

The Daily Astorian.

ASTORIA, OREGON: SUNDAY, AUGUST 26, 1883. Nothing Succeeds Like Success.

The truth of the above is strikingly exemplified by the coming in triumph of H. Villard and his associates to drive the last spike of the Northern Pacific Railroad.

The business of the road will be larger, perhaps, during its construction than after its completion, as all the materials necessary to the building of the unfinished portions will have to be transported over those sections of the line already laid and equipped, and these alone will yield an immense revenue.

Then, sir, there is the climate of Duluth, unquestionably the most salubrious and delightful to be found anywhere on the Lord's earth. Now, I have always been under the impression, as I presume other gentlemen have, that in the region around Lake Superior it was cold enough for at least nine months in the year to freeze the smoke stack of a locomotive.

Proctor Knott, who was elected governor of Kentucky on the 6th of this month, immortalized himself by his famous speech in 1871, opposing the road and humorously jibing the pretensions of Duluth.

If gentlemen will examine it, they will not find Duluth in the center of the map, but represented in the center of a series of concentric circles one hundred miles apart, and some of them as much as four thousand miles in diameter.

I find by reference to this map that Duluth is situated somewhere near the western end of Lake Superior, but as there is no dot or other mark indicating its exact location, I am unable to say whether it is actually confined to any particular spot, or whether it is just lying around there loose.

intellectual frost work, more intangible than the rose-tinted clouds of a summer sunset; one of those airy exhalations of the spectator's brain, which I am told are ever flitting in front of the towns and cities along these lines of railroad built with government subsidies.

Then, sir, there is the climate of Duluth, unquestionably the most salubrious and delightful to be found anywhere on the Lord's earth. Now, I have always been under the impression, as I presume other gentlemen have, that in the region around Lake Superior it was cold enough for at least nine months in the year to freeze the smoke stack of a locomotive.

Governor Knott's congratulatory remarks will, in this year of our Lord, 1883, doubtless prove interesting reading.
