that privilege. Happiness is what we all seek: Temperance men and women enjoy happiness in spreading their doctrines and witnessing their success probably more than their adversaries do, in obtaining state recognition by means of license and safe guards that "regulate"—sometimes.

But narrowing this thing down to a smaller area it amounts to this. The state assumes certain rights; these rights are conceded; among them are laws regulating education; the state here takes away a certain amount of parental control and assumes partial charge of the children; few deny the right of the state to do this; the state also says, to the individual "if you commit crime you will be punished; if you steal you will be confined; if you murder, you will be hanged"—maybe; no one denies the right of the state to do this; these and other statutes are in accordance with the direct law of self-protection. In like manner the state reserves legislative right concerning the sale of liquor. It is conceded by all that excessive indulgence in alcoholic stimulant produces misery and shortens life. Here the state steps in and seeks to regulate the traffic. A man may eat too much, or sleep too much, or talk too much, or drink too much for coffee or tea, and thereby violate the laws of health, yet injure no one particularly beside himself, but should he indulge to excess in more potent stimulant he becomes eventually a public nuisance and a source of expense to the community. It makes no difference whether the individual wants this thing regulated or not; the state wills it, and the majority command it shall be done. But it should not be overdone. In Kansas and Iowa, fanatics and extremists got hold of the thing and imagined that their ideas must prevail. The mistake they made was in appealing to the feelings and the sentiment instead of influencing the judgment. The highest tribunal on earth is public opinion; its decisions must prevail; it has declared emphatically and repeatedly that the liquor traffic must be regulated and controlled; it is correct and proper that that should be done, but though it has often been tried no attempt has ever yet been successful where a man was taken by the collar and made good in spite of himself.

Human nature is one of those things that can not be legislated against; certain phases of it may and should be restrained, but in all well meant efforts to guide the public to a realization of what is best, care should be taken not to over do the thing by creating a feeling of resistance to sumptuary enactments.

HIS DEVOTIONS.

The organ peals, the choir is singing: I wonder if she knows I'm here! Her thoughts, no doubt, are upward winging, While mine sink, clogged with doubt and fear.

'Tis she, of course; there's no mistaking Her crowded, glossy braids of brown, And that's the bonnet she was making: I sat and watched her bead the crown.

How deft her fingers are, how busy! Ah! happy man within whose home— But, stay! such thoughts they make me dizzy, And have no place beneath this dome.

Far better should I ponder grimly My faults committed, duties missed, How neat her glove is and how trimly It buttons round her slender wrist!

Ah! vain and poor is earthly pleasure; To some more high and lasting treasure— They're sitting down; perhaps she'll turn— Thank Heaven, she sees me! She is flinging A sweet, reproachful glance my way. Yes, dear, indeed I have been singing, And now, my saint, I mean to pray.
