

The Daily Astorian.

ASTORIA, OREGON: WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 21, 1883. SPECIAL NOTICE.

Fifteen Cents Per Week.

Beginning on Saturday, October 27, 1883, THE DAILY ASTORIAN will be delivered to all parts of the city for fifteen cents per week, payable to the carrier.

J. F. HALLORAN & Co. ASTORIAN OFFICE, Oct. 22, 1883.

All-Hallow-eeen.

To-night all single folk have their fortunes told.

Boroth & Johns will sell Alderbrook property on the installment plan.

Little Arthur Foley was conscious yesterday and hopes are entertained of his recovery.

The bill to repeal the Washington Territory Sunday law has failed to pass the legislature.

Villard is reported to have bought heavily of O. R. & N. stock during the flurry last week.

We've heard of worse looking newspapers than the Lewis county Nugget—but never saw one.

Beyond a certain dimness of light yesterday there was nothing seen in Astoria concerning the last solar eclipse of '83.

Hereafter the San Francisco steamers will arrive at Astoria on Mondays and Fridays, and leave here for San Francisco on Wednesdays and Saturdays.

There will be a good many things to give thanks for on the next recurrence of our national Thanksgiving day. Not the least among these is the completion of that lively thoroughfare known in history as Cass street.

First mate Batchelder, of the Chesborough, is not hurt as badly as at first reported, though the injury is a severe one. It seems the block struck a slanting blow, breaking three ribs and glancing off. He is in a fair way to recover.

Spurgeon says that a man may practice on the cornet and be a Christian, but it is hard for his next door neighbor to be a Christian. You can't always tell. We know a Portland insurance agent who recently preached a first-rate sermon in an Astoria pulpit.

New York restaurateurs serve their customers this winter with rich and juicy steaks served a la Chateaubriand. It is simply a beefsteak cooked between two other pieces of raw meat, so that the juice of the two side pieces shall penetrate into the steak placed in the middle.

The State of California arrived down at 3:30 yesterday afternoon and sails to-day. The captain and mate of the Whistler go to San Francisco. The barkentine Welford and tug Escort crossed out; the Gen. Miles arrived in; the British bark Antwerp, Smith, master, arrived in from Victoria.

There will be a meeting at 7 o'clock on the evening of November 6th, in the Swedish Evangelical Lutheran church in commemoration of the four hundredth anniversary of the birth of Martin Luther. Rev. J. McCormac will address the meeting. Rev. J. W. Skans, of Portland, and Rev. J. J. Hoikka the pastor of the church, will also address the meeting in the Swedish language. Everyone is invited.

Lieut. C. E. S. Wood has some splendid sketches in his portfolio of landscapes and water-scapes in the vicinity of Ft. Canby. One painting of Mackenzie's Head is highly praised by those who have seen it. The scenery of the lower Columbia is worthy the pen of the poet and the pencil of the painter, and several gifted artists are transferring to canvas inimitable portraits of the grand original.

The Union Pacific is now doing considerable business with Oregon and Washington Territory over its line from Ogden to Garrison, on the Northern Pacific. A large depot is now being built at Garrison to accommodate the business over this line. The roadbed of the Oregon Short Line to Boise City is completed, and the track is nearly laid. The O. R. & N. Co. will soon effect a junction a little west of Boise City.

The new city at the Gray's Harbor terminus of the Seattle, Puget Sound and Gray's Harbor railroad comprises lots 1 and 2 of section 28, township No. 17 north, range 10 west, and the portion at present subdivided covers between fifty and sixty acres, with a frontage along the harbor of half a mile. The blocks are numbered from 1 to 43, and the streets running east and west, parallel with the harbor, are named respectively, Chehalis, York, Owings, Columbia, Pitt; those running north and south, at right angles to the shore, Wharf, Bergen, Gray, Ocean, Newell, Elliott, Hanford and Harbor. The lots are 60x120 feet, 10 in a block, and the streets vary in width from 60 to 100 feet. Many of the blocks and lots are fractional, owing to the angle of the shore with the lines of the government subdivisions.

Last Evening's Performance.

The sixth quarterly concert of the Astoria Musical society was given at Liberty Hall last evening, in the presence of a most appreciative audience. Those who were present at the last entertainment given at the Occidental Hall, and heard the pleasant music furnished by the society, were likewise present last evening, reinforced by many others who also availed themselves of an opportunity to hear the excellent vocal and instrumental music for the rendition of which this society is justly famed.

The opening chorus, "Hail, Festal Day," as rendered by Mrs. F. R. Stokes, supported by the entire society, was followed by the stirring strain of Faust's "Battle March," also given by the whole class, after which Abt's delightful aria, "Fly Away, Birding," was sung by Mrs. C. W. Fulton and Mrs. M. Eaton, the clear soprano of the one blending in melody with the flute-like alto of the other. The double quartette, "Roll On, Majestic Ocean," voiced by Messrs. McIntosh, Thompson, Barker, Van Dusen, Griffin, Wright, Boroth, Taylor and George, was greeted with the same need of appreciative applause that merit always elicits.

The vocal gem, "Forget Me Not," was sung by Mrs. F. R. Stokes, whose clear voice was never heard to better advantage than in that lovely solo, the favorite of the gifted Ganz, its composer. Sir Michael Costa's "Zion Awake," was rendered in grand style by a quartette composed of Mrs. C. W. Fulton, Mrs. M. Eaton, Prof. Cook and D. A. McIntosh, after which the society favored the audience with a chorus, "The Flower Dance," and Miss Fannie Dickinson, supported by the society, in the silveriest soprano sang a mirth-provoking solo entitled, "Don't Mind What They Say," thus closing the first part.

The second part opened with three widely varying selections by the society, followed by W. H. Barker, who in manly bass told of a "Warrior Bold in Days of Old," to the intense gratification of his listeners, after which Mrs. C. W. Fulton, Mrs. M. Eaton, Prof. Cook and Mr. Barker went through the laughable sketch entitled "The Professor at Home." The double quartette previously named intoned the patriotic song, "Unfold Our Glorious Banner," after which "O Salutaris Hostia," was sung by Mrs. M. Eaton with an amount of feeling and expression that left nothing to be desired. The pleasant chant concerning "Spring's Delights," was followed by the beautiful trio of "Sweet Home" by Mrs. C. J. Trenchard and Misses Jennie and Winnie Craun, assisted by the society. Throughout the entertainment Mrs. D. A. McIntosh presided at the organ with her usual grace of execution. Miss May, Prof. Cook's talented daughter did like service at the piano, and the Professor himself, to whose careful drill much of the merit of the performance is due, conducted the whole. To speak of applause, bouquets and encores, would transcend our limits. Suffice it to say that such a performance as those present had the pleasure of hearing last evening will insure a most enthusiastic response from the music loving public of Astoria at any future time. The superlative piano that added in no small degree to the success of the entertainment, was loaned for the occasion by Carl Adler.

"Money makes the mare go," but the recent experience of Portland capitalists illustrates the inability to make the animal stop.

The enterprising inhabitants of that portion of Wahkiakum county bordering on Gray's river, have long felt the need of better communication with Astoria than that afforded by sail and occasional steamer visits, and some time ago organized "The Gray's River Transportation Company." The result is the trim little steamer Union, which has been built and equipped, and will hereafter run regularly between Astoria and Gray's river.

In the suit in equity for an injunction to prevent the Northern Pacific R. R. Co. from bridging the Willamette river, Judge Deady has filed an opinion in the United States District Court which in substance says that the company has the right to build bridges over navigable streams granted by the charter, subject only to judgment of proper court as to construction of same without unnecessary injury to navigation, and the case is dismissed; a foregone conclusion.

Diaries, memoranda, account books, in great variety at Strauss' New York Novelty Store.

The Mississippi Jetty.

Every little while appears in some paper hostile to the matter of river improvement, mean little items concerning the alleged failure of Eads' jetty system at New Orleans.

The following is no surmise or rumor, but a fact: On the 18th inst., the largest ship that ever reached New Orleans passed successfully through the channel made by Capt. Eads' jetties, and anchored in the stream opposite the city. The vessel is the British steamship Silverton, built for laying cable. She is 4035 tons register, 338 feet long, 55 feet beam, and 34 feet 6 inches deep. When the fact is noted that before the jetties were finished vessels drawing over 19 feet could not get to New Orleans, it will likewise be seen that the jetties are an assured success. The same system is in the process of construction at Galveston, Texas. We hope to chronicle, in the future, the arrival of vessels of deepest draft at Astoria, through the relief afforded the Columbia bar by the same process that has resulted in such splendid success at the Crescent City.

Opening Night.

If one could gauge the future success of a new business venture in a rapidly growing and prosperous community by its opening night, then may it well be said that the New York Novelty store, which opened its doors to the public in Astoria last evening, is bound to prosper, as from the time of opening to the time of closing, the place was besieged by an eager crowd of both visitors and purchasers, all intent upon examining the fine stock of new holiday goods and other novelties therein displayed. All goods are marked in plain figures, the motto of the house being "One price for all." The proprietor assures us that children will receive the same treatment as their elders, no advantage being taken because of their youth. All who were present last evening express themselves as being both surprised and well pleased with what they saw. Taken all in all, it may safely be said that the opening of the New York Novelty store last evening was "the event of the season."

A Lam Duck.

The mellow sunlight of a glorious October afternoon as it yesterday entered the south windows of the courtroom upon 217 Mongolian who with open eyes and mouths stood stolidly staring at the proceedings in which two of their number, Ah Foy and Lam Duck were charged with outraging the peace and dignity of the state of Oregon by striking, hitting, assaulting, wounding and injuring Mike Sullivan, at whose instance the suit was brought. The testimony was voluminous and conflicting, but his honor solved the problem by discharging Ah Foy, and holding Lam Duck in $1,000 bonds to await the action of the grand jury.

The newspaper has become the legitimate inheritor of the patronage of advertisers. It offers advantages that no other vehicle possesses, and it costs less than most others. It cannot be assumed that the advertising pages of a paper are so carefully read as the news portions, but it has gradually educated the reader to look for what he or she wants in the advertising columns, and those who read the paper quietly at home are far more inclined to go over their wants and look where to supply them than the man on the street, who is probably thinking more of selling his own goods than of buying his neighbor's. Then the scope of this method of advertising is almost endless. It takes in a business card or two-line notice, or it may cover an entire page, and there is a chance for literary display.

THE BABY.

Who is it coos just like a dove? Who is it that you dearly love? The brightest blessing from above? The baby.

While silent watch the angels keep, Who smiles so sweetly in his sleep, And oft displays its dimples deep? The baby.

Who is it keeps us all awake Throughout the night till day doth break? Because it has a stomach-ache? The baby.

When mamma goes outside the door, Who is it that doth madly roar, And like O. Twist, cries out for more? The baby.

Who is it swallows every pin, Great chunks of glass and scraps of tin, And then yells all the time like sin? The baby.

Who is it that may grow up mad, And make his mother sick and sad, Then thrash his kind, indignant dad? The baby.

IF. If you yawn, Would keep from slaps, Five things observe with care: Of whom you speak, To whom you speak, And how, and when, and where.

If you yawn, Would save from jeers, These things keep meekly hid: Myself and I, And mine and my, And how I do or did.

Oysters Will Do It. "I'll cure any cough you ever heard of, and with one of the simplest remedies you ever saw," said a lady vocalist of considerable reputation on both sides of the Atlantic. "It's oysters. Just plain, simple, every-day raw oysters. I've sung fourteen years here and in the old countries, and I rely upon oysters and they can be depended on. My husband told me of this kind of medicine, and I don't know how many years he has used them. They act just as beneficially on my children, and the next time you have a cough go to the oyster bar instead of the drug store."

Household Hints. Potatoes should always be boiled in two waters. The first water gets them clean and the other cooks them. Common fir wood, when soaked in petroleum, becomes as durable as cedar and nearly as tough as boarding house beefsteak.

A mixture of glue, gum arabic, molasses and fine lumber well boiled together and allowed to cool, will keep chair tides in place.

Two ounces of borax and half an ounce of alum dissolved in one quart of lukewarm water will kill roaches. Drop the roaches into it.

The only way to clean house comfortably and thoroughly is to wait until your husband breaks his leg, and then do it while he is in the hospital.

The only sure way to get clothes washed perfectly white is to put the boiler, soap, bluing and soda in the coldest and send the clothes to a Chinese laundry.

Always be around the kitchen on baking days and let your husband know it. When the bread turns out good he will smile sweetly and listen to your description of the last millinery opening. When it turns out bad, just hint that you need a new girl.
