

The Daily Astorian.

ASTORIA, OREGON: SUNDAY, JULY 13, 1888

Good brick clay has been found at Upper Astoria.

The Oregon sailed yesterday; the Columbia is due to-morrow.

The July number of the West Shore will contain a view of Young's river falls.

The Shubrick crossed the bar yesterday afternoon on a voyage to Shoalwater bay.

A great many excursionists came down from Portland yesterday to enjoy the delightful sea air.

Some of the new brick made on Youngs River by Henry Plath will be used in Kinney's new brick building.

The Sunday school children of the M. E. church will have a flower festival at half past seven this evening.

This state has 14 lodges K. of P., with a membership of 700; the Order being organized in November, 1871.

During the first four months of '88, 1,327 tons of canned salmon went eastward overland from San Francisco.

Henry Ward Beecher will receive eighteen thousand dollars for lecturing on this coast in August and September.

Divine service on board the Mountain Queen lying at Parker's dock at 4 o'clock, Rev. J. McCormac officiating.

The demand for timber in the Chehalis country is unabated. The Fidelity of the 12th, has ninety-three timber notices.

There will be a special auction sale at E. C. Holden's next Wednesday; sales will be in the afternoon and evening. See adv.

Chaplain Scott will preach in the Baptist church at 11 A. M., and deliver a lecture on "Gambling and lawlessness" in the evening.

The case of Wm. Burbury, charged with assault upon Leonard Chance, was yesterday continued till Monday afternoon at one o'clock.

The steamer Lurline, which left Portland at eight o'clock last evening, arrived down with a party of seaside visitors at an early hour this morning.

A new steamer is to be put on the route between San Francisco and the Sound; trips to be made every five days instead of every seven as at present.

The iron bark Glenbevic, now discharging at Flander's wharf, will go on berth to load salmon for London, direct. Sibson, Church & Co., are the agents.

J. A. Whitcomb of Woodards Landing informs us that early sown crops and hay, in that vicinity will yield fairly, but late crops will suffer considerably from the drought.

Work on the new school building is progressing as fast as it is possible. Yesterday afternoon the brick foundation was finished. It is 87 feet front, running back 70 feet, 8 inches on Benton street, 13 feet high.

The German evangelical reformed congregation will have divine service this afternoon at 3 o'clock, at the Baptist church. All Germans are cordially invited.

JOHN GASTENBERG, pastor.

In the police court yesterday the cases of Geo. Hill, Robt. Wilgren and Wiseman & Co., were continued. In the first mentioned case a plea of not guilty was entered, a jury summoned, and the trial set for two o'clock to-morrow afternoon.

Miss Carol Crouse whose "For goodness sake don't say I told you" made such a hit in "Whims" in this city a few weeks ago, is in the city. She goes on the next Alaska trip as a newspaper correspondent, and will be the first lady correspondent who ever made a trip to that far off northern shore.

George Brown of Tokes Point, died very suddenly at Oysterville on the morning of the fifth. He was unusually well and in good spirits the fourth. The morning of the fifth he was about as usual talking and chatting; after a while he lay down and passed away so quietly that no one present knew he was dead for some time after life was extinct.

Attention No. 1. Adjourned monthly meeting Monday, July 16th, at 7:30 o'clock. A good attendance is desired. By order W. W. PARKER, President. L. E. SELLO, Secy.

Council Proceedings.

At a special meeting of the city council last evening, Mayor Hahn presiding, councilmen Case, Carruthers, Johns, Hume, and Trenchard present. A petition from the Columbia Water company asking for extension of time was referred to proper committee. A petition numerous signed by citizen and tax payers asking the city council to set the appropriation for the two engine companies at $125 per month each, and the Hook and Ladder company $30 per month, was referred to committee on fire and water. An ordinance ordering the closing of all places of business in the city of Astoria at twelve o'clock midnight, not to reopen till five A. M., was read first and second times and passed under suspension of the rules. An ordinance establishing grade on Cass street was read first and second times and passed under suspension of the rules. The following bills were ordered paid: I. W. Case, $60.10; Astor House, $65.20; Clatsop Mill Co., $297.65; E. A. Quinn, $36.45; C. P. Moffitt, $18; W. G. Ross, $18; D. McKenzie, $18; J. W. Supernaut, $18; C. J. Donahue, $18; N. Gilmore, $21; Jno. McCane, $21. A resolution was adopted ordering legal notice be given concerning the repair and improvement of Cass street. A resolution authorizing the council to contract for the improvement of the cemetery was passed. On motion council adjourned.

The Crack of Doom

Seldom has there been a greater amount of senseless blarney written about any event than that which has appeared in various papers concerning the late fire in this city. There are a few notable exceptions; the Oregonian published a very good account, and editorially strengthened the city's credit by appropriate comment; the Seattle papers also acted very fairly, and, on the whole, the San Francisco press deserves credit, excepting one or two wild irresponsible statements. The following is republished as a sample of the truck that is still coming. It is from an alleged correspondent of the New Northwest.

POWER OF SECRET SOCIETIES.

The papers have given a detailed account of the work of a vigilance committee in Astoria. A number of men were taken out of town, and several were severely if not dangerously injured; but one escaped, because he gave the "peculiar sign of some secret society." I have heard that nothing would retard the blind, swift vengeance of a mob of excited and infuriated men, but it seems there is one exception—a charm as potent as the signet ring or golden amulet of romance; a symbol that would escape the observation of a person out of "the order"; an appeal for help or a cry for mercy which no brother member dares to disregard. Several years ago a terrible accident occurred on the river in front of the city. While the injured and dying struggled amid splinters and timbers, one man was seen disappearing for the third time. With a last despairing effort, he threw up his hands and made the mystic sign. Instantly, though the act seemed futile, at the risk of his own life a prominent citizen plunged into the water and brought the drowning brother safe to shore. Sometimes a word or sentence, like the "O Lord, my God, is there no help for the widow's son" used by the Masons, or perhaps merely the twirl of the fingers or the spread-eagle style of the Odd Fellows; yet it saves many a man from death on the gallows, or from a cell in the penitentiary, paralyzes the strong arm of the law, blindfolds justice, and buys executive clemency. If a woman chances to be related to "a jiner," and it is necessary for her to travel alone, a badge is given her, used by the Masons, or perhaps merely the protection of brother members, even though they be strangers. That is as near as a woman can ever hope to come to the inner sanctuary of these men-saving, men-protecting, law-defying secret societies. Yet it is a comforting reflection that there will come a time when we women will pass through the pearly portals into the glorious realm beyond, while some of these men will wriggle and twist, make signs and repeat their little verses outside the walls of the city.

About the Size of the Matter.

In answering a correspondent who complains of the present status in Seattle, the Post-Intelligencer makes some very sensible remarks which are so applicable to our own situation that we give them place. Commenting on its correspondent's strictures our Sound contemporary says: "He is partially correct in denouncing the character of many of the structures, along our business streets. He is too sweeping, however, for he makes no exceptions, whereas many of the buildings are as fine, substantial and creditable as can be found in any like city in the United States, while none of them really are 'dilapidated.'" As for declaring them a nuisance and having them removed, what good object would thereby be subserved? A greater injury could hardly be done the town. It would simply kill so much trade, and make immense, ugly gaps throughout the town. There is neither brick nor stone here to put into houses to take their place, nor is there lumber over and above the present wants. The vacancy created by following the sage advice of "Traveler" would have to be filled with canvas tents, an improvement over the mis-called "rookeries" that he alone would be enabled to see. Our friend is also surprised to find that there are no vacant stores for him and others to occupy, and he thinks there should be about twenty-five. If there were, the town would not be the lively place he finds it, and there would be no tenants to occupy these stores. It will be the bigger, the better and the more thriving town the fewer vacant business places it contains. It is quite true that persons are continually leaving here who feel driven away because they cannot find places in which to do business, but that is no less true of Portland, St. Paul, Denver, Chicago, New York and every rapidly growing city, and it is well that it is true, for it serves as a balance against an increase in population that would be entirely beyond the demands of the times. It is not true that ground cannot be leased on which to build, nor is it true that merchants already here are keeping out competition. It is also idle to urge capitalists and property owners to build more houses for the accommodation of new comers. Every house is building here now that they can get the men and the material to build with, and the poorest policy in the world is for local capitalists to put all their money into houses, instead of into water and gas works, manufactures, wholesale houses, wharves, steamers, brick yards, roads, streets and the like. The town wants these things more than it wants new residences and stores, for without them the town cannot live, and if it gets them in quantity sufficient there will be no question of the dwellings and stores accompanying them. It is a hard thing, of course, on individuals to be put to expense and delay in getting houses in which to live and do business, but it is a good thing for the property owners and landlords, for those already in business and for the town generally, and it will be a bad time all round when they cease.

An Elopement.

The old man said "no," and he meant no in every feature of his stern face. "No, you can't marry Susan, the way you look at present."

Theatrical.

George Werner, treasurer for our friend F. W. Stebbins, called on us yesterday. He is here with the excellent Minstrel Troupe of Courtwright & Hawkins. Mr. Werner informs us that the next attraction will be the resplendent Madam Januschoek and the Russell Comedy Company, the best comedy company ever appearing from the eastward states. We need give no further reason for bringing only first-class companies, and can assure him that our citizens always appreciate and value a first-class entertainment. The proof was there last night.

How it Was.

'Twas thus he told his story to the court. "Well, Cap'n, I hadn't been ashore long enough to shake off my sea legs, when I cruised alongside an old shipmate. I was with him whaling years ago. 'Shipmate,' he says, 'heave to. What o'clock is it?' 'Eight bells,' says I, and glad to see you. 'Then,' says he, 'let's splice the main brace.' We went into the free and easy, and found ourselves alongside a whole fleet of shiphmates. 'Let's brace up and gather aft,' and then the banjo struck up and we swung in for fore and aft. Then we shipped another sea of grog, and then had a hornpipe, and then sang 'Eilly Prime.' 'Let's put the brail on the gaff,' and then we shall drop anchor afore the bar. 'Let's square the yards,' said I, after we had spliced and braced and brailed up and squared, the floor began to rise and fall like a potato-hill sea. We got under way for the street, and then an old groundswell set in. I grappled with my shipmates, and we all tried to ease her when she plunged. Bum by I parted cable with my comrades, and went pitching ahead in the trough of the sea.

EDITOR ASTORIAN: It has been stated in the newspapers and repeated on the streets, that two of the parties who were, as we believe justly, fogged by the citizens' committee, were Italians, and being of that nationality, we decidedly object to having our countrymen accused of a crime for which they are in no wise responsible. We have taken pains to ascertain the names and nativity of the castigated individuals, and we have found that the parties are as much well dressed as our own citizens, and that they were not Italians. It has become a common practice, to attribute to our countrymen almost every crime committed on the Columbia river; this has undoubtedly been thoughtlessly done, without considering the injustice of it. Now we, (by which is meant the Italians of this community) are as much in favor of maintaining the law as the most law-abiding citizens, among which we claim to rank, and when any countryman of ours is guilty of any crime let him be punished for it, and you will find us ever ready to assist in maintaining the law and preserving our city before any crime is charged against us, be sure that we are responsible for it.
