

The Daily Astorian.

ASTORIA, OREGON: FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 14, 1903

The Mount Washington, previously reported, arrived in yesterday afternoon.

The fine British barque Chacoa will be soon on for London direct. Chartered by Messrs. Sibson, Church & Co.

San Francisco merchants are reported to be cutting prices to hold the Oregon and Washington trade. This is water on Astoria's wheel.

At Occidental Hall this evening there will be a double bill. The comedy of "The serious family," with Geo. Holland as "Amindab Sleek," and the farce of "40 and 50." Reserved seats at the New York Novelty store.

An irate correspondent thinks he has a right to come to the theater at what time he pleases. Of course he has; all men have a right to be wrong if they want to; let him buy some celery and eat it, and his sensitive nature will not be so jurted upon by suggestions concerning the general comfort.

A party of gentlemen composed of eminent journalists and artists will arrive here on the Wide West about noon to-day. They are worthy of all courtesy and attention during their stay, and if practicable, the holiday attire in which our city was yesterday arrayed, would be well to retain for the occasion.

While taking his usual ride yesterday afternoon Capt. Husler was thrown from his cart by the wheel striking against a projecting stick of timber in the street. His injuries are of a slight nature, being chiefly confined to a cut on the face and some slight bruises. The horse took to his heels and after effectually disposing of vehicle and harness started over the hill where he was caught at sundown.

A syndicate of capitalists, representing $2,000,000, have purchased the Shoshone Falls of Snake river, Idaho. It is the intention of the purchasers to expend $175,000 at present in erecting a hotel and fitting up the grounds in a suitable manner, and next spring will run a line of coaches from the Oregon Short Line Railway to the Falls, and propose to give the tourists the best possible inducements to resort to Shoshone, making it the Niagara of the west.

At 1 o'clock last Wednesday morning news was received at Victoria, B. C., of the wreck of the bark Rover off Cape Flattery. She was in ballast bound for Port Townsend for orders. She went ashore at 4 o'clock Sunday morning last during the prevalence of the dense fog. All hands were saved. The crew to the number of twelve, and the passengers, of whom there was four, were rescued from the wreck by Indian canoes. The vessel, which in all probability will prove a total loss, was from Honolulu, and is partially insured. Comments from the Sound papers regarding the terrors of that unfortunate coast are in order. They can reprint the articles they had in reference to the Queen with slight alterations.

Who Was He?

As engine No. 1 was turning the corner of First and Morrison streets last evening, while proceeding to the fire on Jefferson street, a man whose name could not be learned, but who is supposed to belong to Rescue Engine company No. 2 of Astoria, attempted to jump on the engine, but missing his hold fell, immediately regaining his feet, only to be knocked down a minute afterwards, while he was picking up his hat, by the hoecart, which was just behind him. But for the presence of mind of the driver of the cart, who immediately pulled up his horse, he would have surely been run over. The cart struck the man on the leg, which was bruised but not broken. He was assisted to the hotel where he is stopping. Standard.

Visiting Journalists.

The party of journalists that visit Astoria to-day comprises the following gentlemen, many of them of national fame: E. V. Smalley, Northwest, New York; C. Graham, Harper's Weekly, N. Y.; W. N. Haldeman, Louisville Courier-Journal; W. P. Nixon, Chicago Inter-Ocean; H. D. Lloyd, Chicago Tribune, A. Shuman, Chicago Journal; Noah Brooks, N. Y. Times; E. J. Gibson, N. Y. Tribune; H. P. Robinson, Manchester Guardian; H. L. Bridgman, Frank Leslie's; J. C. Beck, Chicago Times; H. L. Nelson, Boston Herald; T. B. Lindsey, Boston Advertiser; J. C. Porter, St. Louis Democrat; F. A. Richardson, Baltimore Sun; E. P. Mitchell, N. Y. Sun; W. B. Wilcockson, St. Paul Globe; H. F. Faray, Century; R. W. Merrill, Philadelphia Press; W. W. Coleman, Milwaukee Herald; J. L. Mitchell, Milwaukee Journal; C. P. Dresser, Chicago correspondent; C. Knapp, St. Louis Republican; F. A. Carle, St. Paul Pioneer-Press; R. Bartholdt, N. Y. Staats-Zeitung.

Columbia River Exports.

During the twelve months ending August 1st, 1883, the value of the salmon shipped from the Columbia river was $3,148,200; the ten months of the present fiscal year give promise of an at least equal aggregate of value in salmon being sent away during the present year, about $650,000 worth having been shipped since August 1st.

Salmon shipments will hereafter be under different conditions, as the greater portion of the pack will be warehoused here and shipped in smaller lots. Other conditions new to the trade have also arisen this summer. In July, A. W. Berry, of this city, dispatched the C. S. Halbert with a cargo of salmon from Astoria to New York, the first shipment of the kind. The C. S. Halbert, the first ship built with auxiliary steam power, is now loading here with salmon for the same port; shipments via the N. P. R. R. will be made in quantities which will also have an influence upon the trade; of course English and Australian purchases will always go across the bar as heretofore.

The wheat shipments during the same period aggregated in value $3,510,500; though none of this is Astoria production, as is the salmon, yet its shipment adds no inconsiderable amount to our local trade, and when as must inevitably obtain, the entire wheat crop of the Columbia basin is loaded at Astoria, the industry will form a most important part of our municipal prosperity.

The value of flour shipments for the same period is $2,302,400; the tendency every season is to export proportionately less wheat and more flour, that is to concentrate; probably the comparatively cheap freights afforded by abundance of tonnage this season may have the effect of increasing the shipment of wheat to U. K.

Villard's Mistake.

The general topic of conversation yesterday afternoon was the failure of the N. P. R. R. visiting party to arrive according to programme. While the projector of the enterprise is not to be blamed for his inability to carry out the programme, yet common courtesy would suggest that some recognition of the citizens' effort to celebrate was due. But the direct slight in omitting all recognition of Astoria in the matter of invitations is something that we of Astoria can not look upon with indifference. Mr. Villard is a business man and has the reputation of not allowing personal feelings to interfere with business. As a business proposition it would not have added a cent's cost to the expenses of his celebration to recognize the importance of the second city in the state by inviting a few of its representative men, not through any personal regard, but as a mark of courtesy to the place. The mayor of the city, the collector of the port, the president of the chamber of commerce should have been invited, as proper and fitting representatives of our city. THE ASTORIAN is of the opinion that as a business proposition the gentleman at the head made a mistake. He invited a lot of old fossils that never had nor never will have a wheelbarrow of freight for him and deliberately ignored a city that can send fifty trainloads of goods over his road, and that is entirely independent of Mr. Villard or anything he represents.

Our American Cousin.

Among the multitude of comedies that crowd the stage there are a few that by reason of superior merit or superior rendition hold a place. To the latter class belongs "Our American Cousin." The play itself is not one that justifies the hold that it has on the popular fancy. As originally written, the character of Asa Trenchard, the great whole-souled American was the foremost idea; but the clever adoption of the inane embodiment of patrician assinity known as "Lord Sothern," induced the lamented Sothern many years ago to make that character the leading feature of the comedy. He created the character, and no one else played it while he lived; it was as distinctively his own as "Rip Van Winkle" is Joe Jefferson's, or "Hamlet" is conceded to be Booth's. It took a genius to put the requisite amount of assumed naturalness into the character, and when Sothern died, it was said in two continents "Good bye to 'Lord Sothern.'" When that clever impersonator, Geo. Holland appeared, it was said "he imitates Sothern," but if imitation is the sincerest form of flattery, surely success in a field made so difficult by comparison must be conceded to be a measure of artistic ability. As witnessed at Occidental Hall last evening, Mr. Holland's Dunderreary leaves nothing to be desired. It is no more an imitation of Sothern than our sunrise is an imitation of another, and deserves hearty commendation for its fidelity to the idea of the original author. Miss Murielle as Florence Trenchard and W. C. Deal as Asa Trenchard, were good. Kirtland Calhoun's butler was a clever piece of acting, and the company throughout were excellent in their rendition of the characters assigned to them.

Bad Temper often proceeds from those painful disorders to which women are subject.

In female complaints Dr. R. Y. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription" is a certain cure. By all druggists.

Ladies Buying for Fall Wear should see those handsome goods and trimmings at the Empire Store.

A Juicy Beef-Steak cooked to perfection is what you can get at Frank Fabre's.

When You Come to Astoria and want a nice pan roast, go to Frank Fabre's, opposite the ASTORIAN office.

For a Neat Fitting Boot Or Shoe, go to P. J. Goodmans, on Chenamus street, next door to L. W. Case.

Duplex Galvanic Belts. Persons wishing to purchase them will call on J. W. Conn, who is agent for them, at his Drug Store opposite Occidental Hotel.

Roseco Dixon's new eating house is now open. Everything has been fitted up in first-class style, and his well known reputation as a caterer assures all who like good things to eat, that at his place they can be accommodated.

Young, old, and middle-aged men and women get health and strength by using Brown's Iron Bitters.

Does Protection Protect?

The salmon packers of Oregon and Washington pay every year a large amount of money as duty on tin plate imported from England. This amount is a direct tax on the salmon packing industry of the Columbia river. It is in the interest of "protection," though the fact that there is no tinplate manufactured in this country makes it difficult to see just where the "protection" comes in. Some of this duty is paid back in rebate on the manufactured cans when filled with salmon and sent back to the old country; in shipping salmon to any American port this rebate is not allowed, which affords the singular but not unusual spectacle of the United States government taxing its own citizens that a foreign consumer can have his goods at a cheaper rate. Of course this is not the intent of the "protection," but it is the effect, and all laws are judged by their effects.

There is a "labor committee" in session in New York at present, and any one who has an ax to grind can go before it for information. A few days ago Jos. Jarrett, president of the amalgamated association of Pennsylvania Iron works, appeared before the committee and argued that congress should double the present duty on tin plate. His reasons were as brief as they are beautiful. 1st.—that the blasted Brits were making too much money manufacturing tin plate for Columbia river salmon packers and others; 2d; that if the duty were raised, it "might" be an inducement to Pennsylvania capitalists to put their money into the manufacture of tin plate. Just how that would benefit the Columbia river canner does not appear. Of course it is out of the question to suppose that Mr. Jarrett is actuated by any idea of possible profit, but it looks a little that way. On the outside it looks ridiculous, but if sufficient coin is judiciously expended in congress next winter it may be that that body will "protect" American citizens still more by putting an extra cinch on the material they use in direct discrimination against a great industry and in favor of England—and Pennsylvania.

About Fair Lads and Lassies.

There is either no sympathy among the young people of Seattle, or else there is a great lack of energy among them. The summer has nearly passed, but seldom has there been an occasion to report a social gathering of any sort. An amateur dramatic club existed long enough to give two performances, and one or two dances were given under the management of a dancing teacher, but beyond that young ladies and young gentlemen have been content to find amusement in groups of two and three, losing the advantages and opportunities of improvement and pleasant hours, which would have resulted from dignity unbent or a more intelligent idea of useless whips, as the case may be. Young ladies have not encouraged sociability, and young gentlemen have smoked away their time and cigarettes instead of exercising their muscle and brain, wit and ambition, in forming ball and ball clubs, dramatic or literary societies, or even dancing parties. The winter is nearly here with its long evenings. Why cannot some of Seattle's young men and young women put a little life into the sluggish, sleepy state of our social world, so that during the winter, when time hangs heavy upon their hands, the young people may at least escape becoming rusty in things polite and sociable, even if they gain no improvement therein. Life is very short—too short to waste, and polite intercourse among ladies and gentlemen is prolific of enjoyment, of improvement and of refinement. —Scott the Herald.
