

The Daily Astorian.

ASTORIA, OREGON: SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 13, 1883

The Olympia Unitarian church was destroyed by fire last Thursday.

Hon. J. H. Mitchell was among the visitors to THE ASTORIAN office yesterday.

The salmon train, composed of eighteen cars started from Albina yesterday for New York.

The journalists yesterday were thoroughly appreciative of the attentions shown them and will carry away the pleasantest recollections of Astoria.

The weekly Standard, a copy of which is to hand, contains among a mass of interesting matter a brief but well written resume of Clatsop county and its resources.

The Walla Walla Watchman has been sold for $6,000, and its former editor after serving his term in the legislature will be discharged and retire to private life.

Captain Perkins of the Mt. Washington reports having signaled the Rolan Hill of St. Johns, N. B., from Cardiff for Vancouver, May 14th, in Lat. 5 deg. 15 min. N., Lon. 26 deg. 33 min. W.

Notice is given of a special meeting of the chamber of commerce this evening to consider important matters concerning the proposed Astoria and Forest Grove railroad. Every member is requested to be present.

Mark Kyle and John Dubois are partaking of the county's hospitality, the former being wanted to furnish information regarding another man's house, and the other to make straight the charges against him concerning some carpenter tools.

The marriage of Miss Clara Hewett of this city, to W. S. Kidd, of the Pioneer, took place in Portland, last Wednesday, Rev. G. W. Izer, officiating. A party of friends and relatives were present from this city to witness the ceremony and tender the bride and groom their heartiest congratulations.

The Holland Dramatic company added to their already established reputation by the performance at Occidental Hall last evening of "The Serious Family," and "40 and 50." From here the company goes to Salem for a week, appearing in Portland the week following, where, doubtless, crowded houses await them.

The completion of the Lime Point point for signal is announced by the following notice issued by the light-house board: Notice is hereby given that on and after September 10, 1883, a steam fog whistle will be maintained on Lime Point, north side of the entrance to San Francisco Bay, and opposite Fort Point, California. The signal is a steam whistle twelve inches in diameter, and will be sounded during thick and foggy weather, giving blasts of ten seconds' duration at intervals of thirty seconds.

A Roseburg Opinion.

There is nothing so endangers enterprises of any sort as the most remote and attenuated intimations of railroad disaffection. The Americans to the core are loyal. The American flag was never more popular at home than now—and never perhaps abroad. The sentiment is all the deeper that it is quiet.

Boyle's Bad Break.

Suit has been commenced in the U. S. circuit court by John Boyle, one of the persons who was flogged by the vigilantes at Astoria, against I. W. Case, Philip Johnson, C. W. Fulton, M. McCabe, and J. W. Hume, to recover damages in the sum of $25,000. The complaint alleges that on the 10th day of July last the defendants, with divers other persons unknown, in violation of the constitution of the United States, conspired together and formed a vigilance committee and wantonly and unlawfully assaulted and whipped him in a violent and barbarous manner, to his damage in the sum of $10,000. And, further, that on the same date the defendants wrongfully restrained him of his liberty for two hours and caused him to go before the committee for trial, and caused him to be taken to a place in the vicinity of Astoria, where he was unlawfully, vexatiously, maliciously and wantonly hoodwinked, gagged, tied up, whipped, handcuffed, and inflicted with manifold indignities, tortures, cruelties, and the most barbarous treatment, by reason of which he was damaged in the sum of $15,000. Boyle claims to be a British subject, and if he has been guilty of no extraordinary misconduct may possibly recover damages. Hon. A. H. Tanner is his counsel.—Oregonian 14.

Mr. Boyle will have a nice time prying his allegations. We are at a loss to know why he chases the gentlemen he cites in his complaint.

Yesterday's Visitors.

The Wide West arrived down at twenty minutes to three yesterday afternoon with a party of visitors including twenty-six journalists representing the leading newspapers of the country; ex-Senator J. H. Mitchell accompanied the party. They were met at the dock by a reception committee and cordially received. Members of the Astoria chamber of commerce and other citizens took the visitors in charge and showed them around the city. They were unanimous in praise of the place and evidently enjoyed their visit. The West was handsomely decorated, presenting a fine appearance. After drives and excursions to various points and the gathering of data in reference to statistics and other information they reassembled on board the steamer where a handsome dinner was served, and at six o'clock they left for Kalama where they are to meet Mr. Villard and party on their return from the Sound. It is rumored that that gentleman will be here to-morrow or Monday.

Shipping Salmon.

That banner says that Astoria will ship three hundred thousand cases of salmon eastward by the Northern Pacific next year. Too hastily said. The proceedings of the Villard people within the last few days particularly show they do not want any of Astoria's salmon trade. But this is not new. It is in keeping with all their actions towards Astoria in the past in carrying freight past; in avoiding connection at Kalama; in discriminations against Astoria; in holding the Astoria land grant for seven years after the time fixed for its completion and then trying to hold it, not for the purpose of building the road but for the purpose of keeping some one else from building it. If it is cheaper to ship the salmon over the N. P. R. R. Co. than by way of San Francisco it will probably go the cheapest way. If the rate is the same both ways the packers will have their choice of routes. Such things as we are now witnessing will no doubt have very much to do with the choice of routes.

Villard's Regrets.

The following was received last evening.

PORTLAND, OR., Sept. 13, 1883. E. C. HOLDEN, Esq., SECRETARY CHAMBER OF COMMERCE, ASTORIA, OREGON:

DEAR SIR:—You were kind enough to favor me with a telegram extending to myself and guests the hospitalities of Astoria. Unfortunately, owing to the disarrangement of our plans, your dispatch could not be definitely answered any earlier.

As you have no doubt seen from the published programme, it was my fixed intention to take all my guests to Astoria; but, owing to the extreme difficulty of moving five immense passenger trains over the just completed portion of the Northern Pacific main line west of the Rocky mountains so much time was lost in reaching this point with the party that we are reluctantly obliged to give up our excursion to your town. This is a great disappointment to me, but the time for the return of our guests being fixed, it cannot be helped.

Yours truly, H. VILLARD.

Puget Sound and the Columbia River.

Ed. ASTORIAN:

I think the Northern Pacific railroad company has committed a great mistake in making their terminus on Puget Sound. The Cascades on the east, and Mount Olympia on the west proves to be a vast deposit of pebbles, so porous that what is called "the Sound" is a vast river with a current of not less than 6 miles an hour. Where does this great river receive its waters? Go along the shore when the tide is at ebb and you will see on the gravely beach the water coming through this buried gravel from both sides of the Sound. That makes the big river. In 1842, while congress was in session, I was almost daily requested to attend the office of the topographical engineer of Com. Chas. Wilkes then constructing a map of the Pacific coast and country. I learned from a great deal about the Sound and from statement of Wilkes himself, anchorage ground is very limited as far as his surveys attended. Wilkes told me that often he had not chain enough to reach bottom though not more than a ship's length from shore, the same facts are corroborated by millions on the Sound. My convictions are that no where on the Sound nor anywhere on the Alaska coast is there an anchorage for more than a very small fleet. Is this the place for the terminus of the great North Pacific railroad? I think not. I only state facts that are susceptible of direct proof.

Notwithstanding the amount asked for improvement of the Columbia bar, perhaps two hundred thousand dollars would be all the money required to deepen the channel to any desired depth, by the same process that the Walla Walla deepened the channel at St. Helena. The bar is nothing but clean sand. Stir this sand and let it go to sea and the thing is done. The ebb tide on the bar is seven miles an hour, and I ask is not this force sufficient to move the sand to sea? Such is my firm conviction and always has been. Portland is a great mart of trade at present but it is only a matter of time when the filling up of the country will demand the harbor of Astoria for a great commercial mart. The laws of commerce demand it and it must be so. Look to the east—does any one think the thread of muddy ground at Portland can accommodate the necessary augmentation of shipping? I think not.

Language of the Future.

All languages have been expanded and enriched by slang, and it would not be too much to say that all figurative speeches consist either of authorized or unauthorized slang.

The verb "to-monkey," which is only a year or two old, and is as yet pure slang, is evidently to become in the course of time a legitimate expression. Its primary meaning is to busy one's self in ways other than utilitarian. The amateur painter or musician "monkeys" with art, and the political theorist who invents impracticable reforms may be said to "monkey" with politics. The verb is occasionally used as a synonym for the expression "to busy one's self" with anything, but it cannot legitimately be used of honest, useful work, except when such work is either badly done or is undertaken as a recreation rather than as a legitimate business. Who invented the verb "to monkey" will probably never be known, but the inventor "monkeyed" with the English language better than he knew. The word is so full of meaning, and differs by such delicate and subtle shades from the legitimate words most closely related to it in meaning, that it will win its place in the ranks of grave and regular language. Already it has ascended from the sidewalk and is met with growing frequency—though as yet without quotation marks—in the columns of newspapers. Our descendants will use it without a thought of impropriety.

A still more recent example of slang is the ironical request of the street boy to a conceited and boastful opponent to "come off the roof." The request needs no explanation. It is vivid and picturesque. The world is full of men who might properly be requested to "come off the roof." There is a field of study offered to the philologist in current slang which is worth cultivation. The slang of the street is to a large extent the language of the future. It is the survival of the fittest of slang words and expressions that make language. The philologist who will lay aside his dignity, "come off the roof," and "monkey" with slang will find himself abundantly repaid.—New York Times.

In a New York Saloon.

There is nothing cheap here, and few things have taken their today in better quarters. You walk up brown stone steps under blazing lights into a room as bright and beautiful as any in New York. If at night, the blaze of light dazzles you, and you might think you had stumbled into a palace. A knight in plated armor looks at you, and bronze and statues look at you from different parts of the room. The most elegant of paintings hang surrounded by rich velvet upon the walls, and great mirrors of heavy plate glass reflect the many colored light of the cut-glass chandeliers. Everything is elegant here. There is no shoddy and no veneering. The room is paneled with carved mahogany, and the tables scattered here and there over the mosaic floor are of the same polished wood. If you take a chair, it is of the best wood of Austria, and if you call for a drink you will be served in a cut-glass goblet, and your change will be handed you by a gentleman who is bright as a silver planet. A silver cuspidor, shining as bright as Vanderbilt's spoons, stands beside you, and if you ask for a pretzel to eat with your beer it will be brought to you on a piece of porcelain decorated as beautifully as that on the president's table.—Corr. Leader.
