

The Daily Astorian.

ASTORIA, OREGON: WEDNESDAY, MAY 2, 1883

En Passant.

An article in the Oregonian of the 30th ult., entitled "Mr. Villard and Portland," makes the excellent point that something more than railroads are needed to make a great city...

THE Oregon Short Line, according to Sidney Dillon "will go to tide water." There is no intention says the Nez Perce News to stop at Baker City and the recent agreement with the O. R. & N. Co., does not prevent extending the road; there are now parties of surveyors on Snake and Burnt rivers, and this force will be augmented as the season advances.

"A MONUMENT is proposed to Peter Cooper's memory." Peter Cooper built his own monument, and the good heartful influence of the Cooper Institute will perpetuate the name and fame of that good old man better than the grandest monument that was ever built.
