

The Daily Astorian.

ASTORIA, OREGON: SATURDAY, AUGUST 4, 1883.

The county jail has seventeen occupants.

The August term of the circuit court begins next Tuesday.

The A. B. Field leaves for Tillamook this morning; the Miles leaves next Wednesday.

Freight for the outgoing steamer yesterday refused at the O.R. & N. dock. The reason was there was so much of it.

The American bark Carrie Winslow, 994, Barrett master, 110 days from New York, is outside with a pilot on board.

The Quicksip arrived at Seattle last Wednesday. She will run in connection with Jas. Williams' Tacoma cannery this season.

From Cathlamet comes a report that on Monday, a man named D. S. McIntosh committed suicide by shooting himself in the head.

J. F. Niles, a Portland real estate agent, is in the city; his headquarters are at Bozorth & Johns, where maps of Sellwood can be seen.

Some of the butter now in the market tends to doubt the respect we naturally accord to age. 'Tis like the offense of Hamlet's uncle.

The rush from Portland to the seaside is greater this season than ever before. Every down boat is full, and the crowds still come.

A young man named Roberts was killed by lightning near Eugene last Wednesday. Death from such a cause is extremely rare in Oregon.

An unusually large number of fishing boats are being taken from the Columbia to the Sacramento this season; about sixty-five altogether.

The clouds hung low yesterday in a most tantalizing way and every little while it seemed as though we were going to be treated to the novelty of a shower, but so far it cometh not.

Henry Doyle & Co., have the exclusive agency on this coast for the Woodberry twines and rope, and also have on hand a complete assortment of needle brand, and palmetto twines.

Miss Kate Powell, who has been pursuing her studies at the State University, is enjoying her vacation at home. She will return in September to complete her three years course.

The Oregon arrived in at two yesterday afternoon. Pilot Howes reports a heavy thunder storm with incessant lightning at an early hour yesterday morning. The Queen sails to-day.

The killing of one Portland gambler by another furnishes to the Portland press and pulpit a fine theme for comment. The usual analogy between cause and effect seems, however, to be ignored.

These are the pleasant days on which you eat cold victuals in the brush, and call it a "pic nic," where everything is cold but the water, and everything is sour but the vinegar spilled in the preserves.

D. G. Ross advertises his place for sale. It is on Blind Slough, about three miles above Knappa, and comprises 160 acres. J. G. Ross, proprietor of the Pioneer restaurant, can give intending purchasers full particulars.

The annual heira of fishermen goes on, and next week will see but few of those remaining who are transient. A good many have gone to Portland and the Sound this season, but, as usual, the majority returned to San Francisco.

There are few places that offer a greater variety in the way of fish food than do Astoria and vicinity. At present we have trout, shad, oysters, crabs, and clams, which are highly relished by visitors from the heated interior.

On Tuesday the 14th inst., the Odd Fellows Temple will be dedicated with appropriate ceremonies. Cards of invitation have been issued to the various lodges and encampments throughout the state, and a large attendance is expected.

Ex-Senator J. W. Bones, is in the city. Mr. Bones was for a time the most abused man in the United States, because while in the California legislature he would not obey the dictations of Kearney & Co., but he survived it all and is now an architect in Portland.

Superintendent Sloop has been informed that there are two vacant scholarships for Clatsop county in the state university at Eugene City. Parties desiring to avail themselves of the opportunity to fill these vacancies can be supplied with necessary information by applying to Mr. Sloop.

Young's River Falls

The rivers of the western mountains are becoming famous for the number and beauty of their falls. The foaming cascades that leap and whirl over and around the boulders and shelving rocks, the long bridal veils falling from great heights and melting into clouds of spray long before reaching the bottom, and the great cataracts that rival Niagara in power and splendor, are all worthy of unbounded admiration. One of the most beautiful of these is the falls of Young's river, in the Coast Range mountains a few miles south of Astoria. The water, icy cold and clear as crystal, runs through the rocky gorges, shadowed by dense forests, and suddenly plunges over a precipice and flows onward to the Columbia. The water pitches downward a short distance upon a sloping mass of rocks, off which it rolls on three sides at once, falling in a thin convex sheet to the bottom. This double fall gives it a most peculiar and pleasing effect. Hundreds visit Young's river every year to admire the beauty of the falls and to enjoy the sport offered by that delightful region to the angler and sportsman.

Should be Done

ED. ASTORIAN: An additional reason for bulk heading the front and filling up back is the condition of streets on piling. With heaving trucking lumber soon breaks, and to keep up bridges throughout the city will be an enormous expense.

Enforce the Law

The time for legal fishing for salmon on the Columbia river closed at midnight last Tuesday. Salmon have been caught since then, and it is reported two canneries are still catching and canning. District Attorney McBride is in the city; his attention is directed to this matter. The law is very explicit, it was made, not for evasion, as some laws are, but for enforcement. This is something that requires no comment.

A San Francisco dispatch says that the value of the franchise of the Alaska Commercial company was recently increased by the assessor from $115,000 to $1,000,000, and the company had to pay taxes on the latter amount. They did so, but under protest, and now state having no remedy against such injustice, it will be obliged to remove its business from this city and state to some other point on the coast equally convenient to its operations.

A year ago, we suggested to Senator John F. Miller, the advantage of Astoria as the headquarters for his company's operations. Our chamber of commerce can do something in this matter. The company will make considerable business wherever it goes.
