

The Daily Astorian.

ASTORIA, OREGON:

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 18, 1883

The Albina Herald is for sale. The Fleetwood leaves for Portland at ten o'clock this morning. It is rumored that the Northern Pacific Express company is non est.

A company of cavalry, for Walla Walla was among the Oregon's passengers yesterday. The Red Pocket-book is the best drama rumor sayeth will be produced in this city.

The bark Elanore is in the stream lumber laden, and goes to Honolulu to-day. The Oregon arrived in at 10:15 yesterday morning. The Queen sails to-day.

Mias A. R. Luss, the celebrated elocutionist, will read at Liberty Hall next Friday. See adv. Attention is directed to the advertisement of A. M. Johnson & Co., in reference to Neville & Co.'s twine.

John Hagen, who was injured by being run over by a loaded truck last Monday was resting easy yesterday afternoon. Messrs. Bowlby, Fulton and Taylor went up on the Wide West yesterday afternoon to attend the supreme court at Salem.

A Booth arrived from Chicago on yesterday's steamer. He contemplates remaining about two weeks and will then take a trip to Europe. The last number of the Polaris has a well written article on "The sea-girl shore," where the joys of summer travel on the Columbia are attractively set forth.

We are in receipt of a beautiful chart "with the compliments of the N. Y. Life Ins. Co.," in relation to the genealogy of Washington, and the origin of the Stars and Stripes. Lewiston is going to send a delegation to Walla Walla to interview Mr. Villard in reference to the Oregon Short Line. We presume the conversation will be carried on in English.

The captain of the Gen. Custer brought the Magnet around from the scene of her mishap yesterday afternoon, and now she lies at the Main street wharf. Her owners have not showed up yet. Joseph Smith is building a large sawmill on Tillamook bay. Joseph will be remembered as the gentleman who represented Clatsop county and voted for Mr. Duniway for United States Senator last Fall.

Mr. John Muir, Sept. of traffic of the O. R. & N. Co., informs us that the Pacific Coast Steamship Co. will conduct a series of excursions to Alaska during the coming summer. The trip from Astoria and return will cost $95. The arrival of the ocean and river steamers simultaneously make lively times on the dock. Yesterday an unusually large crowd got off the Oregon and about the time the human stream began to lessen, the Wide West came flying down from Portland.

Spoiled the Fun.

"Yar missin all the fun," said a man yesterday, whose lack of handicraft facilities was compensated by the careless grace with which he wiped his blooming nose on his shirt-sleeve. We were heading for the O. R. & N. dock where the Oregon was momentarily expected, but on our countless informer stating that there was a prize fight in progress "in the other end of town" we concluded the steamer would wait, especially as our informer insisted "you just ought to see 'em manlin' each other," and he spat upon the ground with vehemence.

Just our luck; as we sighted the prize ring, on the ground where the A. B. Field was built, Clark Laughrey hove in sight and the 150 who had come to see fair play scattered. The experts of the many art of self-defense also ceased operations and disregarding all suggestions of finish upset all the Marquis of Queensbury rules by "fighting out."

The chief grabbed one of them who said he didn't know anything about it, but as he had no shirt on, it was deemed circumstantial evidence. The other was also caught and both were put in jail, a charge of fighting being preferred against them. They were brought before Judge Winton at two o'clock: in answer to the interrogatory "guilty or not guilty," the one first alluded to—Lewis Sternberg—began a lecture on the necessity of taking one's own part when his antagonist made use in conversation of sundry metaphors concerning alleged descent from canine maternity.

"One hundred dollars, or twenty days in the city jail," was the judicial comment, which, was repeated in the case of Joe Stevens, Mr. Sternberg's competitor for the belt. It is singular that the chief of police can't tell men alone when they are amusing themselves. True, they were stripped to the waist and illustrating in their person the lofty impulses that inspired their practical benevolence, but yet it does seem as though the natural exuberance of joyous youth should be given sway.

Ordinance No. 413 is spoken of in the most disrespectful manner consequent upon yesterday's stoppage of sport. THE ASTORIAN claims its city is the second in size of Oregon towns. Astoria may have more wealth, as two or three other places have, than East Portland, but in population this place is second, ranking above Astoria and Salem.—East Portland Vindicator.

We'll count population with you. Major Blakeney, superintendent of the life saving service on this coast, who has been in the city since Sunday, goes below on the Queen to-day. He has made a complete tour of the northwest coast and expresses himself well satisfied with the efficiency of the stations under their present management.

About one o'clock yesterday morning a fire broke out in the saloon of Link & Blake, at Ranier, and burned the building and contents. The building which was worth $1,000 was owned by Dean Blanchard; the stock and fixtures were valued at $1,500; all was a total loss; the cause of the fire is unknown. The cost of the roadway to Uniontown, past the Cutting Packing Co., to connect Concomly street with the county road to Smith's point is about $1,600; of this the C. P. Co. pay about $400, leaving $1,200 for the public.

Of this latter sum about $600 has been subscribed without conditions attached. Some of this has been collected but will be refunded unless arrangements can be made to throw the road open to the public. This is a clear case of "the greatest good to the greatest number," and should not be allowed to lapse. At La Center on Lewis river, one day last week a fisherman from this city while fishing for trout, with salmon roe for bait, hooked and landed a salmon of the riverside variety, weighing 14 1/2 pounds. The hotel keeper there said it was the largest fish he had seen taken there with a hook.

Three more salmon were hooked, but succeeded in breaking away from the lack of proper tackle. It is generally understood that salmon eat nothing after entering the river, but from the above incident it appears that the silver side must be made an exception.—Oregonian.

Foreign Salmon Notes.

The London special correspondent of the American Grocer states in substance as follows: The 2500 cases of salmon offered at auction the 9th ult. met with little support. Bids opened at 15s. and stopped at 20s. It was announced that 22s. was the lowest price acceptable, at which the lot was bought in. The goods were drawn against 24s. c. f. and l., consignees expecting to repay themselves with an advance, but are out, of course, for landing charges, rent, insurance, etc., to say nothing of their commission.

This is not encouraging to packers at the opening of a new season. It should be strong reason for packers refusing the extra-vagant demands of fishermen. With Columbia river salmon down to 22s. per case in London in March, pray how can packers expect to get that price for Columbia river in May? The I. S. C. S. L. A. G. seems to be writing in the interest of the bears. The Grocer's Gazette, of London says:

"There is a fair trade passing, and if the weather were somewhat more favorable would doubtless cause a capital business. The Spirit of the Dawn, with 31,000 cases of Fraser river salmon, has arrived here this week. The quality of the shipment is good, some parcels being particularly so, and it is satisfactory to notice the marked improvement in quality over earlier arrivals from this river. Some large parcels have been bought on speculative account at secret prices. The correspondent of the Gazette, writing from Liverpool says: A much better feeling prevails in our market, and several large parcels have changed hands at current prices.

The country demand is again setting in, and in such a manner that shows to a certainty that the grocers have allowed their stocks to completely disappear, thinking to buy to better advantage, but they have now been forced to give way, and there is a general and steady demand now in progress.

The body of the late Immanuel Johansen was found yesterday morning about fifty yards from where he fell in. A careful examination of the body resulted in finding no external marks of violence on the body, and the inference is that the poor fellow, fell on some lumber and rolled into the water in a stunned condition. It is certain that he made no attempt to shoot himself and almost as certain that it was a case of accidental drowning. Under the circumstances the coroner did not consider it necessary to put the county to the expense of holding an inquest. The funeral will take place from the Episcopal church at two o'clock this afternoon.

We learn of the death in Stockholm, Sweden, on the 9th of March, of Pehr Thomason, at the age of sixty-six, a well known Swedish writer; his name, no doubt, is familiar to many of our readers, who, on hearing of his death, will recall the literature of his childhood, the pure and simple stories of peasant life. Though but of local fame, around his name shall ever cluster holy memories, and on him will the honor be bestowed of having laid the foundation of literary taste among the Swedish people. To the pure moral tone of his novels, portraying the beauties of home life among the dwellers in his native land, coming years will be indebted for the happiness and liberty on Scandinavian soil.

The Falda is the name of a new ship lately built in Scotland for service between New York and Bremen. She is a magnificent vessel of 5,124 tons gross, built by John Elder & Co., of Glasgow. The vessel lately went on a run extending over six hours, the trip being prolonged from Cambrae Light to Corsewall Light, beyond the mouth of Loch Ryan, and back again. Over that great stretch of sea, and the time mentioned with the tide against her both ways, she attained, says Engineering, the extraordinary speed of 17.803 knots, or upward of 20 1/2 statute miles per hour, a speed which has never yet been exceeded by any other great ocean steamer, with the exception of the Alaska and the Stirling, which were also built in Fairfield Shipyards.
