ASTORIA, OREGON: WEDNESDAY, JUNE 13, 1883

Saw Mills for Astoria.

SEATTLE has twelve or fourteen saw mills and Astoria has but three. Astoria should have as many saw mills as Seattle and more.

An Astoria Project.

CAPT. A. W. BERRY, of this city has effected a novel charter, taking the American bark C. Southard Hulbert to load salmon and wood in the Columbia, he paying $20,500 for the vessel for the voyage.

Pointers.

The steamship Eureka sunk in Peril straits, will be raised and pumped out, and is probably afloat by now.

A report received at Fort Bowie Arizona, from Major Biddle's command is to the effect that extensive prairie fires which have recently shot across southern Arizona originated in Mexico, and are thought to be the work of Indians returning north.

The New York Indicator says corn was carried the other day from Chicago to New York for 2 1/2 cents a bushel, and on the following day dealers who had been working for a decline in rates chartered a number of vessels to carry corn at 2 cents a bushel.

The Cowboys' legitimate occupation is seriously threatened. Three men now do the work of fifteen or twenty. Formerly it was the custom to "loose herd" the cattle during the day and have them in corrals at night.

The British bark Ingomar previously reported in distress was abandoned on March 7th off Cape Horn. The master and eight men were taken off by the British ship Lord Kennard, from Astoria for Queenstown, who landed them at Queenstown; the remainder were taken on board by the Lake Ontario.

The rapidity of the world's progress in certain respects was pretty vividly suggested at Chicago when Mayor Harrison opened the exhibition of railroad appliances with the statement that there are 265,000 miles of the iron ways in operation—enough to make eleven circuits of the earth—and was followed by the appearance of a gray-haired mechanic who ran on the first locomotive that ever hauled a train.

In a party in St. Joseph Mo., were a young man "noted for his brilliant conversational powers," and a beautiful girl "from one of the upper counties;" and in the course of a struggle for the possession of a trinket "the girl sank her ivory teeth into the fleshy part of the young man's arm."

tually died from a playful bite on his thumb by a young lady. The paper remarks: "It frequently happens that the bite of a woman is poisonous."

In the last two issues of the Portland Standard to hand, are sensible articles in relation to the Astoria land grant and the improvement of the bar. The editor takes the sensible view that the place to begin bar improvements is at the bar, and the most pressing need for Astoria's proper development is the speedy settlement of the land grant question.
