

The Daily Astorian.

ASTORIA, OREGON: WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 1, 1883

Good weather for bacon. Dan Castello will show here on the 11th. The tug Escort No. 2, is towing on the Sound. Melons, both water and musk are in the market. F. T. Jordan returned yesterday from San Francisco. The Idaho sails to-day with an Alaska excursion party. E. E. Chipman is prepared to do all kinds of painting, etc. See adv. Portland smoke is so thick that river steamers must signal, as in a fog. The Bonita is off for the icy north and a cargo of whale oil and bone. The Australian steamer which left San Francisco last Monday took 8,000 cases salmon. The Chehalis Nugget is received; we have seen worse looking newspapers—but not much worse. Invitations to attend the Northern Pacific celebration in Montana on September 3d have been issued; are you going? The Gen. Miles will leave for Tillamook at six o'clock next Wednesday morning, and will return the same day. See adv. The St. Louis with a cargo of water pipe, is now out 140 days. The Carrie Winslow from the same port, is out 141 days. The Northern Pacific Railroad will not receive for transportation liquors or wine of any kind consigned to places within Indian reservations. The Queen arrived in yesterday morning, the Columbia sails to-day; the A. E. Field leaves for Tillamook this morning at six; the Miles is due from Gray's harbor this evening. To-day all unsatisfied mortgages go on the tax rolls of the several counties. It will be trouble for the county clerks and assessors in the state, and a bonanza for the lawyers. The camp meeting at Ocean Park began last Thursday, and closes August 6th. To-morrow the Woman's Temperance Christian Association will hold a meeting there, and Gov. Newell will deliver an address. At the last meeting of the Portland board of trade $1,500 was subscribed to aid in dredging St. Helens bar. A committee was appointed to make suitable preparation for the demonstrations of driving the last spike. In our salmon report yesterday, the pack of John West's cannery at Hungry Harbor was placed at 12,000 cases. It should have been 16,000 cases. Any other inaccuracies, if any exist, will be promptly corrected upon notification. The Wide West did not arrive down till a quarter past two yesterday afternoon, the smoke on the river making progress a matter of difficulty; the Fleetwood rounded to at her dock at 2:30. A large crowd boarded the Sam and Conby immediately upon arriving, and went down to the beach. The funeral of the late Capt. Buchan took place from Masonic Hall at half past two yesterday afternoon. The ceremonies were conducted by the Masonic fraternity and were attended by a large concourse of people. The shipping in the harbor wore their flags at half mast in respect to the memory of the deceased who was widely known among shipmen. A noticeable feature in the minor details of growth is the constantly increasing number of vehicles. The latest arrival came upon the Queen yesterday. It is a two wheeled arrangement, is a model of comfort and neatness, and when its owner, Capt. Hustler, gets his three minute nap Prince between the shafts, he will have a turn out as good as the best. As a pointed illustration of the growing tendency of young men to earn a livelihood by means of an education rather than by a trade, we desire to call attention to the fact that a short time ago a prominent citizen of Portland advertised for a lad or man to do copying for $15 a week. He received 500 applications, the number including doctors, lawyers, and graduates of high schools, but not one, so far as he could learn, who had a trade. All were of unexceptionable character, but they were disappointed professional men who had learned all about their books, but who had not learned how to use their hands, and strange to say in both these cases many of the applicants were on the verge of destitution.—Mercury.

Postponed. Owing to the great demand for Electric Bells, Dr. Mitchell will remain until Friday, August 3d. Call at Astor House, room 16. Roscoe Dixon's new eating house will be opened to-day. Everything has been fitted up in first-class style, and his well known reputation as a caterer assures all who like good things to eat, that at his place they can be accommodated.

Salmon.

Of salmon the California Grocer and Canner of the 28th ult says: Columbia river fish are quotable for carload lots, $1.25@1.27 1/2 c. b. in San Francisco. The New York market is very dull, and the English market seems to be in a condition more favorable to Columbia products than for a long time past; advices from there state that the Fraser river fish of good quality have been exhausted in that market, and that the detestable quality of that which remains necessitates a return of Columbia river fish for marketable stock of unquestionable quality. The arrivals of salmon in Great Britain for the month ending June 30, 1883, aggregate 43,015 cases; for same month of '82, 38,809 cases; for same period '81, 48,703; for six months ending June 30, 1883, the arrivals of salmon in Great Britain were 424,043 cases; same period of '82, 252,983; and the same period of '81, 261,115. This argues either a rapidly increased and increasing consumption of canned salmon throughout the United Kingdom, or a present oversupply. As our reports do not confirm the latter hypothesis, the former, by far more satisfactory one, is also the more warrantable. On the Sacramento, fish are running sufficiently to induce some of the canneries to keep open, and others keep their doors open from force of habit or example. The rumor that there would be no fall pack on the Sacramento river seems to be without foundation, as we are informed that no combination has been effected to that end, and packers on the river are convinced that packing will be conducted as usual at all canneries. Great preparations are being made to catch salmon next month for salting purposes on the Sacramento river, notwithstanding the penal code makes it a misdemeanor to have a salmon in one's possession during the month of August. Tanks capable of holding 10,000 fish are being built along the Sacramento river, and fleets of boats and barges are being made ready to engage in the business. Fish Commissioner Redding reported at a late meeting of the commissioners that he had consulted with Mr. Bradford and W. T. Coleman & Co., and that they had expressed a willingness to contribute toward a fund for the support of a detective force along the Sacramento to prevent the proposed violation of the laws. A letter from Collinsville stated that to prevent illegal fishing a detective force was an absolute necessity, as an ordinary patrol would do no good, fishermen having openly avowed their intention of fishing uninterruptedly in season or out, and in pursuance of this intention had laid in a large stock of salt. Five detectives were ordered to be employed along the Sacramento and its tributaries. It is proposed to start a cannery at Santa Barbara for the canning of all varieties of fish taken on that portion of the coast. There is no special news from the Fraser river. It is estimated that the pack on that river will be 75,000 cases short of last season's, this being what is known there as an off year.

For chief engineer of the Astoria Fire department, Frank P. Hicks: At the regular meeting of Rescue Engine Company No. 2, held at the hall of the company July 2, 1883, Mr. Frank P. Hicks was nominated for the position of chief engineer, and we would respectfully recommend him to the firemen of this department for such position. R. F. PHALE, C. W. FULTON, Sec'y, President.

The wheat fleet begins to drop in; yesterday arrived the Aberlemno, Connor master, 75 days from Newcastle, N. S. W.; the Grosvenor, Thomson master, 26 days from Sydney, and the River Nith, Sheret master, 76 days from Newcastle. They are all coal laden. The Grindale, McLellan master, 114 days from Liverpool, is outside, and will probably cross in to-day. The last named vessel has a general cargo aboard, and made a very quick trip.

An "O" for an "E."

At an editorial convention the conversation turned on typographical errors. Of course every man present who had wielded a Faber for the purpose of lifting struggling humanity into the upper strata, where the bright sun of knowledge should illumine the path, etc., had some reminiscences about certain typographical errors. Joe Peters, of the Blountsville Bugle, finally got the floor. "Gentlemen," said he, "see this scar across my left cheek as big as a horseshoe; see this crevice in my nose whence a portion has been extracted; see the remaining half inch of my right ear; examine this hand and wonder what became of the thumb and fourth finger; look at this stiff leg. All this is the result of getting an "o" where an "e" ought to be. I had occasion to report a case in Squire Field's office and the evidence of one of the witnesses did not tally very well with the others. This was a big, burly man, a lively stable keeper, who might be able to get away with Sullivan. I incidentally remarked that the witness was a voracious man. Well, gentlemen, when the Bugle came out, the intelligent proof-reader had got it voracious. The lively stable man saw it before I did, and walked straight into the office, and without speaking a word he seized me by the hand and broke those fingers so they had to be amputated; then he jabbed me against the wall with force enough to knock out my front teeth, stopping to inquire whether I still thought he was voracious. Before I could answer, he bit off a piece of my ear, and asked if I took him for the fool who undertook to eat eighteen goose eggs in eighteen hours. Then he slammed me against the iron in the stable and broke my leg, and mildly inquired if he looked like a man who would make a bet to assimilate a brace of quail every day for six weeks. Before I could recover from that assault he laded an iron in the stable against my jaw-bone, with the query whether anybody had told me that he was the party who could digest a peck of raw oysters at a sitting. As a parting salute he bit a piece out of my nose and left. After the doctor had gathered together what there was left of me and set my broken bones, I asked for a copy of the Bugle and discovered what it was that had made him mad. "Did you see him for damages?" asked the crowd. "Not at all," said Peters. "I had got more damages than I wanted already."—Oil City Derrick.

Angling for an Acquaintance. They met by chance beside a brook. And neither knew the other, Yet each with agitation shook. As though he'd found a brother. One said: "Come home with me to dine, You'll meet some friends, no doubt." He was a wily fisherman: His new-found friend—a trout.

The consumption of salmon is fairly satisfactory, but holders of stocks are showing a little more anxiety to realize. Dealers are already interested in the prospect of a good supply of this season's catch, and although the past year has resulted in a continued loss, there is a charm in the trade which always encourages dealers to prospective profits. The latest quotations are 24 1/2 c. to 25 c. for Columbia river.—Correspondent London Grocer.

The market for preserved salmon is flat, weak and depressed, there being no demand worthy the name, no stability in prices, and scarcely any sales. Holders are evidently overloaded with unsold imports, which ought to have been cleared off months ago, and, in their anxiety to realize their stocks of last season's fish before the new comes in, they are ready to accept much lower prices. The dealers and the retailers, on the other hand, refuse to be tempted into buying, except on pretty much their own terms, which would be nearly equivalent to purchasing Columbia river fish at about the same rates as are asked for Fraser river kinds; and whilst the former goods, in the event of sales taking place, would be quoted 24c, if not less, the latter would be offering in any quantity at 22 1/2 to 23 1/2 c. per dozen tins.—The London Grocer.

Billings vs. Villard. A special to the Minneapolis Tribune dated New York, July 18th, states that rumors have reached there within a day or two from the northwest to the effect that what is known as the Billings party have succeeded in regaining possession of a majority of the stock of the Northern Pacific railroad company, and intend to use their power at the next annual meeting in September to retire Mr. Henry Villard from the presidency and substitute Mr. Billings or some one to be designated by him. The statement comes from the line of the road that Vice-President Oakes, who has hitherto been considered the immediate lieutenant and confidential representative of President Villard, has been making wholesale removals of employees, including large numbers who were supposed to enjoy the friendship of Mr. Villard. The action on the part of Mr. Oakes has been interpreted to mean that the days of Mr. Villard's control are numbered, and that the vice-president is acting in view of the coming revolution. Inquiry here in New York among the few official gentlemen who remain during the dog days fail to confirm in any degree whatever the rumor alluded to. One prominent friend of Mr. Villard in Wall street declares that nothing short of an earthquake could interfere with that gentleman's hold upon the Northern Pacific, and that there is no more prospect of his going out of the management either this year or the next than there is of the road failing to be completed in 1883. The same party adds that Mr. Billings is entirely content with the present conduct of affairs and is not scheming for a change.
