Railroad Rumors.

THE bustle and stir that marks this season's operations give rise to countless speculations and enterprises, some tangible and likely, others vague and indeterminate. Just at present the air is filled with rumors concerning railroads. If half what is said comes to pass, Astoria will have more railroads than she can dispose of. It may be as well to briefly state that no railroad will come to Astoria this season. It is within the limits of probability that work will be begun next season. This may be in opposition to general belief, but it is the fact nevertheless. The O. & C. seems the most lively; its stockholders hold a meeting next Tuesday in Portland where supplemental articles of incorporation will be submitted, and no doubt adopted, such supplementary provisions looking with other things to the building of a road from Forest Grove to Astoria. This is done for effect, and to show congress that they really want to prevent the forfeiture of the Astoria land grant by complying with the original provisions of the conditional grant. The O. & C. has been leased by the Oregon and Transcontinental, and no part of the present programme of that corporation contemplates the building of the road.

Then comes the Kalama branch from Portland; that will be built to the stated point, but no farther down the Columbia this season. The contemplated transfer of all the O. R. & N. Co.'s interests to the Northern Pacific R. R. Co., to be made this season is sufficient evidence of that.

The Oregon Short Line, according to Sidney Dillon "will go to tidewater." There is no intention to stop at Baker City and the recent agreement with the O. R. & N. Co., does not prevent extending the road; there are now parties of surveyors on Snake and Burnt rivers, and this force will be augmented as the season advances.

Coming nearer home there is talk of the revival of local railroad interest, and making such arrangements as will insure the building of a railroad to Astoria; this has assumed tangible form and will be productive of results in the near future. It is not deemed best to give undue publicity to plans at present.

The St. Louis Globe Democrat says that there is a significance in the present tour of President Diaz through the United States which has not hitherto been made public. International courtesies and improvement of commercial relations are well enough, but it is not believed the hospitality and enthusiasm have an influence prompting it all. Diaz is in the hands of a syndicate of Americans interested in Mexican railroad development. His present position in Mexico makes him extremely valuable, and their plans contemplate they will be still more available in the future. After his return to Mexico he is expected to be still more widely recognized than ever as the leading man of that Republic. His re-election to the presidency is the object the syndicate have in view, and then their hopes of controlling the valuable concessions Mexico has bestowed on railroad companies will be fulfilled. How far Diaz is a passive instrument of his party, and how far he enters actively into the grand plan of controlling the politics and railroads of Mexico, it is impossible to tell, but enough has been developed during the stay of the general and companions in St. Louis to show something of the organization. As the matter now stands, the alliance is a powerful one, but if the plan of re-electing Diaz to the presidency succeeds, the syndicate will be one of immense strength in the railroad interests of Mexico. It has representatives and influences in Denver, New Orleans, St. Louis, Kansas City or Mexico and Chihuahua.

A LONDON special of the 3d says the queen still finds discomfort from her accident at Windsor. She is not, however, confined to her rooms. She drives out regularly, although unable to walk, nor can she remain in a standing position beyond a few minutes at a time.

SENATOR VEST arrived in St. Louis last Tuesday, on his way home to Kansas City. In an interview he said the next president certainly would be a Democrat. He believed McDonald, of Indiana, the most available man. He is popular in his own state, and to Vest's surprise, is strong in the eastern states. In regard to Tilden's probable candidacy he said: "Tilden is a strong man and would make a good candidate if his health would permit. I understand his health is much improved at present. I am inclined to think the race will be between Arthur and McDonald. Arthur is working for the next nomination. It is a mistake that he and Conkline have fallen out. Logan may give Arthur trouble."

MUNICIPAL elections in Ohio, Indiana and Illinois show Democratic majorities. In Chicago the entire Democratic ticket was elected by 6,000 majority.
