The Daily Astorian.

ASTORIA, OREGON:

THURSDAY.....APRIL 12, 1883

Pointers.

THE Hindus pray to 330,000,000 gods.

Arkansas has doubled its population in ten years. It is now the fourth cotton state.

The sailor is very much like his ship. When they go ashore they are very liable to get broken up.

Can such things be? An advertisement in the London Times calls for "a wet nurse, single and respectable."

The Cleveland Leader, in speaking of curiosities in the census reports concludes that the greatest rarity in them is accuracy.

A New Jersey widow is said to have changed her religion because she wished to avoid meeting her husband in the next world.

The Detroit Free Press notes the fact that there hasn't been one single well-defined case of crankism since Guiteau dropped through the scaffold.

A Florada alligator culturist has over 1,000 little reptiles in stock to fill spring orders from the North, and he laughs at men who waste their time in congress at $5,000 per year.

Mrs. Carter, of Bellair, O., says in her application for divorce that her husband compelled her to swallow spools, buttons, long strings of wrapping yarn and marbles as punishment for smiling at other railroad men as they passed the house.

The Monroe (Ala.) Journal preaches a powerful sermon in four lines, as follows: "It is of the gaming table we would speak. It makes thieves. It makes defaulters. It makes suicides. It breaks hearts, wrecks characters, blasts hopes and destroys manhood.

The Chinese have no word that is equivalent to hell and no conception of such a place. A missionary in an agricultural district of China states that when he tried to explain it the people asked if it was anything that could be raised. He might have answered that it was—very often.

The enterprising Sioux City (Mo.) Journal has the following among its city items: "Parties intending to cross on the ice will confer a favor on the reporter if before starting, they will furnish him with some point about the date of their birth, when they came west and other facts needed in first-class obituary notices.

A comparison of statistics shows New York as the third German city in the world coming after Berlin and Vienna. Chicago, Philadelphia and St. Louis rank close to Frankfort, Hamburg and Dresden. Boston is the only large city in the country where Germans are not found in large numbers.

The Middletown, (Del.) Transcript sets aside its editorial dignity long enough to say that "those who write for a sample copy of the paper must inclose a postage stamp, not for publication, but as evidence that they don't take us for a bald-headed philanthropist, with a gold-headed cane and an income of $700,000 a year, who is printing a paper for amusement and paying the postage for fun."

Politics are out of season, and so the St. Louis Republican finds room and time to consider the question "whether it was a fish or a whale that got sick of indigestible Jonah." An extract sufficient to show the Republican's position on this great and ever-interesting topic is here given: "The subject involves a question natural history, which might as well be stated at this stage of the controversy. The popular idea is that a whale is a species of fish. This is a fallacy. Fish belong to the lowest order of vetebrata and are cold-blooded, while whales belong to the highest order of vertebrata—are warm-blooded mammals like the human race. Between fish and whales come reptiles and then birds—a wide separation in the scale of creation. The two orders of animals cannot be classed together or confounded at all. Besides a whale's throat is very small and could not possibly have taken in Jonah. Evidently it was not a whale."
