

The Daily Astorian.

ASTORIA, OREGON: SATURDAY, APRIL 14, 1883

Just for Instance.

Mr. HENRY VILLARD arrives at Astoria this morning. 'Tis now over eighteen months since the seaport of Oregon was honored by a visit from the head of the vast system of railroads that is developing this great northwest at such a rate.

When C. P. Huntington, vice-president of the Central Pacific Railroad company, was several years ago looking through the Willamette valley for a railroad route, he turned to his companion and asked about a route through the Coast Range to Astoria, and remarked that if there were a good route to Astoria that Astoria should be the great market for the wheat of the Willamette valley, and that a railroad would be built there.

But great railroad men are like ourselves, mortal and fallible. Several years have passed since Mr. Huntington's visit to the Willamette valley, and there is no railroad to Astoria yet, notwithstanding a large land grant of more value than the proposed railroad was given to aid in building the railroad.

Subsequent events show that Mr. Villard meant what he said then. Sometimes it happens, however, that presidents of great railroad corporations do not always have things happen just to suit them. So it was with Gov. Stanford, of California, who said in a public speech at Sacramento that he meant that city should be the great terminus of the Central Pacific railroad.

Astoria is, however, entirely independent of Mr. Villard or his plans. Should he see fit to do otherwise than ignore the only seaport that Oregon possesses, we shall not feel at all disappointed. But the railroad or Mr. Villard has more need for Astoria than Astoria has for the railroad.

A bill has passed the Wisconsin assembly to imprison tramps in the state prison for not less than six months nor more than one year.

A Vermont judge has ruled that where liquor is sent into the state marked C. O. D., the sale is made in the state, and hence is contrary to law.

The recent general assembly of North Carolina voted a pension of $75 a year to all the maimed or disabled ex-confederate soldiers of that state.

Six detectives attended the Vanderbilt ball in New York. The great railroad king did not, of course suspect that he had invited any thieves.

The railroad people and speculators having an interest in the Yellowstone National Park hope that the president will visit "Wonderland" this summer.

Edward Atkinson, illustrating the advantage of machinery, says it would require 16,000,000 persons, using the spinning wheel and hand-loom of less than a century ago to make the cotton cloth used by our people, which is now manufactured by 160,000.

A lawsuit to determine the ownership of a large meteoric stone which recently fell in Emmet, Iowa, is about to be tried. The owner of the land on which it fell claims that it is his for that reason, and the man who saw it fall and dug it up believes the court will hold his title perfect. The stone has considerable value for it weighs 600 pounds.

It is said that Roscoe Conkling happened in the library of congress, a few days ago, when Mr. Blaine was working away in a side alcove, but the librarian answered his questions quickly, produced the works of reference, and placed the New York lawyer at a safe distance from his old antagonist. The two men sat within twenty feet of one another for nearly an hour, and neither apparently knew of the other's proximity.

Hon. John C. Knox of Philadelphia, who was the democratic leader in the Pennsylvania legislature of 1846 and in 1853, and was elected Supreme Judge by 40,000 majority, is passing the evening of his life in the Insane Asylum at Harrisburg, where he has been since 1877. Says the Philadelphia Times: "He was one of the most accomplished and genial of men, and the evening of his once useful and promising life is unspeakably sad."

At a recent meeting of "original Mormons" at Kirkland, Ohio, some strong speeches were made. Rev. C. Gurley, speaking of the Utah Mormons or Brighamites, said: "They are dissenters from the original church. The people of Utah, men and women, have practiced the meanest things that ever disgraced the world. I am sorry that such a terrible thing as polygamy exists. It is a curse as black as Egyptian darkness. I do not take stock in any religious followers who do not live in a country to obey its laws. I would rather have my child a rank infidel than a Utah Mormon practicing polygamy. We hope the United States government will draw a distinction between the Reorganized church of Latter Day Saints and those latter day devils at Utah."

Oscar Wilde is entertaining his London friends with caricatures of this country and its "horrid 'ouses."

TUTT'S PILLS advertisement. A bill has passed the Wisconsin assembly to imprison tramps in the state prison for not less than six months nor more than one year. Six detectives attended the Vanderbilt ball in New York. The great railroad king did not, of course suspect that he had invited any thieves. The railroad people and speculators having an interest in the Yellowstone National Park hope that the president will visit "Wonderland" this summer. Dundee merchants, many of whom carry standing credit in the United States of from $75,000 to $100,000, say they have much fewer bad debts in the United States than in Europe.
