ASTORIA, OREGON:

TUESDAY, JUNE 12, 1888

Curtis Post No. 14, G. A. R., will meet this evening at 7.30.

J. S. Denison, of the Pataha Spirit favored us with a call yesterday.

The State arrived down yesterday at 5.30 a. m., and went to sea at 7.45 a. m.

2,985 cases of salmon were put on board the State yesterday for San Francisco.

The Ullock which is loading salmon at the Main street wharf has now 11,000 cases on board.

It is reported that a large vein of iron ore, six feet in thickness has been found on the north side of the Nehalem, near Pittsburg.

The Courtwright and Hawkins minstrels announce their appearance in this city for one night, only, Saturday, June 16th, at Liberty Hall.

The Queen of the Pacific on her last trip to San Francisco, is reported to have made the unusually quick time of 47 hours from Portland and 37 hours and 25 minutes from Astoria.

The body of Atolph Wilhelm Hslander, who was drowned on the night of the 3rd inst., at the Washington Pkg. Co's cannery, was found Saturday night, near where he fell overboard. The coroner's jury rendered a verdict of accidental drowning.

A civil engineer named Crawford, with the Bailey Willis party of surveyors, prospecting for bituminous coal fields near Wilson, for the Oregon Transcontinental company, committed suicide last Saturday by shooting. He had been despondent for some time.

While we here in Astoria are enjoying the delightful sunshine tempered by the cool sea breezes, late arrivals from the interior come to us presenting different degrees of roast. They tell us of suffocating days and sleepless nights and chickens with half opened and drooping wings.

Henry Plath who has been engaged in making brick on Young's river, left a note in his cabin on Saturday night, saying that he intended drowning himself. Nothing has been seen of him since, and as he has lately shown signs of insanity his friends fear that he has carried out his expressed intention.

Scarlet fever of a malignant type has been at Skamokawa for some time and a few deaths have occurred. It behooves the people of Astoria that extreme caution should be used to prevent its introduction into this place. Great care should be taken not to allow the children to visit the families of those afflicted.

The report that the Queen had gone on the dry dock at San Francisco last Friday to repair her propeller, was incorrect. She was placed on the dock for the purpose of cleaning her bottom. The company's vessels are all heavily laden on the up trip and in order to make the fast time required it is necessary that they should be clean. The company's steamships are all to be cleaned in the order of their arrival in San Francisco.

No. 1's team leaves this morning for Salem. Their names are as follows: G. P. Wheeler, captain; B. F. Stevens, J. G. Charters, I. Miller, R. F. Miller, O. Wilson, A. Johnson, G. Richardson, M. Chance, F. Perrel, W. Humbel. No. 2's team will leave on the afternoon boat, their names are as follows: Frank L. Parker, foreman; B. S. Worley, H. F. Prael, James Hare, Tom. Crang, C. W. Loughery, F. C. Crosby, G. W. Ross, Wm. McCormick, A. A. Cleveland, Edgar Clough, John Bryce.

The following is an estimate of the time required to complete the Northern Pacific railroad. "The eastern division will reach Helena not later than Friday of this week, and the western division will reach Missoula not later than the 25th instant, possibly by the 20th. Then there will be a gap of 126 miles. Many bridges between Helena and Missoula are finished, and those not up will, beyond doubt, be ready for the track when it reaches them. Assuming that only one mile of track a day is laid at each end—and the average on the eastern end is greater than one mile—the line will be through in sixty-three days from June 20, say August 25."—Oregonian, 11.

Police Court.

Miss Willard's Lecture.

Liberty Hall was crowded to its utmost capacity Sunday evening to hear the deservedly popular president of the Woman's National Temperance Union, Miss Frances E. Willard. For once Liberty Hall proved to be too small for the audience that came together on a Sunday evening for a religious service, for while Miss Willard's theme is temperance, she argues from a Christian standpoint, and bases all upon the "thus saith the Lord."

After brief devotional exercises Miss Willard was introduced and for more than an hour held the united attention of the audience. Her manner is earnest, her utterance rapid, her language excellent, her imagery beautiful, her address winning. She began her address with an illustration showing the world's estimate of an effect of Bible teaching on character, which that many take more stock in it than they are willing to admit.

She speaks no harsh word against any one but accepting the Bible doctrine of the universal brotherhood of man she would fair labor for the lifting up of mankind to that plain of moral excellence which would secure the greatest degree of happiness possible to the race. She speaks not against those engaged in the liquor traffic but against the traffic itself as being evil and only evil in its effects. She argued first of all for total abstinence for the individual and then prohibition by the state, moral suasion for the drunkard, and statute law for the drunkard maker. She answered the "personal liberty plea" by a series of illustrations showing that there is a law of liberty; you may not speak what you please, at least there is a law that limits in this matter and imposes heavy penalties. In two things at least; you may not wear what you please; inside the fire limits of any city you may not build any kind of a house you please; nor can you engage in any kind of business you please. A good deal depends on where you are, as to the size of the circle of your personal liberty. Robinson Crusoe, alone on his island could say "I am monarch of all I survey" but when the foot-prints in the sand were found he could say it no more, he must share with No. 2. The baby is king in the house but the baby must submit to authority. Beginning with the baby king she traced the gradual circumscribing of his personal liberty in the home, in the school, in the church, in society, until a full grown man he has made the law of liberty a part of himself and it no longer restrains, for unconsciously he obeys, and thinks of others' comfort and happiness in laying down for himself any given line of conduct.

She saw an act and reap a habit; we sow a habit and reap a character; we sow a character and reap a destiny." We were especially pleased with her answer to the oft repeated question "does prohibition prohibit?" as a Yankee has a right to do she answers one question with another "does license regulate?" The license law requires every saloon closed on the Sabbath, yet that is the best day of the week for most of them. No liquor is to be sold to minors but the law is openly and constantly violated. "Does license regulate?" She asks again: "Does civilization regulate?" "Does education regulate?" "Does Christianity regulate?" Every one must answer to each of these yes. But the forces of civilization have been at work for ages, yet there are uncivilized peoples; education is being educated for centuries, yet there are ignorant peoples; Christianity is the grandest and best and most elevating force the world has ever seen yet after nineteen centuries her work is not only half done. It takes time to accomplish such great things. It is not claimed that a prohibitory law will utterly annihilate the traffic at once, but give it the opportunity and a little time and it will do the work. Another plea is often set up like this "the average sentiment of the community demands saloons." Does it? What makes the average sentiment? Does the sentiment of the church demand the saloon? No, you can't say that. Is it then the sentiment of the homes? No, you can't say that. The wives and mothers and sisters do not demand any such thing. These who suffer most from the traffic should be considered in the make up of an average sentiment.

Those who heard her enjoyed a rare treat and those who failed to hear her missed the best literary entertainment offered to an Astoria audience in many a day.

The Solid Contenta Farmer has

Farming is a slow way to make money, but then there is a lot of compensation about everything in this life, and farming has its blessings that other pursuits do not have. The farmer belongs to nobody. He is the freest man upon earth and the most independent. He has more latitude and longitude. He has a house in the country with plenty of pure air and good water. If he makes but little in the field, he has no occasion to spend but little. He can raise his own eggs, and sheep, and cattle and chickens. His wood costs him nothing, and the luxury of his big backlogs and blazing fires in open fireplaces all winter long is something that city people long for, but cannot afford. My own farm cost me $7,000. I have 120 acres of open land in good condition, and it yields me on an average about five dollars an acre over all expenses. Say nine per cent. upon the investment. Well, that is mighty little considering my own labor and supervision. I've seen the time when I made five times as much without any capital except my head. But then we have to keep a pair of horses to ride around and they have to be fed from the farm.

There are little leaks all round, but still we are happier on the farm than we were in the town, and feel more secure from the ills of life. We fear no pestilence or disease, no burglars or thieves. We lock no doors, and Mrs. Arp has quit looking under the bed for a man. I love to hear the churr dasher splashing in the butter-milk. I love to hear the rooster crow and the peacock holler, and see the martins sailing round the wartin grounds. I love to hear a neighbor stop and chat about the growing crops. I love to take the children with me to the watermill and fish below the dam amid the roar of falling waters, or paddle around the pond in the old leaky bateau. I love to wander through the woods and glades, and wear old clothes that can't get no older or dirtier, and get caught in a shower of rain if I want to. Old man Horace remarked about 2,000 years ago that the town was the best place for a rich man to live in, and the country was the best place for the poor man to die in, and inasmuch as riches were uncertain and death was sure, it becomes a prudent man to move to the country as soon as he can get there. Farmers have their ups and downs, of course, but they don't collapse and burst up like tradesmen. They don't go down under a panic.—Bill Arp in Atlanta Constitution.

THE MORTGAGE.

We worked through Spring and Winter, through Summer and through Fall, but the mortgage worked the hardest and the steadiest of all. It worked on nights and Sundays; it worked each holiday; it settled down among us, and it never went away. Whatever we kept from it seemed as most as had as theft; it watched us every minute, and it ruled us right and left. The rust and blight were with us, sometimes, and sometimes they were not; the dark-browed, scowling mortgage was forever on the spot. The weevil and the cut-worm, they went as well as usual. The mortgage stayed forever, eating hearty all the same. It nailed up every window, stood guard at every door. And happiness and sunshine made their homes with us no more. Till, with falling crops and sickness, we got stalled upon the grade. And there came a dark day on us when the interest was paid, and the mortgage was forever on the spot. A kind of lost my head. And grow weary and discouraged, and the farm was cheaply sold. The children left and scattered, when they yet were hardly grown; my wife she hid and perished, and I found myself alone. What she died of was a mystery, and the doctors never knew all. But I knew she died of mortgage—just as well as I wanted to. To trace a hidden sorrow were within the doctors' art. They'd find a mortgage lying on that woman's broken heart. Warm or bed-drown or tempest, on the farmer's land may fall. But for first-class rainwater, trust a mortgage 'gainst them all.—Will M. Corleton.
