Pire on the Hill

At the risk of being deemed too officious we would suggest to the city council the necessity of having cisterns. The present condition illustrates their necessity. There is a fire on the hill just beyond Mrs. Hall's house, and property is in danger. The residents there have been fighting it and watching it for a week, and it is a danger and a menace to that neighborhood. To go up there would take every foot of hose in the city, Cairo, Illinois, by rail to St. Louis; pletion of the waterworks. and would involve considerable effort and then due east to New York, and leave the main part of the city in a precarious position. Yet they need assistance up there and have a right to it. A cistern at Mam and Wall streets would be of splendid service now, and will be of value at all times.
