Attachment to Newspapers

The strong attachment of subcritisms to a well-conducted newssoper is fully confirmed by publisters. "Stop my super!" words of diend to beginners in business, embotaces, in all respects, the Yies of friendship between the subcribers and the paper are as hard to break by an outside third party as the link which binds old friends in business or accial life. Occasional defects and errors in a newspaper are overlooked by those who have become attached to it through its perusal for years. They cometimes become dissatisfied with it on account of something which has slipped into its columns, and may stop taking it; but the absence of the familiar sheet at their homes and offices for a lew weeks becomes an insupportable privation, and they hasten to take it again, and possibly apologize for having it stopped. No friendship on earth is more constant than that contracted by the reader for a journal which makes an honest and carnest effort to merit his continued support. Hence a conscientiously conducted paper becomes a favorite in the
