

The Daily Astorian

ASTORIA, OREGON: TUESDAY, MAY 1, 1883

May 1st. Collection day. San rises, 5:05; sun sets, 6:50. High water 7:02 A. M.: 8:23 P. M.

The Saranac came down yesterday afternoon. The Queen left out for San Francisco.

The Dayton Chronicle says "we raise our own printers." Do they stand the raise!

J. O. Bozorth, clerk of school district No. 1, gives notice concerning the assessment for '83.

The Masonic land and building association have let a contract for the building of a cottage residence opposite the school house in Shively's Astoria.

Regular communication of Temple Lodge No. 7, F. and A. M., this evening. Full attendance requested, to act on important report of land committee.

Engineer DeMill announces that he has got through laying gas pipe. Everything is ready now to put gas fixtures into houses and stores and turn on the illumination.

Jas. Austin, postmaster at Seaside, informs us that all they need to have a good school there this summer is a teacher. Here is a chance for some one. Write to Mr. A. for full particulars.

The Oregon state board of pilot commissioners went down to the great deep on the Miles yesterday afternoon on their semi-annual tour of inspection. To-day they hold their regular meeting in this city.

The salmon are running better this week. Reports from up river canneries are that salmon average ten to the boat. One reports high boat at 41, and so on down to 7, ten boats bringing in 103 fish.

The fire alarm last Sunday night was the usual story: "Chinaman's chimney." The same chimney came near being the cause of another fire alarm yesterday afternoon. That chimney and other chimneys like it will be costly affairs if not fixed as they ought to be.

Henry Villard told the Walla Walla folks last Saturday, that he would assure them such cheap rates on freight down the Columbia that they "wouldn't care whether produce went to Portland or the Sound." They might prefer to ship in bulk to Astoria and load deep sea going vessels at the seaport of Oregon.

D. P. Thompson is going ahead with the Columbia Water company. Last Saturday he bought the entire property of the Welch Hill water works, paying therefor $6,500, which was cheap. The transfer will be made July 1st. Yesterday Mr. Thompson bought Youngs river falls from Wm. Kniepmeier, paying for that picturesque bit of scenery the sum of $2,500.

A new mode of fattening oysters has been discovered and used at Franklin City to great advantage, especially as the oysters are poor this season. The oysters are put in floats and covered with fresh water two or three inches deep. A hose attached to the boiler of a steamer is then used to heat the water just enough to cause the oysters to open their mouths and to drink. After taking three or four drinks they fatten rapidly and are soon ready for the market.

The Grocers' Gazette, London, under date of April 7th, says of salmon: "A better demand prevails, particularly for the product of northern rivers, which, being of satisfactory quality and decidedly cheaper than Columbia river, meets with considerable attention. Our Liverpool correspondent writes: The demand for Columbia river packing is at present very slow, but prices are well sustained, and there is no reason to anticipate any weakness, the whole being well and firmly held." The writer of the above ignores the fact that Columbia salmon is the best.

Fire in a China house brings out the "human nature," or rather cross-grained inhuman nature of the Chinaman in full bloom. He never thinks of trying to save any property, of trying to put the fire out; he merely grabs his bundle and makes for the door. For that reason it is always in order to give them a good wetting down. It would be an admirable preventative to those fellows if they knew that when the engines got there they were in for a good swish that would sweep some of the nastiness out, and be of sanitary benefit as well as giving them to understand that water had some terrors for them if a burning chimney hadn't.

If You Want to See Something really fine, call at the establishment of ED. D. CURTIS & Co., and see those beautiful Center and Corner Pieces for ceilings. They are the finest goods of the kind ever brought to Astoria. Parties contemplating house improvement will be pleased to see them. A full line of wall paper, rugs and carpets.

Drowned in the Necanicum.

About six miles from the Seaside on the Necanicum, John Hoffman a single man aged about 40 years, has lived on a claim for a number of years. Of late he has been somewhat unlucky, and was on the point of going away. His evident symptoms of insanity excited the interest of his neighbors, and after the burning of his house, about five weeks ago it was noticed that he was entirely out of his mind. About a month ago he disappeared and the only trace of him that could be found were foot tracks leading to the creek, showing where he had forded it, and then started down to the creek again where the tracks stopped. Diligent search was made but to no purpose, till last Sunday when one of the neighbors found his dead body lying on the bank. The inevitable presumption is that he started in a frenzy to wade the creek, and the swift current took him off his feet into a deep hole below. Under the circumstances it was considered unnecessary to hold an inquest, and the body was yesterday given decent burial by the residents of that locality.

How Villard got a Start.

Villard has made a great fortune. It is put at all kinds of figures. Some say he has from $20,000,000 to $25,000,000. Villard was a young German of respectable but not an aristocratic family, who came to this country some years before the war. He had a knack for business and although for some years he had to be a newspaper correspondent and get beaten around from point to point, he kept money in his mind. He made his first money in a big whisky deal in Washington. Aware that the taxes would have to be raised in order to provide the government with the revenue, he addressed himself to knowing when and to what extent the taxes would be raised on vital matters like whisky, tobacco, etc. In that way he became connected with Horace White, who was a political correspondent, clerk of committee, etc. Those men and a few of their friends made good round sums of money for that day, perhaps $50,000 to $150,000 apiece.

Steamer Day.

Last Sunday was what might be termed "steamer day" at Astoria. About eleven o'clock the Oregon fired her gun, arriving from San Francisco; in her wake came the Idaho from the north, with coal for Capt. Flavel; and about four miles astern steamed in the Gypsy a jaunty little craft from below, with combustible. This boat will go into the lime trade between San Juan and Tacoma. In the meantime the Willamette was making a landing just down from Portland, and with the deep bass of the ocean steamers whistles alternated the lighter treble of the river steamers. Every dock had a steamer in front of it and presented a lively appearance. In the near future we hope to have such bustle of arrivals and departures a daily occurrence.

The London Fish Exhibition.

The largest and most complete fish show ever held will be opened by Queen Victoria at the South Kensington gardens, London, during the present month, which in importance and extent, it is expected, will eclipse the great exhibition of 1879. All branches connected with fish or fishing in their practical, commercial, scientific, and historic ways will be represented. One class of exhibits will include sea fishing gear of all kinds. Fresh water fishing will be represented by rods, reels, artificial flies, etc. Another class will show all kinds of articles used and worn by fishermen, even to the clothing. Fish in all forms canned and uncanned, as prepared for commerce will occupy a large space, and will constitute one of the most important features of the show.

From former shows of this kind held in Europe great benefit has been reaped by this country. Above all, a vast increase of export trade for American fish products has sprung up from these exhibitions. To Australia alone are now sent ten times as many of these products as in 1870—last year's shipments amounted to two million dollars.

The fishing interests of the United States greatly exceed those of any other country, and it is expected that the exhibits shown by us will surpass all others in the completeness and variety of articles shown. For the collective exhibit at Berlin the United States obtained the first prize and the greatest fame; and the collection made up for London is more perfect, especially in angler's material, than the one sent to Berlin.

Prof. Baird has loaned and sent over from the Smithsonian Institution a very large and important collection of fresh, stuffed, and preserved fish, and many plaster casts of odd and curious occupants of the sea. The spacious structure in which the exhibition is to be held is located in the beautiful gardens of South Kensington.

The Berlin exhibition was visited by 483,000 people, while this one in London, a city of 5,000,000 inhabitants, will unquestionably be visited by several million.

Where it Went to.

When there was a show for a railroad to a certain village in Michigan, the citizens of the town came forward as they were able and subscribed for stock, and the road was finally built. A year or so after, when the man who had worked up the boom was settled in a fat position, and figured prominently in railroad reports, a subscriber called upon him and said: "Mr. Blank, I subscribed for $100 worth of stock in the G. R. Y. road." "Yes." "That made me a stockholder." "It did." "But I have never been notified of any meetings, and I understand that my stock has no value." "Well, you see, we had to mortgage the road for the iron." "Yes." "Then we changed the name." "Yes." "Then we pooled with the B. & W. road." "Yes." "Then we cleared out the old board and elected a new one." "Yes." "Then we voted to extend to the present terminus." "Yes." "Well, just where the vote was which cancelled your stock or absorbed it, I cannot remember, but if you are laboring under the delusion that you have any financial interest in our road, the president will request the vice-president to instruct the auditor to order the secretary to consult the minutes of the various meetings and try and discover which hole the common stock went into when the preferred was pulled out by the tail."
