

The Daily Astorian.
 ASTORIA, OREGON:
 SATURDAY, JULY 7, 1885

—The City of Carlisle has arrived out.

—The Webfoot arrived in yesterday.

—Sherman & Hinman's circus tonight.

—The Ullock sailed for Liverpool yesterday.

—The Queen of the Pacific is due this morning.

—The A. B. Field leaves for Tillamook next Tuesday.

—The Main street wharf is a bustling place these days.

—A. M. Johnson wants his debtors to come and get receipts.

—Reserved seats for ladies and their escorts at the circus to-night.

—The Steamer is due at this port. Long continued calms probably detain her.

—This has been an exciting week in Astoria. But the strain is over, and there need now be no apprehensions.

—E. C. Holden has quite a variety of goods to sell without reserve at auction, at eleven o'clock this morning. See ad.

—The circus tent will be pitched at noon at Van Dusen's lot. The afternoon performance begins at two o'clock; in the evening at eight o'clock.

—From every quarter of Western Oregon and Washington Territory come accounts of forest fires. Unless rain comes soon serious loss will ensue.

—The Glenbevic, 191 days from Liverpool, arrived yesterday. The captain reports being off the bar Monday evening and seeing the blaze from the fire.

—Most of the machinery for Tillamook which was on the O. R. & N. dock dropped into the bay. It is thought it can be got out with but little damage.

—The barkentine Portland has arrived. Among her cargo are about fifty tons crockery and glass ware, etc., for the new house of Jordan & Bozorth, which opens next week.

—In the Justice Court yesterday Gus Sands and Alex Orloff, whose ideas on the acquisition and retention of property were at variance with established custom, were each fined $25.

—Yesterday was oppressively warm. Whatever little breeze was going felt warm; the sun's rays were partially obscured by dense clouds of smoke, and taken all together it was an uncomfortable day.

—The Seattle Herald charges municipal corruption and says its city council is rotten and that the people's money is being wasted or used corruptly. The Herald says it was offered $1,000 in gold coin to keep still about the matter.

—Quite a controversy has arisen in Portland concerning the alleged origin of the stars and stripes. The chart which has given rise to all this discussion has been hanging in THE ASTORIAN office since February 1st, where hundreds of people have examined it.

—General Albert Pike, who is a passenger on the incoming steamer on a tour of inspection of Masonic lodges of the Scottish rite, will visit four lodges in Portland and seven in Washington Territory, and after remaining a month on the Sound will go to British Columbia.

—Capt. Geo. J. Ainsworth, who is a passenger on to-day's steamer, brings with him some nineteen black bass, which will be distributed in Pebbly lake. Former attempts to take this favorite game fish to Oregon have been unsuccessful, owing to the difficulty of transportation. In their shipment great care will be taken.

—We were informed on the street yesterday afternoon that the price of lumber had gone up from $2 to $5 per thousand. This is not right. Lumber is high enough now, and the burning of one sawmill furnishes no reason for putting up the price of lumber. Mr. Benner, of the Westport mill, said he would not raise the price; Mr. Stone, of the Knapperton mill, said he would run night and day if possible to supply the demand, but both say they will not raise the present figures. To do so would be unjust.

—Silverton, Colorado, must be a lively place. Recent reports from there state that two attempts were made in one day to burn the city, with the evident object to create a stampede of the citizens to the limits of the town, and then rob the first national bank. Seventy-three indictments thus far have been found by the grand jury against gamblers and others connected with these dastardly plots. The city is patrolled at night by bodies of armed men. A vigilance committee has been formed, and the city is placarded with a notice to the effect that the first man found guilty of incendiarism or shooting will be hanged.

The Vigilance Committee and its Work.

When the red glare of Monday night had died away and those who had lost all they had come together in smoke and ashes to find the very ground burned from under their feet, they found a crowd of brutes in human form, drinking, plundering, robbing and carrying away. Few of our citizens slept that night, and on the following day a general sense of insecurity existed which prompted immediate action. Nobody was "paralyzed" as was telegraphed to Portland papers; on the contrary everyone was exceedingly on the alert. The suggestion was quietly made that an organization be effected to take immediate measures to preserve the peace of the city. About forty special policemen were appointed whose duty it was to patrol the town, to watch all suspicious characters, and to arrest anyone whom it was believed had been guilty of stealing. By Tuesday night the jail was full, and several thousand dollars worth of property had been turned over. It was then decided to notify a number to leave town. The old question came up for a rehearing; the old story that always is in our body politic opened up afresh, and it was felt that the city's greatest danger arose from a gang of unprincipled, characterless vagabonds who make Astoria their headquarters. Some of them have been policemen, others would like to be; more live on the wretched earnings of prostitutes, and all are a curse to any unfortunate community that is afflicted with them. These were notified to leave: among them are Jack Sullivan, Wm. Murphy, Jno. Simpson, Chas. Lewis, E. J. Fraxer, Chas. Cook, Reilly, Geo. Savage, Fred Richardson, Ed Johnson, alias "Back Flinn," Jas. Forast, John Jones, a bad man from Arizona, Jas. Kelley, Jno. Kelley, M. E. Green, Geo. Byles, and others. Some of them went away on Thursday morning's boat; others started off on the Wide World at one o'clock. Others "would like to see the vigilantes make them go." They got their wish, some of them a little more. The citizens committee met on Thursday night, and about one o'clock yesterday morning took three of the most contumacious of the lot up on the hill tried them, one by one, and gave them as many lashes on the bare back as the exigencies of the case warranted. They promised to go, and were quietly informed that the action of the committee was only a mild hint of what would happen if they didn't. Thirteen left on the morning boat; others didn't wait for any invitation but had immediate business up the river. It showed presence of mind, on their part, absence of body, however, is still better. May they continue on their way till their fate overtakes them; as it surely will. They stand in no danger of drowning. One of the "toughs," John Jones, "a bad man from Arizona," employed around Billy Baker's saloon, refused to go when notified. The regular police force arrested him yesterday afternoon; the committee met last night, and at a late hour attended to his case. Mr. Jones has probably changed his mind about going. People don't stand much nonsense in Astoria, and human nature in Astoria averages about the same. In justice to Savage, it should be said that when he was notified to leave, he showed that he would be some money unless given a little time to straighten up his affairs, which accounts for the delay on his part. Thursday night was the quietest night we have seen in Astoria for many a day. Citizens who had not closed an eye for forty-eight hours lay down to sleep in security. The thing is all over now, and it is no harm to speak of facts as they were. What the committee did is the only thing that under the circumstances could have been done. The committee's work is now done; but it has not disbanded, and any attempt at lawlessness will be swiftly dealt with. It is no light provocation that calls for such action on the part of citizens. Our neighbors in Seattle had a similar experience some time ago. Since they jerked the black life out of three wretches, and their lifeless bodies swung on a hastily built gallows, life and property is secure in Seattle. Fortunately the citizens committee of Astoria was not pushed to the dreadful alternative of taking human life, but self-preservation is the first law of nature; it is above and beyond all legal intricacies of a complicated system of jurisprudence and when men deliberately commit crime and excess in times of public trouble, they put themselves outside the pale of protection or sympathy; they invite reprisals and must abide by the decision of the public sentiment they have so grossly outraged. This may not be good law, but it is the way the most of us feel about it.

Card.

I wish to return my sincere and heartfelt thanks to the gentlemen who so very kindly assisted me in saving my furniture at the late fire.

Yours very respectfully,
 JOSEPH CHARLTERS.

P. S. My present place of business can be found next door to Seaside bakery.

Wanted the Judge's Name.

During the session of the police court yesterday afternoon, Judge Winton's attention was attracted by the action of one of the spectators who was making remarks concerning the court's ruling and otherwise demonstrating his disregard of the necessary solemnity of a court of justice. He was called up by the judge who reprimanded him, whereupon he said somewhat contemptuously "may I ask your name?" "I now fine you $10 for contempt of court," was the magistrate's response; "Mr. Beasley remove the prisoner." "Hold on!" said the party who gave his name as Walter Fairbank, "I would like to have your name." "I fine you twenty dollars more, or ten additional days in the city jail," said Judge Winton. Officer Beasley started with the prisoner, when that individual said, "wait, Mr. Officer," then turning to the judge, and still thirsting for knowledge, he said, "For the fourth time, I want to know your name." "I fine you $20 additional," said Judge Winton. Mr. Fairbank took a look around the room, looked at the judge, and the officer at his elbow, and muttering that he would "find out his name," was led away to sojourn twenty-five days in the seclusion that the jail cell grants. As yet he is unacquainted with the police judge's name.

The O. R. & N. Dock.

Yesterday came down from Portland, F. T. Dodge, superintendent river division O. R. & N. Co., Capt. J. D. Biles, Joe Smith, and J. Holland. Their mission was in reference to the rebuilding of the company's dock. It is a settled fact that the dock will be rebuilt; the chief question is the manner of its reconstruction. The idea seems to be to not attempt any splicing of piles or building on the piles now in place, but to pull up and break off all the piles now standing and drive new ones throughout. On this will be built a structure differing in several important respects from the old. There will probably be a proposition before the council at its next meeting asking for permission to extend the dock about fifty feet farther into the stream, so as to allow a straightening of the lower corner, thus enabling incoming steamers to make a better landing than at present.

Keep 'em Going.

If the vigilantes of Astoria ran all their evil doers up here, we may organize and send them back.—Standard.

Organize by all means but keep 'em moving eastward. They'll strike nativity by the time they reach the railroad front.

—A resume of the immigration and tonnage to Oregon and Washington Territory shows the number of passengers reaching the Columbia river and Puget Sound by ocean, for the first six months of the present year, to be 30,941, as against 21,746 for the same period last year, which is an increase of 42 per cent. For corresponding months the freight lists show an import tonnage, brought by 131 ships, of 140,921 tons in 1885, as against 89,812, which is an increase of 64 per cent. The number of outgoing steamer passengers is quite small and is composed mainly of those who are returning for wives and families, having come on ahead to select homes.—Oregonian.

Arrested the Wrong Man.

He was lugging along two large bundles, the perspiration pouring down his forehead, a cheerful smile all over his countenance; he did not look suspicious at all, but the police was puzzled about his heavy bundles, stopped him on the roadway and searching them thoroughly, they found an elegant suit of clothes, a fine new hat, a pair of boots, some shirts, socks, etc., in fact a complete outfit from head to foot. He showed them the bill for the goods, which were bought of M. D. Kant, the Boss Merchant Tailor, at a great bargain, for $25. Anybody can get the same goods for the same price from the largest and best assortment in town.

The Circus

Sherman & Hinman's great European circus exhibits in Astoria to-day. Of the performance at Seattle the Post-Intelligencer of the 4th says: "The tent spread was the biggest ever set up in the territory, and, big as it was, was by no means big enough to accommodate the crowd who sought to pass into it. Seats were put up for 2000 persons. All these were taken, and two or three hundred persons were compelled to stand up or sit on the ground. Such a number was never before seen here at any previous circus. The performance was all good, the only part at all defective being the running of the horses, the animals finding it impossible to get around in the soft sand with any life or speed. The horses were good, though, as was evidenced in their tricks and training. Jack and Tommy cannot be beat, while the hurdle horse is superb in his every action. The ponies, Duke and Duchess, are very cute and pretty. Barney is also a well-beloved, reliable, interesting animal. The Morocco brothers are a whole show in themselves. They are lithe, supple, quick, strong, unsurpassed by none and equaled by few. Their somersaults, hand springs and contortions are wonderful, and, there being four of them, the brothers form no inconsiderable part of the show. Zorello on the iron bar was quite clever. Frank Morocco, one of the two clowns, was most excellent. William Gorman, the hurdle rider, was as good as his horse and his horse was certainly as good as the best. The lady riders did not appear to the advantage they would have done were the ground in proper condition, and they did quite as well under the circumstances as could be expected. Take it all together it was a fine performance, and one that will bear repeating, and of which the management may be entirely satisfied.
