

The Daily Astorian

ASTORIA, OREGON: SATURDAY, JUNE 2, 1923

H. A. Morse has been appointed postmaster at Skamokawa. The Ulock comes down to-day to load salmon at Astoria. The American ship Corsica, now lying at Portland, is for sale. Prayer meeting in the Y. M. C. A. rooms this evening at 8 o'clock. E. C. Holden advertises his regular auction sale at ten this morning. The N. P. R. R. now extends over 600 miles eastward from Portland. If this weather keeps on much longer we will have to get a street sprinkler. The Washington Territory Grand Lodge of Free Masons will meet in Seattle next Friday. R. E. Marion advertises 500 cords dry hemlock wood for sale delivered in lots to suit. George Debord fell from a Dayton warehouse last Thursday, and sustained injuries resulting in death. The Sparrow is in the stream, lumber-laden. The Boda goes southward from Knappa, next Tuesday. Vancouver is troubled by ghosts who desecrate the cemetery. The statutes contain no punishment adequate for such offense. The Queen arrived in yesterday. The Idaho came down, and will sail for Alaska to-day. The Columbia leaves for San Francisco to-day. The president has accepted the section of the Northern Pacific from the 325th to the 350th mile, east of Wallula Junction, Washington territory. Portland's credit is good. The First National Bank has taken the new twenty-year six-per-cent loan of $20,000, paying 2 1/2 per cent premium on the bonds. The Albina Herald reports that a party of surveyors has started out to mark out the line of the East Portland and Cascade Mountain Railroad to Eagle Cliff. J. O. Bozorth is confined to his house by sickness. Some few days ago he injured his head in moving some heavy furniture, and yesterday it troubled him considerably. No salmon in the Vancouver market. Fishermen complain, going and coming every night with empty nets, save a sturgeon and a snag every now and then. Independent. The ballast has been partially hoisted out of the Emma T. Crowell and to-day she will take on the first of her cargo; about 2,000 cases were put aboard the Regale yesterday. There are about one hundred families settled in the Skamokawa valley, the larger part engaged in dairy farming. Three logging camps are also established, cutting a total of two million feet monthly. The thirtieth annual convocation of the Protestant Episcopal church in Oregon will convene in St. Paul's church, Salem, on Thursday evening, June 7, and continue its session to the following Sunday. The incorporated banks are not loaning money on mortgages, since the decision of the supreme court, holding that mortgages are taxable property. A person who wants to borrow money must get some responsible party to sign a note as security. William M. Roberts, alias L. C. Montgomery, who was arrested at Seattle this week, charged with swindling the First National bank of Pueblo, Col., out of $6,000, goes to San Francisco by the Columbia, sailing to-day, in charge of Wells, Fargo & Co's detective. The West Shore for May is received. It is a magnificent number, and is profusely illustrated with fine engravings. The next issue will be mostly devoted to a description and illustration of the seaport of Oregon. Astorians will doubtless order an extra 30,000 or 40,000 copies. It will be a big advertisement for the place. D. L. June, who died in Portland last week from being thrown out of a dog-cart, was to have been a contestant in a Pacific county land suit, which was tried at the Vancouver land office on Monday. He was defendant in the case, which went for plaintiff. Deceased was at one time a law partner of ex-President Hayes, at Fremont, Ohio. In the supreme court last Tuesday, in the case of J. H. DeForce, appellant, vs. Nancy Welch and others, respondents—Decree was affirmed. Opinion by Lord, J. The legislature recognizing the fact that the people had dealt with and sold the tide lands adjacent to their other lands, as their own, provided by the act of 1874 that the purchaser of any tide land from the owner of the land adjacent to such tide land, shall have the right to purchase the same from the state. By this act the legislature recognizes the rights of purchasers from adjacent owners.

How to Make a City. When a man doing business in your own town and who employs men who buy all they eat and wear of you, asks you for your trade tell him you can get your work done cheaper in Portland. When your folks want a pair of shoes or a hat or dress sent to Portland for it. When an itinerant peddler comes along to take your measure for a shirt or a coat or a cook-stove or a pair of boots, give him the order and then wonder why Astoria merchants don't keep a larger stock. Always deplore the fact that your city isn't any bigger than it is, that the theaters, the streets, and so on are not as nice as you'd like to have them, lose no chance in getting in a bid at the lack of the refining influences that you'd like to see and would so grandly appreciate and constantly refer to Portland as possessing all these elements and evidence of a culture. Then at the end of the year sit down and figure up just how much you are ahead by sending your money away and thereby saving two bits, and take into account this problem—Suppose we all did the same thing how would you, individually, stand it? Would you be as well off? Would the bright little, go-ahead city of which you should be proud, be what she is if everyone did as you do? If you have a spark of public spirit you will say "NO!" If you haven't, it makes very little difference whether you stay or go.

Duette vs Dudes. Speaking of dudes we wish to say a few words on the subject, not on the dudes but on the word, the name. Now if the new outgrowth from slangdom is to be admitted into the King's English upon an equal footing with other common nouns let us settle upon some decent termination which will make it applicable to the fair sex, for it would be absurd to say that there are no female dudes, for you may perhaps have noticed that a lady writing to the Catawchee Gyrafte to inquire what is the feminine of dude, to which the editor very complacently answers duette. Now where did that learned dictator get his knowledge? Ancient history is silent on the subject; science it seems has not grappled with it, orthopists have eschewed it, and unless he can produce something better than his mere dictum we are going to rebel; we object to the "ette," for many reasons; first, we have too many etts altogether; second, "ette" is not the proper thing, it is not only arbitrary, but a perversion of the sense of the suffix, which being a diminutive cannot be bulldozed into a simple expression of gender. Now, we might call it Dadoo or Doodledo for that matter, but we have a terminal already in use which is euphonious, graceful and proper and as we believe in the survival of the fittest, we contend for its application in this case. Duette indeed! now suppose the fair dudes should be a two hundred pounder wouldn't she be a petite Duette, and when the ladies come to talk of Miss Antonette being a brunette wearing a rosette and smoking the fragrant cigarette being a duette wouldn't the repetition be monotonous well, allow us to just blandly whisper that it would. Now as the ladies have been, as they have a perfect right to be, the first to inquire into this matter, we think they will agree with us that duette is the proper and the only proper feminine for dude. We have princess, empress, actress, dectress, and so on, and why not dudes. In conclusion, Mr. Editor, allow us to hope that the press, the great promoter and director of thought, the great laboratory of public opinion, will earnestly, and persistently sit down on the duette, that is, on the term, the name, you know.

Getting the Worth of His Money. Yesterday evening a man, a little top heavy, rushed into the telegraph office, seized a telegraph blank and by propping himself against the counter, managed to write the following message: "Kate; I won't be home till morning." "HARRY." "What'll that cost?" said the man, handing the message to Mr. Hamilton, the gentlemanly manipulator of electricity. "Let me see. Seven words—40 cents." "Forty, oh! How much for ten words!" "The same price; anything not exceeding ten will cost you 40 cents to any address in Portland," answered the operator, making a spring to muzzle an instrument that was spluttering as if it had delirium tremens. "I'm bound to have the worth of my money out of you corporations then," said the man, bracing himself against the counter as he traced on a blank this clear message: "Incomprehensibility, manufacturer, transcendentalism, Pen D'Ouille, concavo-convex, L'Esace, assassination, Skookum, imperturbability, philoprogenitiveness." "There, string that on your wire and send her at a 2-40 gait," said the man, with a look of vengeance in his eye. The operator counted the words, but volunteered the information that there was no sense in the message. "I know there's no sense in it, but Kate'll understand it all the same; when I know I'm on a drunk anyway I'll send a message, whether its sense or not. I make 'em long on purpose to break the back of your damned machine. Shovel 'em in and start the crank. I'm in for a good time. Never mind the expense, here's your forty cents." And the man ran out and offered to bet that No. 2's time would be beat at Salem.
